Military Cross (GRI). Tekrit 6th Nov.1917. Major N.Macleod Adam. 19th Battery R.F.A. Engraved. Good extremely fine.

$1,000

MC: Supplement to Edinburgh Gazette 13/1/1919, p240, to Capt. (A./Maj.) Norman Macleod Adam, 19th Bty., R.F.A. (Mesopotamia). Citation: 'For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He commanded his battery with energy and skill on two occasions. Once he accompanied the advancing infantry into the enemy front line, whence he was able to direct a most destructive fire on the enemy. On the same day when another battery commander was wounded he assumed control of the battery as well as his own and fought both with ability and determination. He was wounded.'

Norman Macleod Adam attended Fettes College, Edinburgh from 1902 in Kimmerghame House and then Schoolhouse; 23Dec1910 as a Gentleman Cadet from the Royal Military Academy was apptd Second Lieutenant, LG 6/1/1911, p128; 16Jul1915 to 08Aug1916 apptd Temporary Captain, LG 16Nov1917, p11817; 27Sep1916 seconded to be Temporary Staff Captain, LG 2/3/1917, p2122; 18Dec1916 Staff Officer graded for purposes of pay as Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, LG 22/6/1917, p6187; 05Jan1917 Capt N.M.Adam R.A. attached to Hd.Qr. Units, LG 13Mar1917, p2605; 05Jan1917 apptd D.A.A.G., LG 6/7/1920, p7232; 05Jan1917 apptd Brigade Major, LG 6/7/1920, p7233; 25Sep1917 apptd Acting Major, LG 14Jan1918, p809; 06Nov1917 awarded MC and wounded.

He served with Indian Division, France 1914-15; Mesopotamia 1915-17; and Lowland Division, Palestine 1918; France 1918.

Brigade Major N.M.Adam, MC, RFA was killed in action on 28Aug1918 and buried in an isolated grave close to Fontaine-les-Croiselles near Arras. Despite a French law forbidding the exhumation of bodies, the wealth and influence of Norman's father, Major General F.A.Adam C.B. enabled him to enlist the help of the local mayor and the body was exhumed in June 1922 then taken to Glasgow where it was reburied in July in the Glasgow Necropolis (see p280 of The Quick and the Dead: Fallen Soldiers and Their Families in the Great War by Richard van Emden).

Norman Macleod Adam is recorded on the Fettes College Roll of Honour where it shows that he was awarded the Military Cross and also Mentioned in Despatches.

Together with small unofficial case and photocopies of military service records and related documents including,

(1) application requesting the King's permission to purchase for £400 a commission as an Ensign in the New South Wales Corps vice Dalmer promoted in the 23rd Regt of Foot, signed by Hugh Piper and W Paterson Lt Col N.S.Wales Corps; (2) application under direction of Colonel Grose, commanding the New South Wales Corps, requesting Field Marshall His Royal Highness The Duke of York to move the King to grant such commission of appointment as Ensign to Mr Hugh Piper, dated 24th March 1799; (3) documents relating to purchase of Lieutenancy of Hugh Piper upon his promotion to Captain and many other documents relating to purchase of Captaincy including one under direction of Lieut General Grose to Lieut Colonel Torrens requesting he lay before Field Marshall His Royal Highness The Commander in Chief the recommendations for promotion of Lieut Piper to be Captain Piper purchasing the commission for £950 from Captain Winkworth Tonge, who is retiring, and taking command of his Company in the 102nd Regt, dated 13th June 1811.

Hugh Piper was born at Ayrshire, Scotland on 28 May 1784. He entered the Army at the age of 14 years 10 months when he purchased a commission as an Ensign with the New South Wales Corps (102nd Foot) on 29 March 1799. In doing so he was following in the footsteps of his brother, Ensign John Piper of the New South Wales Corps, who arrived at Sydney in 1792 aboard the Pitt and at his own request was sent to Norfolk Island in 1793, promoted to Lieutenant in 1795 and returned to the mainland and was then on leave 1797-1799. In 1800 he was given the local rank of Captain and became commandant of Norfolk Island in September 1804 being promoted to Captain in 1806. He returned to Sydney in 1810 but while on leave in England in 1811 he resigned his commission. In 1813 he was given the appointment of Naval Officer in Sydney and returned to take up his role in February 1814. A close family friend of John MacArthur, he was appointed a magistrate in 1819, became Chairman of Directors of the Bank of New South Wales in 1825 and was President of Scots Church Committee. He acquired land by grant or purchase at Eliza Point (renamed after John Piper and now Point Piper), Vaucluse, Woollahra, Rose Bay, Petersham, Neutral Bay, Bathurst, Van Diemen's Land and in George Street, Sydney. He also owned Vacluse House.

Hugh Piper's service record is as follows, (Rank) Ensign, New South Wales Corps (102nd Foot), 29 March 1799 (by purchase); Lieutenant, New South Wales Corps (102nd Foot), 1806 (without purchase) (Caledonian Mercury 24 November 1806: War Office, Nov.18. - New South Wales Corps - Brevet Major George Johnston to be Major, without purchase, Lieut. John Piper to be Captain of a company, vice Johnston, Ensign Hugh Piper to be Lieutenant, vice J.Piper, Ensign William Lawson to be Lieutenant.); Captain, 102nd Foot, 13 June 1811 (by purchase); Captain, 102nd Foot, 13 June 1811 (by purchase); Captain, 38th Regt, 5 April, 1820 (transfer); Major, 38th Regt, 10 June 1828 (without purchase); Lieutenant Colonel, 38th Regt, 27 May 1837 (without purchase). Commanding Officer of 38th Regt; Retired by sale of commission 6 August 1840; (Service abroad) 1799-1800 Van Diemen's Land; 1800-1811 New South Wales; 1811-1818 Guernsey, Bermuda, Moose Island (an island in Maine, USA seized by the British in the War of 1812), St Andrew's, New Brunswick, St John's (now Prince Edward Island), Halifax, Nova Scotia; 1818-1820 England; 1820-1828 Cape of Good Hope, Bengal and Ava (Burma); 1828-1836 Bengal.

During Hugh Piper's Army career some of the highlights were, A member of the 'Lt Col William Paterson party' that sailed with H.M. Buffalo together with the armed tender, Lady Nelson, the Francis and Integrity arriving in November 1804 to Van Diemen's Land to establish a settlement at Port Dalrymple. This was a strategic move to secure a British interest in Bass Strait and also create another area to accommodate settlers removed from Norfolk Island. Thus York Town was established and this was the first declared permanent settlement in the north of Tasmania. From there, on 28 November, Paterson embarked on the Lady Nelson together with Ensign Hugh Piper, Mr Jacob Mountgarrett, a corporal and five soldiers and proceeded up the Tamar River to evaluate and explore the country to the north-west of Port Dalrymple. As a result of this expedition, various areas are named after Hugh Piper, namely Piper's Brook, Piper's River, Piper's Head, Piper's River Road and the town of Piper's River. There was also a location called Piper's Hut which is recorded on 1830, January 1 as the site of the killing of William Smith by natives near River Ouse, Piper's Hut at Bark Hut Plains.

Served as Brigade Major in the American campaign in 1813 under Sir Sidney Beckwith, the campaign in which there were battles at Chesapeake Bay, Craney Island and Hampton, Virginia which was captured; as Captain of the Light Company at the capture of Moose Island under Colonel Pilkington; as Captain and Deputy Adjutant General to the Bengal Force under Major General Sir A.Campbell during the campaign in Ava of 1824-25 and 1826.

In the Colonial Times and Tasmanian Advertiser, Friday 2 September 1825, p2 there is a report on the 'Burmese War in India', in part this states, 'The first official accounts of the progress of hostilities, are contained in dispatches from Brigadier-General Sir A.Campbell to George Swinton, Esq., Secretary to Government at Bengal; published on 23rd December last.... It appears that a Prince of the Burmese, named Maha Bundoola, appeared in front of the British position on the 1st of December, with a force of 60,000 men, well armed and appointed; including a numerous artillery, and a powerful cavalry; Sir Archibald's stile (sic) of writing may be understood from the following extract, which is a fair specimen of the whole. 'He says, their haughty leader had insolently declared his intention of leading us in captive chains, to grace the triumph of the golden monarch. But it has pleased God to expose the vanity of his idle threats, and crown the heroic efforts of my gallant little army with a most complete and signal victory.' The Brigadier-General then proceeds to give in detail the particulars of the first action; in which the 13th (King's) Foot, the 18th Madras Infantry, and two companies of the 38th (King's), under Captain Hugh Piper, (brother of Captain Piper, the Naval Officer at Sydney) were much distinguished.'

Hugh Piper was married on 15 May 1816 at St John's, New Brunswick. His wife bore eleven children, namely, William Donald 6/2/1817 St John's, New Brunswick; Margaret Isabella, 12/8/18 St John's, New Brunswick; John Sweedland 3/2/1840 Isle of Wight (died); John 21/2/1821 Cape of Good Hope; David Blair 27/11/1822 Berhompore, East India; Isabella 9/1/1824 Berhompore, East India (died); Hugh 22/1/1827 Chinsurah, East India (died); David Blair 28/5/1828 Canonpore, East India; Sarah 10/7/1829 Gharapore, East India; Isabella 18/3/1831 Gharapore, East India; Francis Rulate Skipton 12/1/1834 Berhompore, East India. Lieutenant Colonel Hugh Piper died on 20 November 1855 at the Island of Jersey, England.

HMS Conway Merchant Navy cadet school ship was established in 1859 to train cadets as future Mercantile Marine officers. In 1861 the Board of Trade accepted that two years at Conway was the equivalent of one year at sea and cadets received a Conway Passing Out Certificate of Exemption when they completed training. On 4 February 1864 Queen Victoria acknowledged Conway's achievements and announced the instigation of the Queen's Gold Medal to be awarded annually to the selected cadet. The winner's name was recorded on a memorial board which is now on display at the Conway Chapel at Birkenhead. On the passing of Queen Victoria the award became the King's Gold Medal. Similar awards, but with a different reverse design, were also established to be made annually to the top cadet at the respective colleges for the RN, Army, and RAF in England and the RAN (1916), Army (1919) and RAAF (1951) in Australia. On 19 July 1927 King George V inspected one hundred Conway cadets at Liverpool Town Hall and then presented the King's Medal to Chief Cadet Captain C.C.Ellison.

MID: Fourth Supplement to LG 1/6/1945, p2852, to Chief Engine Room Artificer Francis Flynn, C/M.34688 (Sliema, Malta). Recommendation for operational award to Ch.ERA Francis Flynn, HMS St Angelo: R.Y.S.Kumanovo left Malta for Sicily on the 26th December, 1944 with 100 passengers. En route she ran into very bad weather (wind E.N.E., Force 7-8 and very rough sea with heavy rain) and got into difficulties, eventually having to be abandoned on the afternoon of 27th December. On hearing that the ship was in difficulties about 1000 on 27th December, Chief E.R.A. Flynn, who was a passenger on board, went to the bridge to offer his services. He then went down to the boiler-room where he found water up to the fire bars of the lower boiler and that the fires had been allowed to go out. He collected some Yugo-Slav stokers and in spite of language difficulties and reluctance on their part, managed to get them to assist in relighting the fires and raising steam. This work was continued until about 1530, when, as the pumps were blocked and no longer serviceable, nothing further could be done.

Together with; 1. Sydney University Medal, in bronze (52mm), inscribed on reverse, 'L.L.B.Examination/1909/Samuel Edward Townshend', in case of issue by John Hurst & Co, 4 Hunter Street, Sydney. 2. Sydney University Scouts, 1903-27, hat badge in bronze (34mm). 3. National Rifle Association of N.S.W., shooting medal in silver, reverse inscribed, 'E.S.Townsend/1904' (note mis-spelling and reversing of initials), in case of issue by E.Butcher & Co, 126 Pitt Street.

Samuel Edward Townshend, BA, LLB (Sydney Uni), was born at Mackay, Queensland and was educated at Sydney High School and then Sydney University graduating in Arts in 1905 and Law in 1909 winning the University Medal. He was admitted to the NSW Bar in 1909. Samuel was a keen rifle shooter winning many competitions at the National Rifle Association of NSW. He was the Registrar at the newly established University of WA when he enlisted on 1 October 1914 and was commissioned as a Captain in the 16th Battalion. He had previously served continuously for thirteen years with Sydney University Scouts and was Captain and third in command up to 2 August 1914. Samuel embarked on 22 December 1914 ex Melbourne on HMAT Ceramic bound for Egypt and arrived on 3 February 1915.

After training, the 16th Battalion landed at Anzac Cove at about 6pm on 25 April 1915 and made its way into the hills. By 2 May the battalion of about 1,000 men had lost 8 officers and 330 men. The 16th was then moved to Quinns Post which was under continual enemy fire. On 9 May an organised Turkish attack was repelled. Following this a group of 40 men under Captain Townshend was ordered to charge one of the sections re-occupied by the Turks and to re-take the position. Samuel led the attack and as he went over the parapet he shouted 'Fix bayonets - when I call 'Australia forever' charge boys.' They were met with a hail of murderous fire, Samuel being shot in the foot and later shot fatally as he was being evacuated from the battle. Captain Townshend is commemorated at the Lone Pine Memorial.

Antarctic 1957 - Clasp, LG 5/1/1960, p187; CAG 4, 14/1/1960 - For good service as member of the Australian Antarctic Research Expedition to Mawson and Davis 1957, to Peter Wylie King, Radio Officer, Mawson.

Antarctic 1958 - Second clasp, LG 21/7/1961, p5401; CAG 60, 27/7/1961 - For good service as member of the Australian National Antarctic Research Expedition to Mawson and Davis 1958, to Peter Wylie King, Radio Officer, Mawson.

Peter Wylie King, wartime radio operator with British Merchant Navy and Royal Air Force, Antarctic Expeditionier and author, had a boys-own-adventure of a lifetime. His biographical entry on p559 in British Polar Exploration and Research, A Historical and Medalllic Record with Biographies, 1818-1999 by Lieutenant Colonel Neville W.Poulsom and Rear Admiral J.A.L.Myres CB reads as follows;

'Born 14.10.21. Served as a radio officer in the British Merchant Navy during the Second World War, and also had two years with the Royal Air Force as a radio operator. He worked as a radio officer in a Norwegian cargo boat which was sold in Shanghai. He left England in October 1946 for Adelaide, Australia. In 1947, having written to Sir Douglas Mawson applying for the position as Radio Operator for an Australian Antarctic Expedition then being formed, he was selected to serve on Macquarie Island for the first year in 1948.

In 1951 he returned to England and joined the Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey, spending 1952-54 at Hope Bay working on the hut and installing radio equipment. During this tour at Hope Bay he took part in a sledging journey to Duse Bay and Cape Lachman. After this he took over as Radio Officer in RSS John Biscoe for two seasons, during which he visited South Georgia and all the British bases in the Antarctic Peninsula.

In 1955 he returned to Adelaide and applied to go south again with the Australian National Antarctic Research Expedition and was selected to go to Mawson Station in late 1956. He flew to New Zealand and then via the American Icebreaker Northwind visited Mc Murdo from where he visited the American base at Cape Adare and transferred to MV Kista Dan off Wilkes Base (now Casey Station), then on to serve at Mawson Station during 1957 and 1958. During the first year he twice visited Taylor Rookery (Emperor Penguins) for two weeks, and two weeks in the Prince Charles Mountains at Beaver Lake. In the second year he helped full time with the dogs. He and two others were flown to Amundsen Bay by Beaver Aircraft with sledges, dogs, food and equipment. From Amundsen Bay they did a 10 week and 410 mile running traverse back to Mawson Station. A mountain (Mt.King), 1,425m high, in Enderby Land, is named after him.

In 1977 after some twenty years interval he was again selected to fill the appointment of Radio Officer at Casey Station during which he took part on a three month ice core drilling trip some 50 miles inland from Casey Station. Finally, in 1979, he went back to Macquarie Island as Radio Officer.'

During his war service in the Royal Air Force he was involved with intercepting German radio traffic for decoding. Post war he expressed an interest in going to the Antarctic after seeing a request for expeditioners to the Antarctic and he promptly wrote to Douglas Mawson and was subsequently selected to serve at Macquarie Island in 1948. He met Mawson for tea returning from the expedition, which Mr King's step-son, Viktor Koskovic, described as the greatest thrill of his step-father's life. As detailed above, he went on to serve as an expeditionier on several occasions during the ensuing 30 odd years. His service record reads as follows;

Wintering Expeditions Macquarie Island - Radio Operator, 1948.

Falkland Islands Dependencies Survey 1952-53 - Wireless Operator Mechanic and one of a party of 7.

Mawson Station - Radio Officer, 1957, one of a party of 28.

Mawson Station - Radio Officer, 1958 one of a party of 33.

Casey - Weather Observer-in-Charge, 1977.

Macquarie Island - Radio Officer, 1979

Note: Peter Wylie King (nickname 'Snipe'), Radio Operator, 1957, 1958 - one of only five expeditioners to have spent two years in a row at Mawson (Aurora June 1996, p15).

Peter Wylie King's first wintering expedition was with the Macquarie party which was charged with establishing a new camp to replace the one set up by Mawson in 1911. It was decided to base it on the same site as used by Mawson. The going was tough because as Phillip Law is quoted as saying, 'Macquarie Island is 'wet' cold. The wind hardly ever stops. There's generally fog too. You often don't see the plateau top exposed, and with the wind comes driving rain.' The party was delivered by LST3501 and army DUKWs were used along with LCVP craft to deliver the men and supplies to shore. Some craft were lost in the extremely hazardous conditions. Peter King recalled that one night a sudden wind change marooned a large party of about 60, including the naval crew, on shore. This presented a real challenge to the cook to feed them however with ingenuity he was able to do so and then the group had to cram themselves into 4 tents.

Mount King, Enderby Land, AAT

During his winter at Macquarie Island, the party lost one of its members, Charles Scobie, who had gone skiing with one of the other men and broke through the ice on a frozen lake. Both men had a major struggle to survive and unfortunately, Scobie succumbed and drowned. Many of the party were ex-servicemen and in Tim Bowden's book, The Silence Calling, p64 he writes that Peter King believed being ex-servicemen helped them to adjust to Scobie's death. King said, 'We just coped with it. It's the same in the army. You lose mates fighting wars, and carry on. You have to.'

Peter married his first wife, Barbara King (nee Kendall) in 1960. Later he worked near Adelaide, caring for her as she suffered renal disease before she died in 1974. He then wintered a few more times but when his step-son, Viktor Koskovic, moved to Tasmania in the 1980s, he followed, helping at Launceston's St Giles Child Development Disability Centre. It was there that he met his second wife, Charlotte. They moved to Devonport in about 1996 and were active members of Devonport Community Church and once again Peter King cared for his wife when she became ill up until her death in 2001.

In his latter years, Peter wrote a series of books, A boy's dreams come true: memoirs of pioneer Pete by Peter W.King, 148pp, 2007 A boy's dreams come true: memoirs of pioneer Pete by Peter W.King, Part 2, 125pp, 2008 A boy's dreams come true: memoirs of pioneer Pete by Peter W.King, Part 3, 112pp, 2008 A boy's dreams come true: memoirs of pioneer Pete, my new life in Tasmania by Peter W.King, Part 4, 101pp, 2009 A boy's dreams come true: memoirs of pioneer Pete, my new life in Tasmania by Peter W.King, Part 5, 59pp, 2009 .

Peter had become increasingly frail during the last few years of his life however, he remained cognitively sharp and always liked to talk about his great love for his time with ANARE. His stories will be remembered, not only now, but also in the future as he made over five hours of recordings as part of the ANARE oral history project. A copy of these recordings is also held by the BAS archives. Peter Wylie King died on September 4, 2013 at the age of 91. A funeral service was held at Bapal Karingal Chapel, Lovett Street, Devonport, Tasmania on Tuesday September 10 at 2pm.

Ex The Antiques Storehouse Ltd, Portsmouth, England.

Commander Crick served on board HMS Cardiff of the Sixth Light Cruiser squadron during the later part of World War 1. His career is documented in the book, Spun Yarn & Bell Bottoms, published by United Writers, Cornwall.
 He would have obtained the ship's wheel after the attempted scuttling of the Emden at Scapa flow on 21 June 1919.

The wheel was later presented to the British Royal Navy Nautical Training Corps which was founded in 1944 by Commodore, F P (Frank) Froest-Carr.
 It was then presented to Training Ship Tudor Rose which was run by The Corps.

SMS Emden II was a German light cruiser belonging to the Koenigsberg class, built during WWI. The ship was named after the previous Emden, which had been destroyed by HMAS Sydney at the Battle of Cocos in November 1914.
 She mounted an Iron Cross on her stem-head in honour of the earlier Emden.
 The new cruiser was laid down in 1914 at the AG Weser shipyard in Bremen, launched in February 1916, and commissioned into the High Seas Fleet in December 1916. Armed with eight 15 cm SK L/45 guns, the ship had a top speed of 27.5 knots (50.9 kmh; 31.6 mph). After her commissioning, she was assigned to serve as a flotilla leader for torpedo boats. She participated in only one major action, Operation Albion, in October 1917 where she shelled Russian gun batteries and troop positions and engaged Russian destroyers and gunboats. The ship was also successful in operations against British shipping in the North Sea in December 1917.

After the war ended, she was interned with the rest of the German fleet at Scapa Flow. On 21 June 1919, the interned fleet scuttled itself, however Emden was run aground by British ships before she could sink completely.
 She was ceded to France in the Treaty of Versailles, but was too badly damaged to serve with the French Navy, so was used as a target after 1922, and broken up for scrap in 1926.

Captain Julius Lauterbach was made famous in a fictionalized history of WWI titled 'Rogue Raider: The Tale of Captain Lauterbach and the Singapore Mutiny' by Nigel Barley, 2006. This book came about because after the Emden was defeated by HMAS Sydney on 9 November 1914 many of the German prisoners were transferred to Tanglin goal in Singapore on 15 December 1914. The guards were mostly Punjabi Muslims and Lauterbach is credited with spreading false stories about the Kaiser and his son converting to Islam and other rumours which culminated in a Sepoy revolt.

MC: LG 1/1/1918, p51, posn 82; CAG 18/4/1918, p847, posn 96. Recommendation: From February last to this date Captain Newlands has carried out his duties as Commander of this Trench Mortar Battery excellently. His great courage, zeal and energy have been an inspiring example to all. In the operations at Bullecourt in April and May last and again at Glencorse Wood on 30th September 1917 his work was wonderful. He personally supervised the emplacing of the Stokes guns under very heavy barrage and worked strenuously and fearlessly, thus aiding to a great extent, in the success of these operations.

MID: Unconfirmed.

Recommendation: This man, who was a runner in charge of the rest of the Company Runners, showed great courage and devotion to duty during the operation at Morlancourt on the night 28/29th July 1918. He was mainly responsible that touch was kept with the units right and left and bringing back information as to the progress of the operation. During the following two days whilst in the captured position his work increased, as the only method of communication was by runner. During the whole time the unit was in the line, if a message had to be sent he was always first to answer the call and his absolute disregard of shell fire was mainly responsible for every message getting through with which he was entrusted.

During the carrying of an important message from the front line to Coy H.Qrs. he was blown up by a shell and although dazed and very much shaken he delivered his message safely and was ready for his work again in half an hour, and continued running until the Company was relieved.

Citation: Distinguished service as a flying instructor. Recommendation dated 9th July 1943 and classified as MOST SECRET: 'Formerly an outstanding civil airline pilot, Squadron Leader Purvis was transferred from the Reserve to the Active List of the Royal Australian Air Force on 4th March, 1940. Since then he has shown exemplary loyalty, courage and devotion to duty in his many appointments. Posted to No.6 Squadron on 4th March, 1940, he was responsible for practically all the initial conversion of R.A.A.F. pilots to Hudson aircraft, rendering outstanding service in this respect. This posting was followed by period of service with No.13 Squadron at Darwin, a year as a Flying Instructor at Central Flying School and duty with the Aircraft Production Commission as a test pilot in the early stages of production of Beaufort Aircraft.

In January, 1942, he was posted to No.1 Operational Training Unit as a Flying Instructor on Hudson Aircraft and displayed such qualities of training ability and leadership that he was shortly appointed Officer Commanding a Beaufort Training Squadron of 34 aircraft at that Unit.

On 9 November, 1942, Squadron Leader Purvis was appointed to command No.36 (Transport) Squadron. The work of this Squadron since he assumed command has been outstanding and has played no small part in the successes of the New Guinea campaign, operating as it does between the mainland and New Guinea.

Since the Squadron come within the Command of North Eastern Area 6501 hours have been flown, 8615 personnel transported by Air, the total loading, which includes Jeeps and 25 pounder Guns, being in excess of 4,800,000lbs of freight. This achievement has been possible only through the ability and leadership of Squadron Leader Purvis. He has himself flown 198 hours as Captain including missions to the forward area necessitating fighter cover. He has been largely responsible for the training of transport pilots for his own and other transport Squadrons during this period, and has converted 33 pilots as Captains of D.C.3 Aircraft, and 9 as Captains of D.C.2's.

In his 8265 flying hours he has rendered distinguished service in the science of aviation, and to the Royal Australian Air Force in particular.'

George Henry 'Harry' Purvis was born on 6 May 1909 at Cobar and raised at Carrathool, a town on the Murrumbidgee River in the Riverina District of New South Wales. His father was an engineer at the Great Cobar copper mine and later licensee of the Carrathool Hotel. When Howard Jolly, a World War I early bird, an insurance salesman who gave free flights with every insurance policy sold, came to town Harry's father took up the offer and gave the flight to young Harry, then eleven years old although some reports state nine. After the bi-plane flight Harry was hooked and in his words, 'it was those few shaky minutes in the sky that set me on my course and a lifelong devotion to aviation'. Harry's schooling was conducted as a boarder at Newington College in Sydney and then at Collingwood Technical College in Melbourne where he studied engineering.

Prior to completing his course, Harry's father died and he returned home which was now at Hillston where his mother ran the hotel. The aviation bug was still with him so he moved to a larger town, Griffith, to look for opportunities. He tried for a job with the local Ford dealer to no avail but co-incidentally while there the owner of another business walked through the door and offered him a job with his engineering firm. He later moved on from there and by the time he was twenty he had his own business doing motor and general engineering. Then in May 1931 his life was due to change. Kingsford Smith and a several other notable pilots were visiting town on a barnstorming tour. Harry got an opportunity to talk to Smithy and his chief engineer Tommy Pethybridge and offered him the use of his workshop while they were in town.

G.H.Purvis, Sir Charles Kingsford Smith and Wilfred Kingsford Smith (his brother) after arrival at Archerfield from their flight in D.H.50 Southern Cross midjet

He had the chance to talk at length to Tommy and expressed his enthusiasm for flying. Tommy then told him that a plane which would suit him was an Avro Avian which Charles Ulm owned and wanted to sell for five hundred pounds to raise cash for another England-Australia record attempt.

After much soul searching, Harry sold his business and moved to Sydney to live as a boarder with Tommy Pethybridge's family at Marrickville then joined Tommy at Mascot and purchased Charles Ulm's aircraft. He now had an airplane but no licence. Fortunately, Smithy and Ulm had a small flying school and the instructor was G.U. 'Scotty' Allan, destined to become a senior figure in Australian aviation. When he qualified for his pilot's licence, he and Tommy, who was free for a time while Smithy was on one of his periodic flights to England, went on barnstorming tours along the north coast of New South Wales in his aircraft, named Southern Cross Pup with Smithy's permission.

In 1932 Smithy formed Kingsford Smith Air Service and gave Harry a job on his proposed barnstorming tour around Australia and New Zealand. He also had a spot of dual flying with Smithy in the Southern Cross and flew it over from Hastings, New Zealand in January 1933. By now he was Smithy's chief mechanic and co-pilot for two years.

Another interesting experience of Harry's life was the sale of his plane, a Fokker Universal, to Reg Ansett for one thousand pounds so he could start his fledgling Ansett airline. This plane is portrayed on the front cover of his book, 'Outbook Airman'. Some other of his experiences includes the following: May 1934 sold his Avro Avian to N.G.A.Mendham to begin operations as Salamaua Aerial Transport Coy (MT NG) in July 1934.

5Mar1935 flew WASP Airlines inaugural tri-weekly service, Narromine to Sydney.

1935 he was a pilot with 2UWs Surf Patrol.

5Mar1936 tested Wackett Gannet VH-UVU (the 3rd made) at Mascot and then delivered to WASP Airlines.

16Nov1936 Sydney-Broken Hill service provided by Motor Development Ltd was recommenced and flown by Harry.

1938 chief pilot of ANA air liner, Loila, that left Essendon for Central Australia with passengers to a location thought to be the legendary Lasseters Reef.

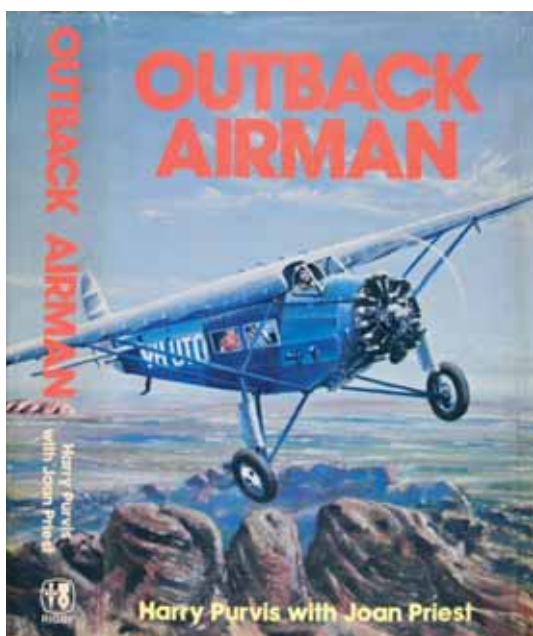

May 1939 G.H.Purvis and H.Cameron accepted as pilots with KNILM (Royal Netherlands Indies Airways). Captain Purvis who had been senior pilot at Sydney for Australian National Airways was appointed as a captain of Douglas and Lockheed types over its various routes.

Feb 1940 Harry was one of six civil pilots licensed to fly Hudson model 14s and who held commissions in the RAAF and who were allocated to instruct service pilots in this aircraft type.

14Feb1947 Manager and Chief Pilot for the Herald Flying Services led the flight for large scale country deliveries of the Sydney Morning Herald to northern New South Wales and on 5May1947 Harry flew the first delivery service with VH-SMH (Sydney Morning Herald) to Tamworth, Coffs Harbour and Evans Head, New South Wales.

8Mar1951 Co-pilot on Frigate Bird II (Catalina VH-ASA) Australia to Chile return survey flight.

Following his recruitment into the RAAF Harry's talents were put to good use training transport pilots for the air force. Such were his achievements that he was recognized with an award of the Air Force Cross with recognition that his efforts had been instrumental in achieving a victorious outcome in the war in New Guinea.

An interesting chapter in Harry's life occurred during WWII after he had flown a RAAF Dakota into the island of Bali in 1945. The Japanese surrender at Tokyo was known but armed troops were still walking around and in control at Bali. Wing Commander Harry Purvis and his four-man crew were all armed but there were 10,000 armed Japanese troops. The flight crew were picked up at the airport and delivered to the Hotel Denpasar where Harry learned that the Japanese General was at his headquarters in the city. Harry sent a message to the General demanding his presence at the hotel as he was acting on the authority of Lord Louis Mountbatten, Supreme Allied Commander, South-West Pacific Area to demand his surrender and in token he must hand over his sword and all Australian prisoners on the island must be released. He also demanded a suite at the hotel for each Australian officer and ten thousand rupees for their use while on the island and further that he would hold the General responsible for their safety. Not knowing what would happen about his bluff, Harry was pleased, and relieved, when the General's aide and eight officers arrived and with much bowing and ceremony handed over the General's sword. When it came to signing an official document, Harry realised none of the Japanese understood English so cheekily he signed his name as Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Harry's other demands were all met including the payment of ten thousand rupees for each officer, this being in the form of Japanese Invasion Money (JIM) which Harry stated in his book was to continue in use as currency for several months after the surrender.

During the war Harry had been CO of the first RAAF transport squadron and later he became Deputy Director of all RAAF transport. Post war he remained with Transport Command to organize a courier service from Morotai to Japan. As part of this he spent time in Japan and saw the devastation caused by the atom bomb and also by the bombing raids on Tokyo. Then he was part of the RAAF flights to Chungking on mainland China to secure a large consignment of pig bristles much needed in Australia to make paint brushes. This was potentially dangerous duty as by now China was in the grip of communism and the hostility towards westerners was obvious.

One of Harry's highlights in 1945 revolved around the making of the film, 'Smithy'. Smithy's famous aircraft, 'Southern Cross', that had been dismantled and put into storage in Canberra was reassembled and the test flight flown out of Duntroon was crewed by Wing Commander H.Purvis (test pilot) with his co-pilot being Wing Commander John Kingsford Smith, nephew of Sir Charles Kingsford Smith. After the flight Harry said, 'I think the old bus is running better than ever it did despite the passage of the years. I am very proud and happy to have flown her once again. I could almost feel the shade of 'Smithy' standing in front of me.'

Harry Purvis discharged from the RAAF on 6 August 1946 and after this, probably one of the most memorable experiences of Harry's flying career would have to be the 1951 Inaugural Survey South Pacific Flight - Australia to Chile and return undertaken in a Catalina flying boat, Frigate Bird II, under the captaincy of P.G.Taylor. The Catalina was a stock RAAF machine taken from those stored at Rathmines flying boat base, New South Wales. This historic flight was the first crossing of the South Pacific to South America and was crewed by P.G.Taylor (Commander and Pilot), G.H.Purvis (Co-pilot), A.Allison (Radio Operator), J.Percival (Executive Officer) and E.L'Huillier (Flight Engineer). It was a 15,000 miles survey flight undertaken on behalf of the Australian Commonwealth Government and was to fly over many areas where no aircraft had flown before and where there were no ground facilities to provide navigational aids or servicing and repair facilities. It departed from Sydney's Rose Bay flying boat base and made numerous stops on route finally arriving at Valparaiso, Chile on 27 March.

After much celebrating and official functions in Chile, the return flight departed Valparaiso on 6 April arriving at Brisbane on 20 April and flown to Sydney the next day. Awaiting the flight was a large crowd including Prime Minister Robert Menzies who greeted and congratulated the crew. The aircraft used was returned to Rathmines and eventually withdrawn from use in 1954. It now is on permanent display in Sydney's Powerhouse Museum. While in Chile President Videla, on behalf of the people of Chile, decorated Captain Taylor with the Order of Bernardo O'Higgins (Commander grade). He said 'This is the highest distinction which can be awarded a foreigner, but we consider you and the members of your crew citizens of Chile.' General Aurelio Caledon, Commander-in-Chief of the Chilean Air Force awarded Captain Taylor the honorary title of 'Chilean War Pilot'. Then General Caledon and General Jorge Gana Eastman, Director of Civil Aeronautics, also presented the whole crew of the Frigate Bird II with citations and Chilean Air Force wings and made them honorary members of the Chilean Air Force. Captain Purvis, first officer of the flight, was presented with a Chilean flag by the Santiago Rotary Club to deliver to the Rotary Club at Camden, Sydney.

Harry finished his career flying tourists to the Pacific islands and Ayers Rock. During his fifty years of flying Harry Purvis flew over 25,000 miles and was one of Australia's greatest adventurers in aviation. He died in Cairns, North Queensland in 1980 at the age of 71.

AM: in 1995 'In recognition of service to the Anglican Church of Australia to education and to the community.'

Rev Dr Canon Stuart Barton Babbage AM was born at Auckland in New Zealand on 4 January 1916 and was educated at Auckland Grammar state school. He had a call to religious life at the young age of 16. At the same age he enrolled at Auckland University College to study Arts and Journalism and pursued majors in History and Economics. He joined the Evangelical Union on campus eventually becoming President. He was awarded a scholarship to St John's College where he completed his degree and then continued on to complete a Masters of Arts in History.

Stuart left New Zealand in 1937 for England via Sydney to study theology. During his five day stopover he met several senior Anglican clerics including the Archbishop of Sydney, Howard Mowl. In England he enrolled at the Bible Churchmen's Missionary and Theological College and passed the ordination exams. He was still too young to be ordained to the ministry so he enrolled in a PhD at King's College. Stuart was ordained into the ministry on 17 December 1939 and placed at a small village on the outskirts of London. After three years he applied to join the air force and was made an air force chaplain and in 1942 was posted to Fetwell, a major base for heavy bombers in Norfolk. While here he met his future wife, Flight Officer Elizabeth King. They were married in May 1943 just before Stuart was posted overseas for two years to Iraq and then Persia.

Post war Stuart and his wife moved to Sydney where he was appointed Diocesan Missioner for the Anglican Church, then at the age of thirty he was appointed 3rd Dean of Sydney. At this time he was a regular writer on religion and life in the Sydney Morning Herald and one of his highlights was welcoming Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery of Alamein when he visited Sydney. He also was a regular religious instructor at Fort Street Boy's High School where he had a positive influence on many students as later attested to by Justice Michael Kirby. In 1953 he was appointed Principal of Ridley College in Melbourne where he remained until 1963. He was also on the Billy Graham Crusade Committee in 1959 and held the post of Dean of Melbourne as well as his position at Ridley College.

He held various overseas teaching roles in England and America and later was appointed as Second Master of New College at the University of New South Wales, and in 1973 Master. When the Archbishop of Sydney died Stuart was asked to fill the short term role of Acting Dean of Sydney and he also assumed the role of Registrar of the Australian College of Theology which he fulfilled until 1972. He produced several studies including seven books, one of which was his life story, Memoirs of a Loose Canon, launched by Gough Whitlam in 2004.

Rev Stuart Babbage was commemorated and interred at a service at St Jude's Anglican Church, Randwick on 23 November 2012, a church where he was a regular preacher.

Bushie was Australia's first war dog. Hailing from Wentworth Falls in the NSW Blue Mountains area he was gang-pressed into service as a mascot with the New South Wales Bushmen's Contingent of February 1900. He was named by the Lieutenant Governor and had his portrait painted by renowned artist, Wollaston J.Thomas. Bushie was a reluctant transcript to South Africa, however, word of him reached Queen Victoria who let it be known she would be keen to accept him. Thus, at war's end, Bushie was taken to England to live out his life in the Royal household.
