Together with Certificate for Agricultural Society of New South Wales medal, 1870; Proceedings of the Royal Society, 1869; Royal Mint, Melbourne, 1882 correspondence; letters; call receipts (5) dated 1884-1887, for the Cobunga Gold Mining Company and Hunt's Extended Gold Mining Company,

Francis Bowyer Miller (1828-1887) assayer. He was born 18 December 1828 in Edgbaston, Warwickshire, England and educated at King Edward's Grammar School, Birmingham and King's College, London. He worked with a mining company in Cornwall in 1850 before becoming an assistant to his brother William, professor of Chemistry at King's College, London and non-resident assayer to the Royal Mint and the Bank of England.

In November 1853 Francis Miller and W.S.Jevons were appointed to the newly established Sydney branch of the Royal Mint on William Miller's recommendation. On a retainer of one hundred pounds per annum, they were to establish their own assay offices and to undertake work for private banks and individuals as well as for the mint. By the time the mint opened in May 1855, Miller and Jevons had become full time public servants without the need for private work. In March 1854 Miller and his wife sailed for Sydney where Miller set up an office in Bligh Street. He became a member of the Philosophical (later Royal) Society of New South Wales in November 1859. In July 1860 Miller read a paper for the Society on the detection of spurious gold in particular with a species of fake gold 'nuggets' that had deceived many Sydney storekeepers. His scientific achievement was his development of a process of refining and toughening gold by means of chlorine gas. He patented this process in London in June 1867 and registered it as an invention before the New South Wales Legislative Assembly in November. A year later his paper describing the process was read before the Chemical Society, London and in November 1869 before the Royal Society of New South Wales. By this time his method had been successfully put into operation at the Sydney Mint and by the Bank of New Zealand in Auckland. In 1870 Miller was transferred to the new branch of the Royal Mint in Melbourne and was paid two thousand pounds for the sole Victorian rights to the gold refining process. Miller's method was introduced into mints in England, the USA and Norway. He was superintendent of the bullion office at the Melbourne Mint from 1877 and in 1884 briefly acted as deputy master. He died at his home in Kew on 17 September 1887.

Only 22 gold badges awarded.

Francis Bresnan, an engine driver, was born 14 July 1893 at Dunbulbalane (on the Nine Mile Creek about 200km north-northeast of Melbourne), Victoria. He was appointed as a Foot Constable to the Victorian Police Force on 17 December 1914 and discharged as a Constable on 1 November 1923 after 'Refusing Duty' during the police strike, along with many other constables, as recorded in Victoria Police Gazette 13 December 1923. Up until this time his conduct was recorded as good. As well as being awarded the Gold Valour Badge he was also highly commended on 18 March 1918 for stopping at great personal risk a bolting horse in Elizabeth Street, Melbourne on 4 March 1918. The horse had freed itself from a van to which it had been attached and bolted out of Little Bourke Street and collided with another vehicle.

The above badge was issued at the first public presentation of gold valour badges which had been instituted in 1916. The presentation was made to 17 police officers by the Chief Secretary, Mr McLeod MLA at Russell Street Barracks on 26 September 1916 with about 250 Constables on parade and in attendance was the Chief Commissioner, Mr A.G.Sainsbury and leading officers of the police force.

When presenting the gold badges Mr McLeod said they were a reward for valour. He said men at the front were receiving VCs for deeds not more worthy, perhaps, than some that were performed by the police, and the Government in adopting the innovation felt that a suitable medal should be given to members of the force when exceptional determination, valour, or devotion to duty was exhibited. He eulogised the marked bravery of several constables who had recently faced desperate armed criminals and succeeded in arresting them.

Constable W.Downes along with Constables F.Bresnan and J.Walsh were each recommended for gold badges for displaying great courage and determination when they arrested John Lane, George Rankin and Ernest Watson on 6 May after an exciting chase in the city of Melbourne. The recommendation was made by Inspecting Superintendent L.Gleeson. The constables saw the three men behaving suspiciously in Flinders Lane and followed them. John Lane fired a revolver but nobody was injured. The chase then became exciting with civilians joining in including one soldier who had been wounded at the Gallipoli landing. The three men were captured and then recognised as desperate young criminals who were suspected of having broken into many shops in Melbourne on Saturday afternoons.

John Lane was charged with having shot with intent to murder, with having a housebreaking implement in his possession, and with warehouse breaking; George Rankin with having loitered with intent to commit a felony, with having attempted to discharge a firearm, and with warehouse breaking; and Ernest Watson with having loitered with intent to commit a felony and with warehouse breaking.

On the charge of having shot at Constable Downes with intent to murder Lane was committed for trial at the Supreme Court. At the trial Constable W.Downes gave evidence regarding the pursuit and capture of Lane. In addition to the revolver, he said a jemmy was also taken from Lane's pocket when he was arrested.
