DCM: LG 3/9/1918, p10370, posn 13; COA 4/2/1919, p124, posn 3.

Recommendation: On night 18th/19th May this N.C.O. was one of a party detailed to throw two infantry bridges across the Ancre in "No Man's Land" near Ville-Sur-Ancre near Albert, preparatory to an attack on 19th May.

To expedite erection he and a Sapper crossed to the enemy side of the river below the bridge site and were making their way upstream when they encountered an enemy patrol. After inflicting casualties on the enemy both were wounded and, under fire, L/Cpl. Hammond assisted his comrade back 200 yards to a stretcher bearer's post. He then re-crossed the stream and again attempted to reach the site but was wounded again, and being almost surrounded swam across the river and rejoined his party just in time to help launch the first bridge before fainting.

John Hartwell Hammond, plumber and seaman, age 44, born at St John's, New Brunswick, Canada; Enl.30Nov1915 at Brisbane, Qld; Emb.20Apr1916 at rank of Sapper; to Lance Corporal 30Sep1917; served in Belgium and France; WIA 19May1918 GSW arm and leg, France; RTA 20Nov1918; Disch.15Feb1919 as Medically Unfit with medical report stating multiple gunshot wounds in 22 places.

DCM: LG 1/1/1918, p65, posn 25; CAG 18/4/1918, p848, posn 27.

Recommendation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. At Lagincourt during May 1917, he was in command of a platoon defending a very important isolated post. He controlled his men in a most efficient manner, disregarding danger, and was able to secure very important information concerning the movements of the enemy in that sector. His unflinching cheerfulness and courage gained for him the utmost confidence and respect of his men.

Leonard George Jarvis, plumber, age 19, born at Bunbury, WA; Enl.14Jul1915 at Perth, WA; Emb.18Nov1915; RTA 24May1919; Disch.16Jul1919. Jarvis claimed that his DCM was lost and it was replaced in August 1932. He died in 1958 and in 1960 the trustee of his estate returned the DCM medal to the Dept of the Army. Therefore, the medal on offer here appears to be the original that was reported lost in 1932.

British War Medal 1914-18 to KIA Gallipoli. 168 Pte. J.Hay. 8-L.H.R. A.I.F. Impressed. Toned good very fine.

John Hay, clerk with the Union Bank, age 26, born at Cobden, Victoria; Enl.10Sep1914 at Melbourne, Victoria; Emb.25Feb1915; to Gallipoli 15May1915; KIA 07Aug1915 at the charge at The Nek; no known grave, commemorated on The Lone Pine Memorial at Gallipoli.

The charge at The Nek was made on the morning of the 7 August 1915. The attack began with an artillery bombardment of the Turkish positions but the bulk of the shells fell beyond their target and the bombardment was halted seven minutes early thus giving the Turkish troops the opportunity to regroup. The 8th Light Horse was to lead the attack and held off their assault until the allotted time of 4.30am. Because of this delay, when they were the first to go over the top they were shot down by Turkish rifle and machine gun fire with many dying only metres out of their trenches. The second line of attack, also from the 8th, scrambled over the dead and wounded to make their attack but were also shot down. During the charge, the 8th LHR suffered 154 killed and 80 wounded.

Recommendation: During the operation on the morning of 11th August 1918 against the enemy's positions East of Framerville and Vauvillers, near Amiens, the carrying party for the mortars going forward in the attack, became temporarily disorganised through the heavy B.O.S. barrage which the enemy brought down on our jumping off line at the commencement of the attack. Lance Corporal Lipscombe, who was in charge of another mortar, standing by for orders, immediately gathered what men he could and took them forward with ammunition, making no less than five trips through heavy shell and machine gun and rifle fire. It was through his fine example and utter disregard for personal safety, that the much needed ammunition was got forward to the gun positions.

George Lipscombe, farmer, age 20, born at Hobart, Tas; Enl.19Feb1915 at Claremont, Tas; Emb.29Jun1915; served in Gallipoli, Middle East and France; WIA 05May1917 GSW left arm, France: RTA 18May1919; Disch.07Nov1919.

Entitled to War Medal 1939-45.

In March 1930 William Devine claimed his medals were stolen by a young boy who lived nearby and that the house the boy lived in burnt to the ground, so probably the medals were buried amongst the rubble. There is no indication that he was ever issued with any replacement medals so perhaps he later found the original medals which appear to be those here offered.

Extract from service file, a typed letter addressed to The Commandant, Administrative Headquarters London - 'Dear Sir, I wish to be clearly understood that I don't want my husband, the under-mentioned, to take his discharge from the A.I.F. in any other place than Hobart, Tasmania, where he enlisted from. Many of our men are losing their home influence and getting careless as to whether they return to their dependants here or not and I have no wish to be left unprovided for in the colonies. I notified the Minister of Defence, Melbourne in March last to the above effect and he said my letter and been referred to you. Kindly see that my request to the above is carried out and that there is no trouble later on', signed Rosina Anne Hurburgh.

Entitled to MM: LG 24/1/1919, p1250, posn 89; CAG 23/5/1919, p897, posn 53.

Recommendation: On the morning of the 8th August, 1918, No.398 J. Coakley, was in charge of works - repairing roads in the long valley about 3,000 yards south west of Cerisy, about Q.13 - which were necessary to be in a fit state for artillery and other transport at an early hour, in order that the advance might be carried on to its final objective. Owing greatly to the way in which Corporal Coakley handled his men under hostile machine gun and artillery fire, and the rapidity with which he got his men onto their works, the successful completion of the work was finally due. Throughout the whole operations he showed a splendid example of keenness and devotion to duty which is essential for the carrying out of urgent works of this nature.

John Coakley, seaman, age 36, born at Queenstown, Ireland, residing at Sydney, NSW; service of 7 months with Naval and Military Expeditionary Force; Enl.12Jan1916 at Liverpool, NSW, in AIF; next of kin shown as brother, Cornelius Coakley, Portsmouth, near Boston, USA; Emb.06Jun1916; to France 24Nov1916; attached to Divisional HQs, Yukon Pack as instructor in the field, 15May1917; rejoined unit 23May1917; 15Sep1918 awarded MM for devotion to duty and sterling courage under shell and machine gun fire; RTA 01Jul1919; Disch.09Apr1920 Medically Unfit with Malaria.

Records state that Pte Coakley was awarded 1914-15 Star for service with ANM&EF and the British War Medal 1914-18 and Victory Medal 1914-19 for service with AIF. In 1936 a request was made on behalf of Mrs Coakley to Army Base Records for replacement medals for the Military Medal and the British War Medal of her husband John Coakley as they had been stolen by someone during his funeral after he died of TB in Randwick Hospital. The theft was reported to the Police but no trace of the missing medals could be found. The Army replied on 18 Feb 1936 and advised that Regulations prohibited the replacement of medals of a deceased soldier.

Entitled to Belgian Croix de Guerre: LG 5/4/1919, p4528, posn 9; CAG 23/7/1919, p1170, posn 15.

Recommendation: During the attack on Peronne on 1st September, 1918, he brought forward ammunition, water and rations to the front line under very heavy artillery and machine gun fire. Once when his ration party was all wounded he collected the stragglers from all units and stretcher bearers returning from the R.A.P. and formed a carrying party from these. He continued this work throughout the whole night, displaying remarkable courage and initiative. It was solely owing to this N.C.O. that the rations for his Company were taken forward to the front line.

USA Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Ribbon: awarded by General Douglas MacArthur in a letter dated 23 Sept 1945 under the letterhead of 'General Headquarters, United States Army Forces, Pacific', addressed to Mr. Norman E. Brown, Australian Department of Information, C/O Public Relations Office, ADVON, GHQ, AFPAC, APO 500. The letter reads 'Dear Mr. Brown: It is a real pleasure to me to award you the Asiatic-Pacific Service Ribbon in view of your long and meritorious service in the Pacific Area with the forces of this command. You have added luster to the difficult, dangerous and arduous profession of War Correspondent.' It is signed personally 'Douglas Mac Arthur.

Norman Edson Brown, Press Photographer at John Fairfax & Sons, born 12Jun1912 at Fremantle, WA; applied for accreditation as a War Correspondent (Photographer) on 26Jan1943 at Sydney; Australian Licence No.238 was issued to him as representative of the Department of Information as still photographer, accredited to New Guinea (letter dated 04Feb1943 from Director General of Public Relations to Major Howard, Aust. Public Relations Liaison Officer, G.H.Q., S.W.P. Area); War Correspondent badges and instructions were also issued to him; he was not a member of the Australian Military Forces but was employed by the Department of Information as an accredited war photographer; he served for a considerable period in New Guinea with both the Australian and US Forces; Disch.03Feb1945 as Captain, War Correspondent.

Norman Brown was 31 years of age and working as a press photographer for the Sydney Morning Herald when he was enlisted by the Commonwealth of Australia Department of Information as a still photographer. He was accredited as a War Correspondent and sent to New Guinea where he was embedded with Australian and later American Forces, unarmed except for his camera and often on the front line. Some of the locations he covered include Port Moresby, Yule Island, Milne Bay, Goodenough Island, Kokoda Track, Popondetta, Oro Bay to Sanananda, Lae, Finschhafen, Jevvenang, Satelberg, Wandakai, Nuzen, Sio, Madang, Alexishafen, Karkar Island, Sarang Harbour, Rempi, Kiriwina in Trobrian Islands, Hollandia, Aitapoe and many other places.

For seventeen months he was under the direct command of General Douglas MacArthur for photographic assignments with all three branches of the US Armed Forces. On one occasion a Beaufort aircraft in which he was traveling crash landed when its landing gear failed but he survived serious injury. He contracted malaria and was sent home several times for treatment but always returned to the front.

After the war Norman returned to his work as a press photographer and in 1951 moved to Melbourne where he continued his photography career with the Melbourne Herald and Weekly Times newspaper. In 1958 his son, Ian Brown, joined the same organization as a cadet photographer, the first father/son team to work for this newspaper.

As stated above, Norman Edson Brown received a personal letter of thanks from General Douglas MacArthur along with the award of the US Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Ribbon. Many of Mr. Brown's wartime photographs are in the Australian War Memorial, a fitting tribute to a true professional.

Citation: to Bombardier (Temporary Sergeant) Raymond Thomas McGrath.

'On the 25th January 1969, Sergeant R.T. McGrath was acting as an assistant instructor whilst students of 113/69 Battle Efficiency Course were undergoing live grenade-throwing practice on the grenade assault range at the Jungle Training Centre, Canungra.

Sergeant McGrath was required to supervise students whilst they moved to, and threw grenades from, operational-type throwing pits.

At one of these throwing points, Sergeant McGrath was in a revetted slit trench with Private G.L. Moss. Private Moss, after pulling the pin from a grenade, accidentally dropped the grenade into the trench and was momentarily shocked into immobility.

In the ensuing seconds before the grenade exploded, Sergeant McGrath, without hesitation or thought for his own safety, threw Private Moss from the trench and then attempted to get clear himself. Unfortunately he did not have time to leave the pit completely, and when the grenade exploded, he sustained multiple light shrapnel wounds to the left leg.

This unselfish act of courage, together with his stoical indifference to pain during his subsequent evacuation, reflects great credit on Sergeant McGrath. His actions and conduct were in keeping with the highest ideals of service life.

Raymond Thomas McGrath, born 31Aug1940 at Iona, Gippsland, Victoria; Enl.06Mar1963; Emb.24May1965 on HMAS Sydney; Disemb.16Jun1964 at Malaysia (Penang); detached to 3RAR; served in Vietnam 11Mar1970 - 12 Mar1971 as T/Sgt with 4th Field Regt; Disch 13Aug1985 as WOII.

Raymond Thomas McGrath was born in Victoria's Gippsland although it was a family legend that the birth was registered in nearby Bunyip, a place which few believed existed. He was one of five children of dairy farmers Les and Molly but as the small family farm could not support all the children Ray began his working life in a general store, later moving on to Nestle's milk factory at Dennington.

When Ray's parents decided to sell up and move to a larger property in Western Australia, he decided to enlist in the Army in 1963. After service in Malaysia with 111 Air Defence Battery during the Confrontation with Indonesia he was posted to the Jungle Training Centre at Canungra as an instructor in the tough Battle Efficiency Course. Many of the students attending this course were National Servicemen, including Private Graham Moss, a rifleman en route to the reinforcement unit at the Australian Task Force at Nui Dat in Phuoc Tuy Province, South Vietnam. Sergeant McGrath's role on this particular morning was to supervise students as they moved to and threw grenades from a revetted slit trench. When Private Moss pulled the pin from his grenade he accidentally dropped the grenade into the trench and momentarily froze.

Typically, training grenades were fitted with a seven second fuse and Sergeant McGrath without hesitation threw Private Moss from the trench and then attempted to get clear himself. He had not completely exited the trench when the grenade exploded, inflicting multiple shrapnel wounds to his left leg. Sergeant McGrath was subsequently awarded the George Medal for gallantry, the second highest award for bravery in such circumstances after the George Cross. He then moved to Townsville in 1969 with 4th Field Regiment, Royal Australian Artillery which was preparing to deploy to Vietnam.

By now, Ray was 29, single and living in the Sergeants' mess with a couple of equally unattached mates, a combination who were fond of a drink and a party, worked hard and played harder. Ray McGrath had one other notable trait, his fondness for chillies. In whichever mess he lived, chilli bushes would mysteriously sprout in the decorative plant pots, and he was even reputed to have had chilli bushes growing by his tent in Vietnam.

After Vietnam his career path followed the usual Army progression of training and regimental appointments including as a Warrant Officer on the training cadre of 7 Field Regiment, an Army Reserve unit in Newcastle in 1979. It was here that he met Beverly Cameron and at the age of 42, Ray married Beverly in Townsville in 1982 acquiring in the process an instant adult family of two sons and a daughter. Three years later in 1985, Ray left the Army after 22 years service and the couple settled at Deception Bay where he found employment in the security industry. A keen fisherman, he indulged in fishing and camping with his children and grandchildren, keeping in touch with his Army mates and never losing his love of a good party. In June 2003 he returned to Malaysia with fellow air defenders to receive the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal from the Malaysian Chief of the Defence Force for his service during the confrontation. The citation read in part, 'for distinguished chivalry, gallantry and sacrifice', ideals which Ray McGrath lived up to even in death, donating his kidneys and corneas for transplant.

Ray McGrath died on 19 September 2006 of complications following heart surgery. He was survived by Beverly, their children, eight grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Citation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. This officer planned and carried out a raid for the purpose of securing identifications. Personally leading one of the sections he killed many of the enemy, and brought back two prisoners and a machine gun. His skill and handling of the men were largely responsible for the success of the undertaking.

Bar to MC: Supplement to Edinburgh Gazette 13/1/1919, p245.

Citation: For gallantry and devotion to duty during action. When at the start this officer received a gunshot wound in the back, he carried on, directing the advance of his company, a distance of over 3 kilometres. Not till the objective was reached and consolidated, and the wounded cared for, did he consent to be evacuated himself. He set a splendid example.
