Military Tribute Medal to a Penrith Policeman

4130*

Penrith Volunteer Rifles Tribute Medal, 1861, in 18ct gold (30.4g; 40.6mm) with suspension bar and pin brooch suspender, maker's mark partially missing but reads, 'C/WS', medal has machine turned edge, obverse, chisel-cut engraved with the Royal Coat-of-Arms, reverse with thirteen line inscription, the first three lines are very finely chisel-cut engraved in gothic style and the remaining lines are engraved in a freehand copperplate style, 'Presented to/William McCook/of Penrith/By his Comrades in arms/for his gallant and zealous/conduct in raising and/organizing the Penrith Volun-/teer Rifles for the defence of/our Queen and Country/thereby setting an exam-/ple to the rest of the/Colony of N.S.W./1861'. With original ribbon which is split horizontally at base so is no longer attached to suspender, the medal with hairlines and edge nick on reverse, otherwise very fine and being unique it is of utmost rarity and a significant part of NSW colonial police and military history and Penrith's local history.

Together with an original cutting from the Sydney Morning Herald newspaper at the time describing the presentation to Mr M'Cook (sic, note M'Cook not McCook as is on medal). The article reads,

'Presentation to Mr. M'Cook of Penrith. - Just previous to the departure of the Penrith volunteers for Sydney, to take part in the review before his Excellency Sir W. Denison, on the 22nd of last month, the members of the corps presented a handsome gold medal to Mr. William M'Cook, chief constable of Penrith, as a tribute of respect and admiration for his unceasing exertions in organizing the volunteer corps of that town. The medal bore the following inscription:- "Presented to Mr. William M'Cook, of Penrith, by his comrades in arms, for his gallant and zealous conduct in raising and organizing the Penrith Volunteer Rifles for the defence of our Queen and country, thereby setting an example to the rest of the colony of New South Wales, 1861" (note there are slight variances between the actual inscription and that published in the newspaper - journalistic licence excuses this).

Many of our readers may remember that Mr. M'Cook was, some years ago, Inspector of police in Sydney, and took a lively interest in establishing the volunteer corps that was formed in this city at that time. He was so convinced of the value and necessity of the volunteer movement that, since he accepted the office of chief constable of Penrith, he has been indefatigable in his endeavour to raise a corps in that locality. All who were present at the review must have remarked the steadiness and solidity with which the gallant little band from Penrith, who marched in front in their grey uniforms, went through the manoeuvres of the day; and, without making any invidious distinction we may safely say that they did not attract the least share of public attention on that occasion. If the Penrith men have made such progress in the art of war as may well entitle them to the admiration of their fellow townsmen, it is to Mr. William M'Cook they are indebted for their efficiency.'

Arthur John Alfred Baldock (1898-1950) author of Paradise Lost: And Its Critics, published 1961. In the Sydney Morning Herald, tuesday 12 June 1934, page 8 it was reported, 'The Senate of the University of Sydney at its meeting yesterday elected Mr. A. J. A. Waldock, lecturer in English, to the chair of English Literature, which has been vacant since the death of Professor J. Le Gay Brereton in February, 1933. The committee of advice in England and within the University concurred in recommending Mr. Waldock on all essential grounds.'

Professor Waldock is the son of the Rev Dr. A. J. Waldock, of Canberra, and a graduate of Sydney University. He took his B A degree in 1918, with first-class honours in English and history, won the Coulson and James Coultts scholarships for English, and the Fraser scholarship for history. He graduated M A in 1925, again taking first-class honours and the University medal. He was appointed an Instructor in English on the staff of the Royal Australian Naval College Jervis Bay, but after a few months returned to the University as a lecturer in English. He has since held that office, and has attained a high position in Australian literary scholarship.

Professor Waldock's chief publication is 'Hamlet - A Study in Critical Method,' about which the chief Shakespearean critics have spoken appreciatively. An equally striking achievement was Professor Waldock's 'Thomas Hardy and the Dynasts,' written as a lecture for the Australian English Association and printed only in that association's series of leaflets, but now being sought for republication in England.

Both Professor Waldock and Professor Le Gay Brereton were pupils of Professor Sir Mungo MacCallum, and the tradition of the School of Modern Literature studies created by him will, therefore, continue.'

The award was in recognition of 'his personal courage and determination'.

From 1942 to 1945 he was gunnery officer in HMAS Shropshire when he received another DSC for his 'gallantry and skill' at Leyte Gulf in October 1944. He was also twice mentioned in despatches.

GM: LG 19/2/1946; CAG 39 28/2/1946, p489, presented by the Governor-General at Government House, Sydney on 11/9/1947.

Citation: Courage when aircraft crashed near Mascot 19/7/1945.

'On the evening of the 19th July 1945, a Liberator with a compliment of twelve, including senior Royal Naval Officers, crashed a short distance from Mascot drome, immediately after take off.

The fuselage came to rest beneath a viaduct over Muddy Creek and burst into flames. Blazing petrol spread over the water in which the wreck was partially submerged - entirely surrounding it with an area of fire.

Mr. Knowles who lives nearby rushed to the scene of the crash and, unaided extricated one body from the wreckage and with some assistance extricated two more. After removing the third body, Knowles was in such an exhausted condition as a result of burns, immersion and carbon monoxide poisoning that he collapsed.

The courage and utter disregard of personal safety displayed by Mr. Gordon Knowles is deserving of the highest praise.

The condition of Mr. Gordon Knowles, 25, who made an heroic attempt to rescue some of the crew and passengers from the blazing plane is still serious. He is suffering from burns and shock.'

The Commander-in-Chief of the British Pacific Fleet (Admiral) Sir Bruce Fraser sent the following letter to Mr. Knowles.

'Besides the crew, the aircraft carried a number of Royal Navy men who were personally known to me and I want to thank you on behalf of the Royal Navy in the Pacific for your very gallant action and disregard of your own personal safety.'

Royal Shipwreck Relief Humane Society of N.S.W. citation:

'On 19th July 1945, after an R.A.F. transport plane crashed into a muddy creek, near Mascot Airport, at night, Mr. Knowles made heroic attempts to rescue some of the passengers and crew.

Regardless of his personal safety, repeatedly entered and dived into the Petrol-Flaming water in his brave efforts to reach the victims of the tragic accident.

Mr. Knowles was later taken to hospital suffering from shocks and burns.'

Bronze Medals of the Society were presented to Charles Snook, James Ivey, and Edward Beatty, who showed outstanding courage at the same tragedy.

St John Bronze Life-Saving Medal citation:

Gordon Knowles (Sydney, N.S.W., Brigade Overseas), for endeavouring to save the crew of a R.A.F. aeroplane which had crashed at Sydney. All the men were burnt to death and Knowles was badly injured.'

(Note: Gordon Knowles was a member of St George Volunteer Motor Transport Ambulance).

A newspaper account of the incident went into more detail when it reported as follows:

'Twelve men were killed when an RAF Transport Command plane crashed into a concrete bridge spanning Cooks River North, Brighton, early this evening. Up to a late hour eleven of the bodies had been recovered. A terrific explosion shook the neighbourhood when the plane struck the bridge. Residents two miles away said houses trembled and doors and windows rattled. Some eye witnesses said that the plane exploded in mid-air, but generally it was thought the explosion occurred when the craft first struck a clump of trees, the tops of which were cut as though by a knife.

The tragedy occurred in the midst of a vast expanse of parkland. Immediately it crashed, the plane burst into flame, and the wreckage burned for several hours Great clouds of smoke brightly tinted by the flames belched upward from the river. The tragedy was marked by heroic efforts of a civilian and a fireman who were among the first to arrive and who made valiant efforts to bring bodies to the bank of the river. The civilian was Gordon Knowles of Arncliffe.

Risking his life, he crawled along a girder of the bridge and plunged into the river when he saw the body of one of the victims. While he was doing this, a flare from the wreckage exploded and he was struck on the head by the missile. He gamely stuck to his task however, and brought the body ashore. With the assistance of a fireman and two other civilians he succeeded in bringing two other bodies to the bank of the river. The wreckage was burning fiercely and the heat was terrific. The glow in the sky from the fire could be seen for many miles. Knowles gave up his heroic efforts only when he fell exhausted and had suffered poisoning from carbon monoxide fumes.'

Ex Spink Auctions (Australia) Sale 32 (lot 1206) May 1990.

This medal was specially struck by the firm, A.W. Dobie and Company of Perth, W.A., to mark the occasion of Queen Victoria's 60th year of reign, her Diamond Jubilee. It was decided that each member of the Police Force of long service and good character should receive a commemorative medal of either gold or silver, according to their rank. Sergeants and below received silver while gold was awarded to Sub-Inspectors, Inspectors and one to a civilian, a Chief Clerk & Accountant with the Service. Of the ten gold medals issued, only two have been sighted in the market, namely that issued to Inspector E.G. Back and this one to Sub-Inspector W.C. Lawrence which was last sold by us 24 years ago and has been in this private collection ever since.

William C. Lawrence, Superintendent, the second in command of the Western Australia police force, was born at Bunbury on 4 June 1848, and educated at the same school at which the late Premier, Sir John Forrest, received his education. In July 1871 Mr. Lawrence joined the force and the records of his official career in the departmental books are without one single black mark against him during the whole of his thirty years of service. Three years after he joined the force Constable Lawrence was promoted to the position of lance-Corporal, a rank that has since been abolished. In 1875 he became first-class constable, in 1879 corporal, in 1880 lance-corporal, in 1882 sergeant, in 1884 acting sub-inspector of the Perth District and detective department. He then received the rank of first-class sergeant, his appointment to which was followed in 1885 by promotion to the rank of sub-inspector in charge of the detective department. In 1893 Mr Lawrence became inspector and in 1900 he reached the highest rank in the service outside the position of Commissioner - that of Superintendent. Mr. Lawrence retired at the age of 64 in 1912.

Superintendent Lawrence was one of the first to visit the Murchison District, whither he was dispatched in search of two brothers, Clarkson, who attempted to travel overland with a number of horses and cattle. They had, it was found, been killed by a tribe of cannibal blacks, but Mr. Lawrence was successful in obtaining the bones of the murdered brothers and returning with them to the capital. It formed part of the superintendent's duties from time to time to investigate charges of cruelty to aboriginals by white settlers. While making these enquiries and framing his reports Mr. Lawrence was stationed at Roebourne, whence he was transferred to Kimberley to assist in the dispersal of a tribe of blacks which had become exceedingly lawless owing to the immunity from capture enjoyed by two notorious aboriginals named 'Pigeon' and 'Captain', who had committed numerous murders and robberies. 'Pigeon' was ultimately shot, 'Captain' arrested and sentenced to death, and the blacks restored to submission.

Sir Hugh Raymond Guy Poate (1884-1961), surgeon, was born on 16 January 1884 at Summer Hill, Sydney. He graduated in medicine at Sydney University in 1907 and was commissioned in the Australian Army Medical Corps in 1909. In August 1914 he enlisted as a Captain in the Australian Imperial Force, helped to recruit the 1st Field Ambulance and was promoted Major in February 1915. He was in charge of transports ferrying wounded back from Gallipoli to Egypt. During these voyages he spent much of his time operating, earning the nickname 'Lightning' for his swift and deft surgical technique. He moved with No.3 Australian General Hospital to England in September, then to Abbeville, France, in March 1917 and during the heavy fighting at Ypres often operated for sixteen hours a day. He had been promoted Lieutenant-Colonel in February. Eventually his health broke down, and he was repatriated late in 1917.

Back in Sydney, Poate conducted a busy private practice, operating mainly at R.P.A.H. He regularly undertook country tours in a chartered Tiger Moth aircraft. In 1929 he was appointed consulting surgeon to the Royal Australian Air Force, and was Group Captain during World War II. In 1938 he became lecturer in postgraduate surgery and director of the surgical unit at Prince Henry Hospital.

Deeply interested in the Order of St John of Jerusalem, Poate joined the St John Ambulance Brigade in 1913 and was State commissioner in 1929-42; the brigade flourished under his direction. He influenced all areas of the work of the order and its relations with its English headquarters and the Crown; in 1935 he was appointed Knight of Grace. When a commandery was formed to unite the order's State branches in 1942, Poate became its administrative head. In 1947, when the commandery was granted priory status as an independent branch of the English order, Poate became its chief executive as sub-prior, then chancellor. Under his direction, St John rose to national prominence as a voluntary agency specializing in health care and training. In 1955 he became the first Australian to be promoted bailiff grand cross.

Appointed M.V.O. in 1947 and knighted in 1952. He died on 26 January 1961 at his Bellevue Hill home and was cremated with Anglican rites. His portrait by Joshua Smith hangs in the headquarters of St John Ambulance Australia, Canberra. There is a plaque in his honour at St Andrews Cathedral, George & Bathurst Streets, Sydney, NSW.

The Sir Hugh Poate Training Centre, named in his honour, is located in Blaxland in the Blue Mountains, west of Sydney. It consists of dormitory accommodation, training rooms, main hall and parade ground and some bushland area. This facility is used for training St John Ambulance volunteers.

Autographed Gallipoli Map

Gallipoli Landing Bugle

4434*

Gallipoli bugle, carried by a bugler of the 2nd Brigade, 1st Division at the Gallipoli Landing on 25 April 1915, wounded on that day and later died; the bugle bears a silver shield affixed to the outside of the horn section and it is inscribed, 'To/F.H.SCHAFFER. Esq./from/Capt. J.McCarthy. 6th Batt A.I.F./25.3.29/This Bugle/was Carried by a Bugler/of the 2nd Bgde. 1st Divn./at the Gallipoli Landing/When he Became a Casualty/and later/Died of Wounds' and at the base is marked 'SILVER'. With many bumps and bruises from combat, otherwise a very good historic piece from one of Australia's most historic and defining events, the Gallipoli Landing.

$15,000

According to records held by the Australian War Memorial, their extensive collection of artefacts includes a diary written by the same Capt. Herbert Joseph McCarthy (AWM reference file IDRL/0424). The diary includes notations of his service in Egypt, Ottoman Turkey and Gallipoli. Captain McCarthy was demobbed in 1918.

4435*

Gallipoli map on poster with title 'Autographs of Gallipoli Soldiers', features the Gallipoli Peninsula drawn on a large parchment/cloth (see footnote) in coloured Indian inks, and included are a series of signature boxes, each with a signature, some with more than one but totalling about 125, many with name, rank and unit and some with serial number, also shown on the map are landmarks which came into use after the landing, namely Walker's Ridge, Shrapnel Valley, Quins (sic) Post and Anzac, the poster measuring about 55x86cm is professionally mapped and framed under museum quality anti ultraviolet light perspex, the timber frame measuring approx 71x103cm, the map is hand marked, 'Copied from H.E.Robinson's Map'. Some foxing, otherwise mostly very fine and historic.

The map poster is supposedly a piece of starched bedsheet. The consignor had the map framed and he stated that the framer showed him a section of the map that had been repaired with a small, sewn in patch, thus confirming that it is indeed made of a linen material. This of course makes perfect sense if we make the assumption that the map has been signed when the various signatories have been passing through a particular hospital or a hospital recovery area where the map has been permanently located.

H.E.Robinson did produce a map of the Dardanelles c1915 which showed the landing place of the Anzacs. The company became very busy during the war as there was a strong demand for maps that showed various battle locations in the Mediterranean and Europe and these were updated as more information was released that showed the progress of the allies.

One of their Gallipoli maps was published for Gerald R. Campbell, April 12, 1916, with proceeds from sales to go to the War Fund. This was probably Colonel Gerald Ross Campbell, Sea Transport Command, who was involved in the transportation of troops between Australia and various destinations.

Four of the names on the Gallipoli map poster that only came into use after the landing on 25 April are Walker's Ridge named after Brig-Gen Harold Walker who commanded NZ Infantry at the landing and established his headquarters at that time around what became known as Walkers Ridge. Another name is Shrapnel Valley so called because in the early days after the landing it was the main route up from the beach area to the frontline. A third distinctive name on the map is Quins (sic) post, named after Major Hugh Quinn of 15 Bn, who garrisoned this position on 29 April and held it for nearly one week despite fierce Turkish attacks. He was killed here on 29 May. The last name used is Anzac, a name that was recommended for use by General Birdwood. On the 29 April he recommended that the original landing site be called Anzac Cove and the surrounding area occupied by his troops be called Anzac. Interestingly, Anzac Cove is not marked on the map but Anzac is shown. It is also noted that Gaba Tepe is spelt Gaba Tepeh.

Approximately one quarter of the signatories' service records have been checked. One of the signatures belongs to Private George Pappas of 13 Bn who was awarded a DCM for gallantry at Gallipoli on 4th May near Gaba Tepe. He volunteered to bring in a wounded man under heavy machine gun fire and succeeded in carrying him to a safe place. Pte Pappas was wounded in the head on 29 May and subsequently returned to Australia on 15 August and was discharged. His award was promulgated in the London Gazette on 15 July 1915, after he was wounded but before he returned to Australia. When he signed the map, he has written DCM after his name so presumably he has signed after 15 July.

Another signature belongs to Fred Glover, 6/1186, who was a New Zealand soldier wounded in action. He was sent to Cairo on 10 June 1915 and returned to New Zealand on 15 July and then discharged on 2 October.

A third signature of interest is that of George John Tracy, London Convalescent Department AAMC. For a time he was working as a masseur treating convalescing wounded. He also served on HMAT Runic. He thought he was entitled to the 1914-15 Star but his request was rejected because as a member of the Convalescent Depot he did not land in a theatre of war prior to midnight on 31 December 1915 and as the transport 'Runic' was not a hospital ship he did not qualify for the medal. Obviously he has been in the location of the map poster and more than likely this was in a convalescent area.

This check of signatures has also revealed that almost all those examined were sent to hospital as wounded, injured or ill. The chances of this many people signing before going into action at Gallipoli and then being hospitalised is virtually impossible odds so it appears the poster was signed after the men were injured.

Was it signed on the return trip to Australia? Not likely as the men were on different ships and the ships arrived at different cities.

Was it signed after the war? No, because at least one of the signatories returned to Australia then returned overseas and subsequently died of illness in France on 24 July 1917.

One name checked was posted as a deserter on 8 June 1915. There is no record of him ever going to Gallipoli and he was awarded no medals because of his desertion. He was in the UK on 15 February so between that date and the date of desertion he could have visited someone at a hospital or recuperation area and signed the poster under false pretences.

There are a few other signatures which are unexplained. Two appear to be of American servicemen, both from Texas and another two are signed without rank, one with Rabaul after name and the other with Madang, Friedrich-Wilhelmshafen (the old German name for Madang). Perhaps the Americans were also injured and in hospital or recuperating and the other two signatures were of staff or seamen involved in the treatment or repatriation of wounded.

Based on the above details it would appear therefore that the map poster was probably signed over a period of time by various soldiers as they passed through a hospital or convalescing area.
