Convict token, on British Georgian halfpenny blank, obverse inscribed 'Sarah Horton 1784' reverse inscribed monogram of TH. Very fine and rare, lot includes documentation.

$250

This piece was probably presented at birth or early in her life. It is believed that she was the same woman convicted at Warwick Coventry Assizes and sentenced to a term of 14 years on 27th March 1820. Documentation shows that Sarah was later one of 121 convicts transported on the 'Morley' to Australia on 17th May 1820. Subsequently the 'Morley' arrived in New South Wales and Sarah Horton remained in Australia.

$500

This is an early badge c1860-1870s of the Agricultural Society of New South Wales to a significant person in the history of the Society.

In about 1867 there was a strong move for reform from within the Agricultural Society to overcome its many failings. The impetus for this reform came from longstanding members of the Society, of particular importance was J.R. Nowlan, a leading settler from the Hunter River and G.H. Cox from an important pioneering family in the Mudgee area. These men were enlightened farmers and graziers who believed in the need for a central society to raise standards throughout the New South Wales colony. It was decided that the Society had to be at a hub for transport and hence in 1868 moves were afoot to transfer the Society from Parramatta to Sydney.

Two important items were reported on the subject in the leading Sydney newspaper, the Sydney Morning Herald. Firstly, a speech of J.R. Nowlan at a Show Luncheon, reported on 27 May 1867 and secondly, a paper by J.R. Nowlan titled 'The Agricultural Society of N.S.W. - Its Establishment in the Metropolis, Present Position and Future Prospects', reported on 3 May 1868.

In The Maitland Mercury & Hunter River General Advertiser, 10 April 1873, is a report of the Thirteenth Annual Show of the Hunter River Agricultural and Horticultural Association. It states that in the Durhama cattle class the chief object of interest was Mr John Nowlan's bull 'General', two years old. Mr Nowlan's beast was declared winner and Nowlan was also equally successful in other classes of cattle.

Mr Nowlan was also involved in a legal action regarding the use of Campbell's Track for moving his stock and which the owner of the property through which the track passed sued him and another grazier for trespass. The details of the case are reported in The Maitland Mercury & Hunter River General Advertiser, 7 March 1891.

This medal was instituted in 1965 to be awarded to the Officer Cadet graduating first in his class at the Officer Training Unit (OTU) located at Scheyville near Windsor and about 40km north-west of Sydney. OTU was established in 1965 to conduct 6-month commissioning courses for Infantry Officers raised for the Vietnam War. The first course graduated on 18 December 1965 and the last on 18 April 1973. The first type medal was made on short notice and was only issued for the first three courses. It was replaced by the second type, more OTU specific designed medal, as from September 1966. Only 3 type 1 and 27 type 2 medals were awarded. See Shooting Awards and Prize Medals to Australian Military Forces by John O'Connor, p171 and figs 364-366.
