Situated on the southern coast of Sicily, Gela was founded in 688 B.C. by Cretans and Rhodians. It rose to become the most influential state on the island, but in 485 its ruler Gelon seized Syracuse and transferred his capital there, taking with him many of the leading citizens. His brother Hieron, later tyrant of Syracuse, was left in charge of Gela. Tetradrachm issues at Gela probably began circa 480 B.C., shortly thereafter becoming the principal denomination of the Gelan coinage, and remaining so down to the time of the destruction of the city by Carthaginian invaders in 405 B.C. The ultimate design of the tetradrachms displayed a racing chariot, borrowed from the Syracusan coinage, and the forepart of a man-headed bull. The rather brutal half-length figure of the man-headed bull swimming right is based on the 'father of all rivers', Achelous, and is clearly identified by the ethnic Gelas as the personification of the river Gelas rushing to its mouth, where the city of Gela stood. Indeed Virgil wrote of Gela (Aen. 3, 702) as 'immanisque Gela fluvii cognomina dicta'.

Boehringer notes only two specimens from these dies. The lower dating of this tetradrachm follows D. $2,000

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 63 (lot 3490). This coin is typical of the standard type of Alexander's silver tetradrachm coinage. It is a lifetime issue of the finest style and has been attributed by scholars to Memphis, Egypt. That attribution is confirmed by die-links and style evolution to others of this first issue, particularly those using of distinct Egyptian symbols. Inscriptions with Ptolemy's name in association with Alexander confirm the origin of this coin type. This example represents one of the finest of this mint offered to collectors - superb in its absence of wear; its fine centering and attractive grey cabinet patina.

The staters of the Boiotian Confederacy of the 4th Century are well known to numismatists. These staters, struck on the Aiginetic standard, bear on the obverse the usual Boeotian shield and on the reverse an amphora, with the addition of magistrate names and, on occasion, vines hanging from the handles or extra symbols above the amphora. Although the coins do not bear the mark of an issuing city, Thebes, as hegemon of the Boeotian Confederacy, was the most likely responsible authority. In his study of the series, "The 4th Century BC Magistrate Coinage of the Boiotian Confederacy," in Numismatica Khronika (1998), Robert Hepworth identified 45 different magistrates (two are uncertain) and 97 separate varieties. The series begins in the early years of the fourth century and ends in 335 B.C., when Thebes was razed by Alexander the Great. Through an intensive die study, Hepworth has been able to identify the internal order of this series although an absolute chronology still remains to be determined. The actual identities of most of the magistrates remain obscure. However, the magistrate abbreviated as EPPA or EPAM has been identified as the historical Epaminondas (see "Epaminondas' Coinage," in Proceedings of the 10th International Congress of Numismatics, [London 1986, pg. 35-40]), who, at the battle of Leuctra in 371 BC, successfully led the Boiotians against the invading Spartan army, thus ending nearly 300 years of Spartan military supremacy. Epaminondas met his death in 362 at the battle of Mantinea. Hepworth in describing the series noted 1700 examples recorded from all the sources found over a period of 25 years of researching. The series is divided into four major groups with sub-divisions within. It is established by die-links and hoard evidence of the approximate order of issue. The series appears to have an annual change of magistrates.

$1,000

Ex BCD Collection and sold Triton IX Sale (lot 256), previously from Sotheby's London Auction Sale May 12, 1983 and L. Hamburger Sale 98, April 3 1933 [Lot 572]. BCD notes in describing this lot that this coin was also part of the hoard mentioned by Hepworth (Nom. Khron. 17 (1998), p. 64, note 24) who notes an "unpublished hoard" sold in whole or part by Hamburger in 1933 (98th Auction). That this coin was part of it is fairly certain. The coin has been cleaned since and does look as if it had been circulating for some short time before its concealment. We may therefore be dealing with, at least in part, an "accumulation" type hoard, which introduces many uncertainties when it comes to dating its contents.

$1,000

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 66 (lot 3364) and previously from Frank Sternberg, Zurich Auction Sale X, November 25-26, 1980 (lot 147).

This coin is normally known as an issue of the Lydian king Croesus. Throughout the ancient world he was known for his legendary wealth, and it is therefore not surprising to find these most ancient of silver coins associated with this king. The lion is the paramount symbol of royalty and as such was appropriate for his Lydian kingdom. According to Herodotus, the Lydians were the first to strike gold and silver coins, but the numismatic evidence is not fully compatible with this statement. Carradice suggests that this coin is unlikely to have been minted in the lifetime of King Croesus but is of the type he calls late Croeseid (c. 510-500). However Sear assigns them to Croesus c. 560-546 B.C. The issue represents the introduction of the world's first bimetallic coinage, gold and silver pieces based on a stater of pure metal weighing about 10.8 grams. This was the initial phase of relatively short duration as shortly after the gold was reduced in weight to about 8 grams for a stater and the silver siglos of just over 5 grams replaced the silver stater. This is an historic and important silver coin from the earliest period of coinage. From the style of this example Carradice assigns the issue to late in the 6th century B.C.

The career of Marcus Junius Brutus generally parallels that of his fellow conspirator Cassius. He was a pardoned Pompeian and was shown special favour by Caesar, who appointed him governor of Cisalpine Gaul in 46 B.C. and urban praetor two years later. He was ringleader in Caesar's assassination and fled Rome. He spurned the province legally granted him and instead occupied Greece, where he proceeded to assemble troops and raise money. The Senate legalised his actions in February of 43 B.C. by voting him the command of Illyria, Macedonia and Achaia. Though allied with Cassius, he campaigned separately in order to maximize the revenues available to the Republican cause. Eventually the two joined forces in Summer of 42 B.C. for the fatal confrontation with the triumvirs Antony and Octavian at Philippi, where he took his own life. This denarius employs his adoptive name Q. Caepio Brutus and notes he is the pro consul.
