Vyner (Commander, 1843). Arthur Vyner entered the Navy 8 Jan 1829, passed his examination in 1835, and while serving as Mate in the 'BLENHEIM' 72, Capt Sir Humphrey Fleming Senhouse, on the coast of China, was blown up and severely wounded by the springing of one of the enemy's mines in the attack upon Chuenpee 7 Jan 1841 (Vide Gaz. 1841, pp.1163, 1221). Being recommended for his conduct on that occasion, he was promoted, 6 May following, to the rank of Lieutenant, and appointed, 28 of the same month, to the 'WELLESLEY' 72, Commodore Sir Jas. John Gordon Bremer. After he left that ship he joined, in Aug 1841 and Nov 1842 the 'PYLADES' 18, Capt Louis Symonds Tindal, and 'CORNWALLIS' 72, bearing the flag of Sir Wm. Parker, both on the East India station, where he was nominated, 6 May, 1843, Acting-Commander of the 'WOLF'. In her (his promotion being confirmed 28 Aug. ensuing) he continued until Dec 1844. He has since been on half pay. Extract from 'A Naval Biographical Dictionary' by William R.O'Byrne, Esq, John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, publisher to the Admiralty, 1849.

Private Dooley arrived in New Zealand with the contingent which left from Melbourne in 1863, serving with the British 40th Regiment of Foot in the New Zealand Maori Wars. He served in the Te Awamutu and Waikato theatres from 1863-1864 and was under fire during the engagements at Rangiriri and Orakau. It is believed that he left New Zealand in 1864, subsequently being awarded the New Zealand Medal dated 1863-1864 (medal roll WO100/18).

With research.

The New Zealand Medal roll confirms that Robert Cawthorne served in New Zealand from 1864 to the end of the war (1866). A margin note confirms he was discharged on 31 May 1869. It can be concluded that this recipient likely took his discharge in Australia as there are no subsequent records held in New Zealand concerning him. Coincidentally, the 1/4 Royal Artillery served in Australia during this period and Cawthorne may well have enlisted in Melbourne for the war too. He does not appear on Ranfury's Roll nor is there any probate held at National Archives or indeed any mention in the Cyclopaedia of New Zealand. This very strongly suggests therefore that his medal was sent to him in Australia. This is certainly an interesting medal with a good scope for research and worth seeking his papers.

The Royal Artillery was vital in New Zealand during the Waikato Campaign and Cawthorne would have served at Gate Pa and Te Ranga near Tauranga on the East Coast. On 27 and 28 April 1864 General Cameron moved his force to Pukereia Hill about 1,200 yards from the enemy position at Gate Pa. The force comprised a Naval Brigade from the Esk, Miranda and Falcon; elements of the Royal Artillery, 43rd and 68th Regiments; and a movable column of 181 officers and men drawn from the 12th, 14th, 40th and 65th Regiments making 1,695 officers and men in all. On the evening of 28 April, in order to cut off the Maori's possible line of retreat, Cameron dispatched the 68th Regiment, under Colonel Greer, to occupy the narrow neck of land between two swamps, in the rear of the Pa. At daybreak on 29 April Cameron began shelling the Pa and by 4pm had opened a breach in the defence works. He mounted a strong assault through this breach, but his men were repulsed with heavy losses. As it was too late in the day to consider a further attack, Cameron decided to renew the engagement the following morning. During the night however, small parties of Maoris taking their wounded with them, slipped through Colonel Greer's lines to safety. British casualties in the engagement were 111 killed and wounded, while the Maoris lost 25 killed and an unknown number wounded. The significance of the Gate Pa engagement was that it was the scene of the strongest artillery barrage mounted during the Maori Wars.

New Zealand Medal 1869, undated reverse. 913. Andr. Duncan, 99th Regt. Impressed. Nearly extremely fine.
 $750

Confirmed on medal roll entitlement dated 1869 as, 'New Zealand/date not shown/Wounded/Discharged'.

The 99th Regt of Foot (The Lankashire Regt) 1841-1857, arrived at Sydney in February 1843 and then to Van Diemen's Land. In August 1844 it returned to Sydney and in May 1845 two companies were sent to New Zealand where they took part in the assault on 1 July 1845 against Ohaiani Pah with 14 men killed and 4 officers and 27 men wounded. The detachment was also present at the assault and capture of Ruapekapeka on 10 February 1846. Reinforcements were sent from Sydney and the detachment engaged the rebels many times before returning to Sydney in August 1847.

AFC: Supplement to LG 10/10/1919, p12527 to Flying Officer James Douglas Mail, also 01Apr1918, AF List Nov1919 as Flg Off (Observer)

MID (WWI): Supplement to LG 12/1/1920, p510, to Lt J.D. Mail, RAF, mentioned in a Despatch from General Sir E.H.B. Allenby GCB, GCMG dated 5th March 1919 for gallant and distinguished services in the Field.

MID (WWII): A record of service from SA Defence Force dated February 1993 shows that Captain J.D. Mail was Mentioned in Despatches twice.

James Douglas Mail: born 10Jul1892 at Estcourt, Natal; educated at Estcourt Government School; father ran a grocery business under the name of Mail and Trotter.

WWI: Enl.1914 serving with South African Field Telegraph Corps; 1915-16 in ops with East African Expeditionary Force as despatch rider; 1916 transfer to Royal Flying Corps and later to Royal Air Force serving as Captain flying on ops in the Middle East; one newspaper article states that he was twice shot down; MID 1919; Disch.Feb1919.

Post WWI: In 1919 James Mail formed Aerial Stunts in Durban. In 1920 he formed and operated Natal Aviation Syndicate with DH6B, known as the 'Baby Tank', that was purchased from obsolete war stores and restored in a backyard in Bulawayo. He served in the RAF Reserve Aug1927-Jul1931. In 1928 he joined the Aircraft Operating Company and carried out the 60,000 square miles aerial survey of Northern Rhodesia, mainly on the Zambesi mostly with a DH9. He formed 'Mail's Aerial Service - Bulawayo and flew Cirrus Moth 'Sir Charles' on A.O.C. Special Tour in Northern Rhodesia and also ran the first inter-city aerial mail service between Bulawayo and Salisbury. On 12Mar1930 he was admitted as a member of The Guild of Air Pilots and Air Navigators of the British Empire. In 1931 James joined Imperial Airways and flew Argosy aircraft on London-Paris run. Also as British Air Transport he flew Puss Moth G-ABIU from Croydon to Bulawayo taking about 8 days for the trip. This aircraft operated on charter work in Rhodesia and South Africa and in March 1932 was re-registered as ZS-ADO under the banner of Douglas Mail Air Transport. He was also Service Manager of D.H.Saker & Co in Johannesburg. In 1937 he was appointed Chief Pilot of African Flying Services at Grand Central Aerodrome where he instructed on Tiger Moths, Buckers, Dragon Rapides, Wacos, and Fairchildes. He flew the DH twin-engine Rapide aircraft for Kerr's record breaking parachute jump on 01Dec1937 from 22,395 feet. This jump had been organised to raise money to help a paralysed man regain his health. Then in 1939 in a Dragon Rapide he carried out the first aerial crop spraying against bagworm infestation of wattle in the Cedera plantations outside Pietermaritzburg.

WWII: Enl.17Jun1940 in SAAF and flew Envoys, Valencias, Audaxs, Ansons, Fairey Battles, Marylands, Lodestars, Oxfords, Venturas and others, mainly on transport flights; 19Dec1942 Killed in Flying Accident.

The official report on Mail's service file reads - Lockheed No. K248 (B) SAAF (C) 215 degrees 8 mls from Kisumu aerodrome Kenya, night 0510 hours crashed in Lake Victoria presumed totally destroyed, later amended to all crew and passengers killed when the aircraft exploded and crashed into Kavirondo Gulf, Lake Victoria.

The soldiers and civilians who had come to see the plane depart from Kisumu were shattered when shortly after take-off the plane suddenly plunged downward and to their disbelief there was a mighty splash into the lake. Those on board included Major General Dan Pienaar CB, CBE, DSO and Bar, regarded as the greatest South African soldier of WWII. The pilot was Captain J.D. Mail who was 51 years old and had logged a massive 15,000 flying hours. The other passengers were Colonel Frederick Thereon, Lt-Colonels E.V. Frykberg and E.L. Mackenzie both of the First Division, Major J.W.A. Bull Chief Press Officer for the South African Army in Egypt, Major F. Rawlins, Captain P. Cloete, Lieutenant W.B. Lloyd, Air Sergeant C.B. Flusk, Sergeant A.F. Weldon and Air Corporal L.B. Lafayette. General Pienaar was returning to a heroes reception from commanding the First South African Brigade at El Alamein. Following the crash, an American correspondent report in the Chicago Tribune stated, 'British and Allied forces of every rank to-day mourned the loss of Major-General Dan Pienaar, acknowledged by all the military here as one of the best fighting leaders the British have found in this war.'

General Pienaar, whose death had caused sorrow and deep emotion throughout South Africa equal to that when President Kruger passed away, was given a State Funeral at Roberts Heights and the whole country plunged into mourning. It was decided that as Pienaar was a 'soldier's soldier' he would wish his staff and crew of his last flight to be accorded the same honour as himself and so the twelve who died were laid to rest in a row with equal honour from General to Air Corporal. At Thaba Tshwane (Old No. 1) Military Cemetery, Gauteng, South Africa in grave 8 just a few feet from the General he served so well rests Captain J.D. Mail AFC, the aircraft commander.

One tribute to Captain James Douglas 'Duggie' Mail AFC under the heading 'A Pal to All' reads, 'Your flying courage has inspired thousands. You have written a chapter in aviation history which will never be forgotten. The old crowd, who had the privilege of knowing you salute you as the one and only Duggie Mail, straight forward, trustworthy, and above all, a pal to all. I have just saluted your remains, Duggie, old man, en route for the Rand. This time you were a passenger; someone else was up in the "office" having the worries and "flaps" over the latest reports of the weather and "muck" you had mastered for thirty odd years. You have earned your rest... Until then happy landings, pal.'

Son: Denys Douglas Mail, mechanic, born 23Jan1921 at Pietermaritzburg, Natal; served from 01Aug1940 - 11Sep1945 with SAAF with 5 Wing Op HQs; Entitled to Italy Star, War Medal 1939-45, Africa Service Medal 1939-45.

Citation: 'For conspicuous gallantry when leading a raid on the enemy's trenches. About thirty of the enemy were killed, and four prisoners taken. By his dash and fine leading he overcame all resistance.'

Recommendation: 'For his gallant leading of the Assault in a successful raid on the enemy's trenches South of Armentieres on the night of 26/27th June 1916, in which about 30 of the enemy were killed by the Raiding Party and four prisoners taken. The Assault Party had to force their way through the enemy's wire and when they reached the trench they were beaten back by the Germans who met them with rifle fire and bayonets. Captain Bruce rallied his party and again led them at the trench which they successfully entered. He shot the Germans with his revolver and by his dashing and cool leadership carried the enterprise through successfully.'

Recommendation: During the German advance in the Northern Sector in March/April last this W.O. was of the greatest assistance to the C.O., in the very complicated and strenuous work of removing the Corps Reinforcement Camp his duties frequently took him into heavily shelled areas. In the three subsequent moves of these Headquarters the advanced parties have been in his charge and the work has always been well done. In addition to consistent excellent work as R.S.M., he has shown much initiative, energy and enthusiasm in detecting and arresting illegal absentees, often remaining out late at night to attain his object.

DCM: LG 5/8/1915, p7683, posn 1; CAG 28/10/1915, p2737, posn 65.

Recommendation: 'On the morning of 9th May, 1915, at Monash Valley, Sergeant Cross was one of about forty officers and men who charged a Turkish trench immediately in front of Quinn's Post. Only about 12 reached their objective. The leader of the charge, Captain Townsend was wounded. Seeing that it was impossible for such a small party to hold the advanced position Sergeant Cross started back to our trenches with Captain Townsend, and when half way back, the wounded officer was killed. Sergeant Cross, then went back to the small force at the Turkish trench, knowing all the time, that it was only a matter of minutes before the whole party would have to retire. The occasion referred to therein is not the first time on which conspicuous bravery has been shown by Sergeant Cross.'

MM: LG 12/12/1917, p13025, posn 3; CAG 2/5/1918, p1033, posn 82.

Recommendation: On the night of the 18/19th Sept, 1917, between the hours of 10.30 and 11 p.m. on the Menin Road about 500 yds East of Ypres near Hell-Fire Corner. Lieut. Willison was in charge of a party of ammunition wagons. At this point the column came under heavy shell fire. Driver Daniels immediately helped to unhook the horses showing great coolness. As soon as all were clear Lt Willison ordered all men to take cover and mounted his horse to go after the teams. The horse was immediately shot under him. Gunner Daniels ran along to the assistance of Lt Willison who had been stunned by the fall. He succeeded in getting the Officer clear of the shelling. The action of this soldier was an example to all ranks and no doubt saved many casualties that may have happened in the column.

Recommendation: 'For most conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. At Zonnebeke on 4/10/17 this man was in the leading wave of assault. The enemy was encountered in strength immediately after jumping off owing to our having anticipated his attack.

This man at once emplaced his gun and opened heavy fire breaking their formations and enabling our lines to advance without check. His action undoubtedly facilitated the advance and caused the enemy considerable losses. On reaching his objective he showed great self-reliance in selecting a position where he could pursue the enemy by fire and again inflicted casualties on parties who were retiring.

Later, when the men were physically exhausted, he continued on duty without rest and set a splendid example to all with whom he came in contact.'

Henry Phillip Dallinger, plumber, age 27, born at Albury, NSW; Enl.10Sep1915 at Albury; Emb.09Nov1915; 07Dec1915 joined 1st FAB Suez Rd Camp; 21Mar1916 departed Alexandria for France; to Acting Bombardier 09Feb1917; RTA 06Jun1919; Disch.29Jul1919.

The original pioneering Conrad Dallinger came to Australia in the mid 1800s to escape the hostilities of the Prussian War. After arriving in Sydney he purchased a bullock dray and after the long, slow overland journey he finally took up land at Mungabareena, just outside what was then the village of Albury. This was later to become the site of the Albury aerodrome. Just prior to WWI the back paddocks of the Dallinger's property were made available to the military authorities as a training area.

MM: LG 24/1/1919, p1254, posn 53; CAG 23/5/1919, p897, posn 150.

Recommendation: 'For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in the operations of the 8/9th August 1918 near Villers Brettoneux. This NCO is part of the Army Medical Corps Detail with the Battalion. On the 8th August the enemy were shelling Battalion Headquarters very heavily, when one shell wounded four officers and eight men including the M.O. of the Battalion. Sergt Woodbine at once, together with L/Cpl Faulks, set to work under fire and dressed the wounded and supervised the evacuation to A.D.S. His exceptional devotion to duty on this occasion was responsible for the saving of the lives of several of the wounded who otherwise would have bled to death. During the whole operation he was well forward with the Battalion and he was responsible for the quick attention to many of the badly wounded men.'

MID: LG 28/12/1917, p13568, posn 115; CAG 18/4/1918, p845, posn 93 in Sir Douglas Haig's despatch of 7Nov1917 for distinguished and gallant services and devotion to duty in the Field during the period 26/2/1917 to 20/9/1917.

Recommendation: 'This man has served with his unit during the period February to September 1917, near Le Transloy and at Bapaume and Beaumetz. At the former place this man was untiring in his efforts for the comfort of the sick and wounded. Day and night he assisted the R.M.O. in attending to sick and often in dressing wounded under fire where no shelter could be obtained. On every occasion he went into the line this man worked hard all day and nearly the whole of the night, and came under notice by reason of the fact that his work saved a large number of evacuations of sick. No man in the Battalion has set a finer example of devotion to duty.'

MM: LG 3/7/1919, p8355, posn 1; CAG 17/10/1919, p1530, posn 33.

Recommendation: For conspicuous courage and devotion to duty during the attack near Estrees, east of Peronne, on 3.10.18. As this man's platoon advanced to the attack it was met by heavy resistance from an enemy strong post directly in front. Pte Adams immediately rushed ahead with his bayonet and entered the post, killing two Germans, and assisting in the capture of seven others. He then signalled to the remainder of the section to advance, and held his prisoners until their arrival. His dashing action in charging this post single-handed undoubtedly saved heavy losses in the platoon.

Recommended for MM: 'Pte Edward O'Connor is a Battalion Headquarters runner. During the period 23rd to 24th Sept., whilst the 54th Battalion was in the 'Houge' (sic) Hooge Area and subsequently from the 26th to 28th September when the Battalion occupied the position in Glencorse Wood and Noonebosschen Area Pte O'Connor displayed bravery and devotion to duty of the highest order. On the 23rd September he was severely shaken by a shell which burst in Chateau Wood, causing a tree to fall on him, notwithstanding this he refused to be evacuated.

On the 26th September when the enemy heavily shelled the Glencorse Wood Area, and the Menin Road, Pte O'Connor three times took despatches from Battalion Headquarters in Glencorse Wood to Brigade Headquarters. His cheery demeanour under the most trying circumstances, and his high courage were remarked on by all whom came into contact with him.'

Citation: WOII John E. Barker, AATTV. 'Warrant Officer Barker distinguished himself by gallantry in action on 29 April 1969 while serving as the heavy weapons advisor to the 5th Battalion, 2nd Regiment, 1st Division, Army of the Republic of Vietnam. On this date the 5th Battalion was attacking a heavily defended bunker complex. After a flame tank had been employed, Warrant Officer Barker spotted several enemy soldiers running forward from their burning bunker. Pointing out the enemy to a machine gun squad leader, but getting no response, Warrant Officer Barker seized a machine gun and led the machine gun section forward to a suitable firing position. By his initiative and exemplary leadership, Warrant Officer Barker personally accounted for two North Vietnamese Army killed in action.

Shortly after this action, two gun tanks were brought up to engage the enemy at a closer range. During this action an American advisor was seriously wounded. Warrant Officer Barker made a quick estimate of the situation and moved by himself, under intense enemy fire, to treat the wounded advisor. Upon seeing the seriousness of the wound, he called for assistance and helped carry the wounded advisor across 75 meters of open terrain under heavy enemy fire to a position from where the wounded advisor was medically evacuated. Warrant Officer Barker's quick thinking, initiative and personal disregard for his own safety was a major factor in saving the wounded advisor's life, and contributed significantly to the success of the operation. Warrant Officer Barker's conspicuous gallantry in action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the Royal Australian Army and reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.'

The Military Training Advisors Order of Merit and Scroll of Honor awarded on 6 April 1969 to Warrant Officer John E. Barker, WO236292, Australian Army, in recognition of outstanding performance of duty from 7 March 1969 to 6 April 1969.

Citation: 'While attached to Advisory Team Five, Military Assistance Command, Vietnam, Warrant Officer John E. Barker, WO236292, Australian Army, distinguished himself by outstanding service. While attached to this advisory team WO Barker was assigned as an advisor to 5/2 Battalion that was undergoing training at the Dong Da National Training Center. Throughout this period, he demonstrated initiative, dedication and a comprehensive knowledge of the duties of his position. The myriad missions assigned to him were accomplished with sustained thoroughness in all respects regardless of the long hours involved. Do (sic) (Due) to WO Barker's fine abilities, the training procedures throughout this period reflected the highest possible standards. His understanding of the problems encountered by the soldiers of his battalion and his discretion when dealing with superior officers reflect great credit upon himself, the Joint Military Assistance Command and the Australian Army.'

MC: Supplement to London Gazette 22/9/1942, p4155, posn 12, to Lieutenant Gordon Stewart for great coolness, courage, enterprise and skill 21/7/1942.

Citation: 'On 21 July 1942, during the operations of an Australian Infantry Brigade, Lieutenant Stewart was acting as Forward Observation Officer with an Australian Infantry Battalion. He showed great coolness and courage under fire. By his enterprise and skill he was continually in a position to support the Battalion. Several times during the day he engaged armoured fighting vehicles which threatened our troops and on two occasions broke up potential counter attacks. His disregard for his own safety and the dash he showed throughout the attack contributed in no small measure to the successful artillery support of this operation.'

ED: CAG No.47 29/8/1957, p2588 to 3/114012 Lt-Col Gordon Stewart MC, R.Aust.Aty. (Fld. Branch).

CO (Lt-Col) 10 Fed Regt; Died 22Aug1981.

Gordon Stewart was given the nickname of 'Black Sam', also 'Sam' by the members of his unit because in Africa as a young man he had black hair and darkish skin. They regarded him as a tough, cool character.

In the Battle of El Alamein, there was a series of attacks mounted along the whole Ninth Division front. 'Sam' Stewart was FOO (Forward Observation Officer) for the 2/32 Battalion whose objective was to capture Trig 22 on Makh Ridge, better known to the unit as Cairn Ridge. The whole division had suffered heavy casualties during the July battles and this day, July 22, was referred to as 'That desperate day'. Lance-Bombardier George Steele, FOO assistant to Lieutenant Stewart stated, 'I was 'ack' to many good FOOs but Sam Stewart was as good as any I ever saw. He would go anywhere and, the rougher it was, the more he appeared to enjoy it. We were together a lot, his devil-may-care attitude scared the daylights out of me but I had a great affection and respect for him.'

Gordon 'Sam' Stewart's life came to a horrendous end in the early hours of 22 August 1981 when he was murdered in his Nepean Highway home at Mentone, Victoria by a young man in his twenties wielding an axe.

The shrapnel was from a German 88mm shell that exploded just outside the RAP. At the time, Captain Samuels was operating on QX12691 Pte W.C. Pickup, B Coy, 2/15 Aust Inf Bn, who also had a chest wound and who subsequently also died. Capt Samuels and Pte Pickup are buried next to each other in El Alamein War Cemetery.

John Samuel's parents, of Lang Road, Centennial Park, Sydney, were hotel keepers and in the 1920s operated The Shakespeare Hotel, King Street, Newtown. In the late 1940s they also operated The Plaza Hotel in Sydney. John attended Newtown North Public School and later Sydney High School where he was a fine scholar, a prefect and top athlete. He then entered The University of Sydney graduating in 1938. Following graduation he was resident medical officer at the Royal Women's Hospital, Paddington, Sydney then The General Hospital, Townsville, Queensland and finally the Mater Hospital, Brisbane, Queensland.

Captain Samuels' grave at El Alamein War Cemetery

Apparently Captain Samuels confided in the unit chaplain that he had a premonition that he would not survive the Battle of El Alamein but he remained at his post doing his duty until he was killed. His aunt, Mrs R. Gardiner established a scholarship in his memory at the Faculty of Medicine, Hebrew University of Jerusalem in 1945 and it was awarded annually until 1958. His name is recorded on the Roll of Honour located in the Great Hall of Sydney High School. His photo and service are also recorded in Australian Jewry's Book of Honour WWII. In this record it states, 'Captain Samuel's death moved General Blamey, Commander-in-Chief of the Australian Military Forces, to write this letter to his parents: The death in action of one so young as your son is a sad blow to all who knew him. Captain Samuels showed great character and courage and his fine qualities were admired by his Commanding Officer and brother officers, and endeared him to his men. His noble sacrifice and fine example will make his memory a sad though proud one. My deepest sympathy is extended to you in your sorrow.'

Sturt de Burgh Griffith, was born 15Aug 1905 at Manly, Sydney, NSW, the son of a patent attorney and member of the Legislative Assembly. He attended school at Sydney Church of England Grammar School (Shore) and later graduated from the University of Sydney as a Bachelor of Engineering in 1928. While at school he was in the senior cadets and then the Militia. In December 1925 he joined the Citizen Air Force (CAF) and graduated with a distinguished pass in his pilot training at Point Cook, Victoria. He was commissioned in April 1926 and attached to No.3 Sqn at Richmond Air Force Base, NSW. He went to Canberra in 1927 to participate in the opening of parliament house ceremonies.

On 1 August 1928 he flew a De Havilland A1-25 to Sydney Harbour with Paramount Cinema photographer E 'Buddy' Cremer on board with the intention of photographing the arrival of four RAF Southampton Supermarine flying boats. At about 2pm while flying above the harbour at 1,000 feet the plane hovered with a stalled engine and suddenly dropped from the sky. Pilot Griffith was able to partially level it out before crashing into the water opposite Bradley's Head. He received cuts to his face and hands from hitting the windscreen and fortunately his passenger was shaken but unharmed. Within ten minutes a Naval launch from Garden Island rescued them and then Griffith and Commander A.V. Heriot of Garden Island supervised salvage of the aircraft.

Griffith transferred to the CAF Reserve in 1934 with the rank of Flight Lieutenant and following the outbreak of World War II he was mobilized for full-time service in the RAAF in September 1939. He was CO of No.22 Sqn at Richmond in 1940-41 before being posted to Canberra where he commanded the RAAF Station and the School of Army Co-operation which trained air officers supporting ground troops. This school later was renamed School of Air Support and then School of Land/Air Warfare. He was promoted to Temporary Wing Commander in October 1941 and awarded the Air Force Cross in the 1942 New Year's Honours.

In January 1942 he was posted as commander of RAAF Station Darwin taking office less than three weeks before the first Japanese air raid on 19 February. Following the raids accusations of incompetence were made against him resulting in a commission of inquiry into events of the day. Sir Charles Lowe found that some of the blame for the events must rest with Griffith and basically said Griffith was incompetent and lacking in leadership. However, Air Vice Marshall W.D. Bostock came to his defence. Unfortunately, Griffith's actions in some part had been caused by a cumbersome command structure which had constrained his authority. Though it was thought his decisions were reasonable under the circumstances, he never held another operational command.

He took command of No.7 Sqn at Bairnsdale, Victoria in April 1942 and in June was posted to No.5 Maintenance Group, Sydney and promoted to Temporary Group Captain in December 1943. In the same month he took command of No.1 Aircraft Depot, Laverton, Victoria. In October 1945 he transferred back to the reserve force and resumed his civilian occupation of patent and trademark attorney and consultant engineer. He was a Councillor (1932-51) and President (1947-48) of the Patent & Trade Mark Attorneys of Australia.

Sturt de Burgh Griffith was appointed motoring correspondent for The Sydney Morning Herald in 1950 and compilations of his articles appeared annually for some years from 1959. His reports were of such a high standard and so well regarded that they could 'make or break' a new model. He also published several books on small cars. His employment with the Herald continued until December 1976. He died on 14 December 1979 at Concord Repatriation General Hospital.

In the book, Nothing over us : the story of the 2/6th Australian Infantry Battalion by David Hay, p273, is written, 'The wireless wouldn't work. Bruce Howe was our signaller, but he couldn't contact anybody. And so finally they sent old Jack Kerr from Company headquarters out with a message...It was just before nightfall and we were bedding down. There was a waterfall nearby, and everyone filled their water bottles from it. My section had nearly finished - I was the last one. As I was filling my bottle I heard a jabbering noise, I looked up and here were two Japs coming, within a stone's throw of me. I flattened out in the mud. They came along. They spotted the footprints, but they didn't see me. The rest of the section also saw them but they let them go through. They had been ordered not to fire so that we wouldn't give our positions away. Later, shots were heard. What had happened was that Jack Kerr had run into these fellows. One of the Japs (he was a Colonel) had fired at Jack from his revolver which then jammed. The Jap pulled out his sword. Jack of course had his rifle, and let him have it. But while he was taking aim the Jap had cut him across the right arm with his sword. Jack continued on down the track for as long as he could. He was bleeding profusely...but eventually he was sent to hospital in Wau.'

DCM: LG 10/12/1968, p13226, posn 8; CAG 29/8/1968, p4841, pos 12.

Citation: 'Sergeant Ronald David Allan enlisted in the Australian Regular Army on 28 May 1959. After service in Malaya during the Emergency and Borneo during the confrontation he joined 7th Battalion, The Royal Australian Regiment on 29 September 1965 and arrived in South Vietnam with the Battalion in April 1967. On 27 November 1967 during Operation Forrest, D Company attacked a fortified enemy base camp which was occupied by the Chau Duc District Company. During the close combat that followed Sergeant Allan, the Platoon Sergeant of 12 Platoon, gained the initiative over the enemy and with a small party of men seized an enemy occupied bunker from which the Viet Cong were engaging elements of 10 Platoon.

When the company was re-organising the enemy counter attacked using rockets. Seeing the heavy enemy fire had caused casualties in his platoon, Sergeant Allan rushed forward without regard to his personal safety and began dragging the wounded into the comparative safety of a captured bunker. There is little doubt that without Sergeant Allan's brave actions the mortality rate during this action would have been much higher as the casualties in the open would have been exposed to friendly artillery and mortars. Sergeant Allan assumed command of the platoon when his Platoon Commander was wounded.

On 29 January 1968 during Operation Coburg, D Company contacted the Viet Cong C238 Battalion which was concentrating in a prepared defensive position. During the two and a half hour battle that followed Sergeant Allan frequently displayed outstanding bravery. While the platoon was pinned down by small arms fire, mortars and grenades, Sergeant Allan crawled through the enemy fire into a position where, by observation he could assist with the direction of artillery and armed helicopter strikes. As a result 20mm cannon fire was brought in to within 30 metres of Sergeant Allan's position and caused heavy enemy casualties.

Over many operations Sergeant Allan has displayed outstanding leadership qualities and gallantry. He has continuously been an excellent leader. Dependable in all situations, calm and daring in emergencies, he has been an inspiration to his platoon and Company and all who have served with him.'

Ronald David Allan, born 27Aug1937 at Townsville, Qld; CMF 04Jul1957-27May1959 with 11 NS Trg Bn; ARA Enl.28May1959 in RAInfy Corps; served Malaya 05Feb1964-05Apr1964 and 03Sep1964-24Oct1964; joined RAR 29Sep1965; served three tours in Vietnam with 7RAR - 08Apr1967-26Apr1968; 10Feb1970-06Mar1970; 19Mar1970-25Feb1971; Disch.28May1979; died 2012.
