319 Trp William Edgar Curgenven served in the Boer War with 5th Imperial Contingent (South Australia). He also served in WWI with service number 5834. He enlisted at age 34 and stated his occupation as stockman, born at Adelaide. On his medical record it shows that he had two bullet wounds in his leg. During his WWI service his record is appalling and on 11Dec1917 he was subject to Court Martial for impersonating a Coy Sgt Major - found guilty and sentenced to ten years penal servitude, later commuted to two years. He was discharged 20Mar1920. In accordance with a decision by the Standing Medals Board, he was issued no WWI service medals because of his unsatisfactory service.

$1,500

Competition held at Sydney, 6-7 June 1913. K Coy 36th Battn was the Newington College cadet unit. An account of the presentation of medals stated that a parade of four companies of cadets, inspected by Lieutenant-Colonel A. W. Wallack, C.B., District Commandant, took place on the Newington College grounds on Saturday afternoon 14 March 1914. The occasion was the presentation of gold medals, silver badges, and ribbons to the champion team in the Commonwealth series of military competitions. Companies from areas 34A (Enmore), 35A (Marrickville), 36A (Stanmore), and 36B (Petersham) took part in the parade, and as the young soldiers wheeled, formed, re-formed, and after a variety of evolutions finally marched, colours flying and bands playing, past the District Commandant and his staff, the spectacle was not lacking in impressiveness, though, except for the winning company, the marching occasionally would have been none the worse for a little more drill.

Among those present were Lieutenant-Colonel Wallack, Lieutenant-Colonel Luscombe, A.A.G., Lieutenant Brown, A. and I. Staff, Colonel Cox, 8th Lancers, Colonel Pearce, A.F.A., Rev. C. J. Prescott, headmaster of Newington College, Captain Smith, brigade major of the 9th Brigade, Major Buchanan, CO. 36th Battalion, Major Reddish, CO. 35th Battalion, Captain Caunt, CO. 34th Battalion, and the officers commanding companies. A large silver shield, presented by the British Australian Tobacco Company, was also won by K Company.

Report of action: Flight Sergeant Mackie was a member of a Sunderland crew on air-sea rescue work which crashed while on a mission. The second pilot was thrown from the wreckage and, being severely injured, floated away from the remainder of the crew, who were standing on a mainplane endeavouring to inflate the dinghy. Flt Sgt Mackie dived into the sea, and after reaching his companion, supported him for 30 minutes until they were both rescued by the others, who had inflated the dinghy and manoeuvred it into position to pick them up.

Pilot Officer Leslie William Sanders RNZAF, son of Leslie and Mary Veronica Sanders of Sydney, NSW and the husband of Joyce Sanders of Rockdale, Sydney, NSW; served with 217 Sqn RAF in the India Campaign; Killed in flying accident 30Apr1943 at Ceylon at age 26; buried at Colombo (Kanatte) General Cemetery, Sri Lanka.

Accident report: Lockheed Hudson FH430 took off from RAF Vavunia at 0555 hours on 30th April 1943, detailed to carry out an anti-submarine NE detector patrol B & C. On return from the patrol the Pilot was ordered to carry out an anti-aircraft gun co-operation exercise so on returning, the pilot dived down to the runway and flew from one end to the other about 5 feet off the ground. He then pulled up sharply and climbed to approx 3,000 feet. From approx 2,500 feet he apparently sighted a gun-post position as a target and dived straight on the gun position at about a 30 degree angle of dive. He failed to pull out at a reasonable height, and it was not until he was approx 100 feet from the ground that any apparent effort was made to pull out. Owing to the high speed the aircraft had gathered in the dive and to the terrific strain imposed on pulling out, the wings of the aircraft pulled back and the fuselage continued on to crash into trees approx 50 yards from the runway at RAF Vavunia. The aircraft crashed at 1145 hours and all the crew were killed.

Capt Charles Moore Stevenson died at Sydney in February 1909 at the age of 49. His death was a devastating blow on the community of Kiama where he was held in very high regard. Flags were flown at half mast and some businesses closed out of respect for his passing. His funeral was conducted with full military honours with participation by a large military contingent and also a large representative of the Masonic Lodge due to his elevated position within that organisation.

On 31 May 1909 a large gathering of residents of Kiama was held near the drill hill to witness the unveiling of a memorial obelisk erected by the officers, NCOs and men of E Company, First Battalion, 2nd A.I.R. in memory of Capt Stevenson who served with the 2nd Regiment from 25 October 1886 to 11 February 1909. Brig-Col C.M. Raanclaud VD unveiled the monument which is of Victorian bluestone surmounted by 3 columns of Swedish emerald green granite bearing the inscription, 'Erected to the memory of Captain C.M. Stevenson, V.D., by his late comrades of the E (Kiama) Company, 2nd A.I. Regiment, 1909'. The monument occupies a position at the east end of the military ground and faces Manning Street.

Member of Melbourne Contingent to Maori Wars WIA Against Hau Hau Maori

New Zealand Medal 1869, with 1867-1868 ghost dates. J. McKenna, No 4 Co Tar. Mil. Settlers. Chisel engraved, officially renamed. Very fine

$1,200

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 80 (lot 2080).

Mentioned in For Glory and a Farm. Part of the Melbourne Contingent. James McKenna was born in Monaghan in 1837. He enlisted in the Taranaki Military Settlers in Melbourne, Australia and arrived in New Zealand aboard the ship Choice. He served at Kaitake Ranges on 24 March 1864 and later took part in the engagement at Te Ahuahu on 6 April 1864 where he was one of five men of the Melbourne Contingent who were wounded. His wound comprised a rifle ball in the left side while his commanding officer (Captain Lloyd of the 57th Regiment) was killed. 43 men of the Taranaki Military Settlers took part in the engagement. This was the first Hau Hau action and the mutilation of the dead and wounded was horrific. Cannibalistic rites were performed by the Hau Hau Maori. Private McKenna was later involved in outpost duty and again came under fire. He took his discharge from the Taranaki Military Settlers in April 1865, presumably having served the one year required before joining the Taranaki Cavalry Volunteers.

In 1882 McKenna, by now having settled on his farm land grant, was presented with his New Zealand Medal by Premier Sir Harry Atkinson. In 1897 McKenna sold his grant and his war pension and settled in South Africa where he sought his fortune on the gold fields. He caught malaria and was hospitalized in the Bulawayo Field Hospital. In his absence natives looted his camp and took all his possessions including his New Zealand Medal and discharge papers. Perhaps to earn a fare back to New Zealand McKenna served as a mercenary during the Boer War - following which he returned to New Zealand. At some stage upon his return to New Zealand McKenna resided in Wellington. In 1912 he applied for a replacement New Zealand Medal in order to obtain a Military Pension. The medal was duly issued to McKenna, who was in very poor health. McKenna was admitted to the O'Connor Memorial Institute Home at Westport where he died a pauper in September or October 1919. He was buried in a pauper's grave and despite efforts by the Home he was not accorded a military funeral. The New Zealand Medal is the replacement issued to McKenna in 1912 after the theft of his original medal in South Africa. There were 214 New Zealand War Medals awarded to the Taranaki Military Settlers.

Rare Award to an Australian

India General Service Medal 1908-35 (GVR Kaiser-I-Hind 1910-30 type). Lieut. A.D.Molloy, Australian Staff Corps. Naming erased and chisel engraved (see note below). Very fine.

$1,200

Ex The Naval and Military Club Collection, Artemis Auctions 21-22 July 2009 (lot 61).

This controversial medal is one of only 9 examples known to Australians. The medal was not approved for wear by Australia, and so may be only 4 or 5 in existence. The most known are to Nurses, but this example is unique for time and period, chisel engraved to Lieut A. D. Molloy Australian Staff Corps. There is a copy of 1936 Daily Orders listing him as entitled to the medal. This gives a RARE confirmation. Molloy later served in WWII, and post war became Commander of Tasmania District, Aide De Camp to the Queen, and Army representative in Washington. He donated his medal to the Melbourne Naval and Military Club in 1950 (as he was not permitted to wear it) and this was purchased from their closure auction in 2009.

Note: In Australians Awarded (vol 2) there is a write-up re the naming found on this medal. In all cases, they are renamed chisel engraved, all the same style, presumably done here in Australia in 1930s. There is no doubt it was his medal (donated in 1950) and correct for any seen.

Together with paperwork and a chance to own a very rare medal to an Australian.

As a member of the United States SEVENTH Fleet assigned to SEA DRAGON operations, HMAS PERTH contributed significantly to SEVENTH Fleet combat operations by conducting numerous successful fire missions against heavily defended enemy logistic installations and lines of communications. When PERTH was engaged by enemy shore batteries on two occasions, the combination of her crew members' spirited teamwork and capable leadership produced quick and precise evasive action to spare the ship any material or personnel casualties. Recommendation (24 April 1917): For conspicuous gallantry, heroism and devotion to duty on two occasions.

'On 9th April 1917 near Boursies Sgt Whittle was in command of a platoon when the enemy, under cover of an intense barrage of artillery smoke and bombs, attacked the small trench he was holding. Owing to weight of numbers the enemy succeeded in entering the trench and it was only by Sgt Whittle's personally collecting all available men and charging the enemy that the position was regained. This section of trench had only been captured the previous night and was in a commanding position for the defence of Boursies.

On 15th April 1917, when the enemy broke through the left of our line to Lagnicourt, Sgt Whittle's platoon had to retreat to the sunken road to the East of that village. Here again Sgt Whittle's own splendid example was the means of keeping the men well in hand. After his platoon was established in its new position, it began to suffer heavy casualties and the enemy endeavoured to bring up a machine gun to enfilade the road. As the enemy machine gunners were fixing the gun, Sgt Whittle single-handedly rushed across the bullet swept slope and attacked the gun crew with bombs. He succeeded in killing the whole crew and in bringing back the machine gun to our position.

The actions of this N.C.O. cannot be too highly rewarded. His example at all times under the most trying circumstances was certainly a stimulus to the gallant manner in which his platoon successfully drove back the enemy attacks.'

Recommendation (1 March 1917): 'For conspicuous gallantry in the presence of the enemy. At the attack on Le Barque on 27/2/17, Sergeant Whittle's Company was held up by an enemy strong post at the junction of Misty Way and Warlencourt Road. Sergeant Whittle called on his men to follow and rushed the post, 3 Huns being killed there and about 8 shot by Lewis Machine Gun fire as they retreated towards Albert-Bapaume Road.'

Oct 1915 as a reinforcement for the 26th Battalion; Apr 1916 with 12 Bn in France; WIA 18 Jun 1916 France; Oct 1916 to Sgt; 27 Feb 1917 during the German withdrawal to the Hindenburg line his battalion attacked the outpost villages of Le Barque and Ligny-Thillois with him on the left flank with Captain J. E. Newland's 'A' Company and it was here that he was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal; then on 9 Apr Whittle was awarded the Victoria Cross for his heroism at Boursies and Lagnicourt; WIA again during the German offensive of March 1918, and once more in late July 1918; RTA Oct 1918 with other VC recipients to take part in a planned recruiting drive; Disch. 15 Dec 1918 and lived in Sydney; in 1928 was one of the Canopy Bearers at the Sydney Eucharistic Congress; in 1932 he made a desperate plea for work as he and his wife had six children and within a month he was employed by the Western Assurance Co; 07 Feb 1934 Whittle saved a small boy from drowning in an ornamental pool in University Park and though he departed without giving his name, the deed became widely known; John Woods Whittle died of a cerebral haemorrhage on 02 Mar 1946 at Glebe, Sydney and was buried in Rookwood Cemetery.

Sgt J. W. Whittle, Tasmanian born, and Captain J. E. Newland were the only two permanent servicemen before the war to be awarded the Victoria Cross.

GC: LG 30/12/1955, p7299, posn 1; CAG 12/1/1956, p75, posn 1; For gallantry in captivity in Korea in 1951 (Prime Minister's letter of 31st Oct 1955).

Horace William (Slim) (so nicknamed due to his slender build, made even more exaggerated by his height of 184cm) Madden, fruiterer's assistant, age 18, born at Cronulla, Sydney, NSW; mobilized in the Militia 26May1942 and posted to the 114th Australian General Hospital, Goulburn, NSW; Trf to AIF Aug1943; served in New Guinea with 8th Field Ambulance and on Bougainville with 5th Motor Ambulance Convoy Platoon; he then served with 253rd Supply Depot Platoon stationed on Morotai before being sent to Japan as part of the British Commonwealth Occupation Force; RTA and Disch.02Jun1947 in Sydney; worked as a male nurse at Morisset Mental Hospital for about two years and then as a moulder; Enl.19Aug1950 for service in Korea with 3rd Battalion, Royal Australian Regiment; joined 3RAR as a driver in November 1950, then volunteered to become a linesman in the Signals Platoon which worked in below-freezing temperatures to maintain communications with forward elements of the battalion; on the evening of 23Apr1951 the Chinese attacked 3RAR's positions near Kapyong and concussed by enemy fire, Madden was surrounded on the following day and captured as were Cpl Bob Parker and Pte Keith Gwyther, then for the next few days the three of them were forced to recover wounded Chinese soldiers and were exposed to attacks by United Nations Command aircraft.

Although suffering the effects of concussion, Slim Madden recovered quickly and helped Australian and other U.N. POWs on their arduous march to the notorious 'Bean Camp'. He showed defiance and refused to co-operate with the Chinese.

They beat him repeatedly and subjected him to other forms of maltreatment, but he remained cheerful and optimistic. His health deteriorated, and his condition was exacerbated by his willingness to share the little food he had with men in a worse state than he.

Madden was among the sick and wounded prisoners moved to 'the Caves' at Kangdong. In late October the Chinese forced them to march to Pingchong-Ni, a distance of about 225 km. Madden collapsed and had to be transported by cart. Although he survived the journey, he died of malnutrition on 6 November 1951.

After the war had ended, his remains were recovered in 1955 (Operation Glory) and reburied in the United Nations Memorial Cemetery at Pusan, Pusan Metropolitan City, South Korea, Plot: Location : 35-9-2 Grave No : 2978.

Pte Keith Gwyther said of him: 'Slim was a real hero-and didn't know it. He became a sort of legend. He didn't try to be like that-it was just the way he was made. Nothing could make him co-operate with the enemy'.

In 1955 Madden was posthumously awarded the George Cross. He was also entitled to the USA Presidential Unit Citation.

Pte Madden is commemorated at George Cross Park, Moten St, Campbell, Canberra along with other George Cross recipients. He is one of only 14 direct GC recipients, 9 only of these being for Defence Force service, five of which were posthumous awards. Two of the awards were for the Cowra POW Camp break out, four for mine diffusion, one for the Voyager collision and one other during WWII for fortitude while a POW and then Madden's for fortitude while a POW in the Korean War. There are two other 'Service' recipients but they were exchange recipients for the Albert Medal, one of these a peace-time award.

HMAS Parramatta was assigned to the Red Sea Force in July 1940, and arrived in Aden at the month's end. The sloop was later transferred to the Mediterranean Fleet. While in the Mediterranean, Parramatta was one of several warships used to supply and support the Allied forces besieged at Tobruk, and appropriately nicknamed the Tobruk Ferry Service. While operating off Tobruk on 24 June 1941, Parramatta, the British sloop HMS Auckland, and the petrol carrier Pass of Balmaha were attacked by over 70 dive bombers. The Australian warship shot down three aircraft during the engagement without receiving major damage, but Auckland was sunk. Parramatta later helped recover the 164 survivors.

On 25 Nov 1941, HMAS Parramatta and HMS Avon Vale left Alexandria escorting the ammunition ship Hanne on the run into Tobruk. Near to midnight on 26 November the ships were about 25 miles north of Bardia, in a 'pitch black dark raining night' when she was hit amidships by a single torpedo from U-559 under the command of Hans Heidtmann. This caused a catastrophic explosion inside her magazine that tore the ship apart. The damage was so significant that the sloop's captain only had time to order 'abandon ship' before Parramatta rolled to starboard.

About 30 survivors, including two officers clung to a raft that floated between the debris. Of the 161 officers and crew and 12 British Marines on board, all were lost except 22 of the crew and one British Marine.

The sloop's wartime service was later recognised by the battle honour 'Libya 1941'.

AB A.E. Myers was in Director Control when the ship was torpedoed and as he 'hit the water' his watch stopped at 12.41am. With other survivors he climbed on to one of the propeller blades and sat there until a depth charge rolled loose over the side, at which time he swam to the French Float (used for mine-sweeping) that had been floating near the ship. Approaching on the horizon was the destroyer H.M. Avon Vale, as she moved closer he decided to swim to her. A jacent to the ship and after several attempts to get him on board, he managed to catch the last lifebelt thrown and was pulled on board after 3 1/2 hours in the water.

AFC: LG 1/1/1942, p42, posn 4; announced in Australia New Year's Honour List by Governor-General Lord Gowrie.

Citation: 'This officer has shown outstanding merit and devotion to duty during his period of command of 22 Squadron... outstanding good example... in undertaking flying duties in all conditions...entirely responsible for building up his unit...into a squadron that was capable of undertaking any function within its role...His long service as an officer has been constantly good and in accordance with the best traditions of the Service.'

Sturt de Burgh Griffith, was born 15Aug 1905 at Manly, Sydney, NSW, the son of a patent attorney and member of the Legislative Assembly. He attended school at Sydney Church of England Grammar School (Shore) and later graduated from the University of Sydney as a Bachelor of Engineering in 1928. While at school he was in the senior cadets and then the Militia. In December 1925 he joined the Citizen Air Force (CAF) and graduated with a distinguished pass in his pilot training at Point Cook, Victoria. He was commissioned in April 1926 and attached to No.3 Sqn at Richmond Air Force Base, NSW. He went to Canberra in 1927 to participate in the opening of parliament house ceremonies.

On 1 August 1928 he flew a De Havilland A1-25 to Sydney Harbour with Paramount Cinema photographer E 'Buddy' Cremer on board with the intention of photographing the arrival of four RAF Southampton Supermarine flying boats. At about 2pm while flying above the harbour at 1,000 feet the plane hovered with a stalled engine and suddenly dropped from the sky. Pilot Griffith was able to partially level it out before crashing into the water opposite Bradley's Head. He received cuts to his face and hands from hitting the windscreen and fortunately his passenger was shaken but unharmed. Within ten minutes a Naval launch from Garden Island rescued them and then Griffith and Commander A.V. Heriot of Garden Island supervised salvage of the aircraft.

Griffith transferred to the CAF Reserve in 1934 with the rank of Flight Lieutenant and following the outbreak of World War II he was mobilized for full-time service in the RAAF in September 1939. He was CO of No.22 Sqn at Richmond in 1940-41 before being posted to Canberra where he commanded the RAAF Station and the School of Army Co-operation which trained air officers supporting ground troops. This school later was renamed School of Air Support and then School of Land/Air Warfare. He was promoted to Temporary Wing Commander in October 1941 and awarded the Air Force Cross in the 1942 New Year's Honours.

In January 1942 he was posted as commander of RAAF Station Darwin taking office less than three weeks before the first Japanese air raid on 19 February. Following the raids accusations of incompetence were made against him resulting in a commission of inquiry into events of the day. Sir Charles Lowe found that some of the blame for the events must rest with Griffith and basically said Griffith was incompetent and lacking in leadership. However, Air Vice Marshall W.D. Bostock came to his defence. Unfortunately, Griffith's actions in some part had been caused by a cumbersome command structure which had constrained his authority. Though it was thought his decisions were reasonable under the circumstances, he never held another operational command.

He took command of No.7 Sqn at Bairnsdale, Victoria in April 1942 and in June was posted to No.5 Maintenance Group, Sydney and promoted to Temporary Group Captain in December 1943. In the same month he took command of No.1 Aircraft Depot, Laverton, Victoria. In October 1945 he transferred back to the reserve force and resumed his civilian occupation of patent and trademark attorney and consultant engineer. He was a Councillor (1932-51) and President (1947-48) of the Patent & Trade Mark Attorneys of Australia.

Sturt de Burgh Griffith was appointed motoring correspondent for The Sydney Morning Herald in 1950 and compilations of his articles appeared annually for some years from 1959. His reports were of such a high standard and so well regarded that they could 'make or break' a new model. He also published several books on small cars. His employment with the Herald continued until December 1976. He died on 14 December 1979 at Concord Repatriation General Hospital.

MM: LG 26/5/1953, p2909; CAG 26/5/1953, p1549 - to Lance Corporal (temporary) Maxwell Eric Wilson, The Royal Australian Regiment.

Maxwell Eric Wilson, born 16Sep1926 at Parramatta, NSW; WWII: Enl.09Jun1945 at Paddington, NSW; Disch.22Mar1949 as Corporal ex 17 Army Tps; Korea: served 27Oct1951-27Sep1952 with 3RAR.

In Korea, Wilson was Section Leader 6 Platoon, B Coy. Following is a brief account of the action where he was awarded the Military Medal. 'The platoon then attacked the first line of trenches in the centre of the hilltop, peppering the enemy with machine gun fire and grenades. But as the Australians crossed that line of trenches they were attacked from the rear by Chinese soldiers who had now come out from previously protected positions. The Diggers replied with Owen guns and phosphorus grenades, throwing their bombs down tunnels where the entrances were visible. Suddenly a Chinese machine gun opened up from just ten metres on a forward section of No.6 Platoon, led by Corporal M.E. Wilson, but the corporal ran out towards the enemy gun and, throwing grenades at the position, killed the gunner.

The Chinese quickly disappeared into the deep labyrinth of their tunnels and brought down heavy mortar fire on top of their own defences. Casualties among the Australians were rapidly mounting and so, towards 12.30am, Captain Richardson ordered his men out. B Company had lost one man killed, two missing and twenty four wounded; the Chinese, twelve killed. Several Australians were decorated for their part in the action; Wilson received a Military Medal, Zwolanski a US Bronze Star and Captain Richardson a Military Cross.

Miss Mary Mabel McElhone was born in Sydney of 04Apr1898, a fifth generation Australian. Her grandfather, father and uncle all had terms serving as Lord Mayor of Sydney. Mary had been a dedicated member of the VAD prior to WWII and when war broke out she was one of the first to enlist and sailed to the Middle East with the rank of Major and Assistant Comptroller. After a period of time the government decided to disband the VAD HQs in Cairo so McElhone returned to Australia. She discharged as Lt in the VAD on 11Jun1942. She entered Sydney University and later graduated as a Doctor of Medicine.

In 1969 after marriage, Dr McElhone became Lady Hallstrom, her husband being Sir Edward Hallstrom, the well known businessman and philanthropist. This was the second marriage for both as their first marriage partners had died. Her medals were donated to the Edwards Collection by her sister-in-law.

US DFC: Supplement to LG 13/8/1943, p3632NZ Gazette No.67, 3/8/1944.

Citation: 'For heroism and extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight as Flight Commander of the RNZAF Squadron, serving under Command of Marine Aircraft Group FOURTEEN, First Marine Aircraft Wing, in combat against enemy Japanese forces at Guadalcanal from January 3 to 18, 1943. With great foresight and skill, Flight Lieutenant Watson consistently carried out the many and varied patrols assigned to him. On January 11 he led the first night bombing raid on Munda to be made by his Squadron and in spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire and a bad weather front, successfully bombed the runway of that vital Japanese airport. A few days later, while following hostile surface craft, he was attacked by a flight of Zeros but by his excellent airmanship and cool courage, he finally escaped. His outstanding leadership and unyielding devotion to duty were an inspiration to his squadron and contributed in great measure to the success of our forces in that area.'

For the President, Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy.

This was the first of its kind to be awarded to a New Zealander in the South Pacific Campaign. The award was presented to Flt Lt Watson by Captain S.D. Jupp, senior United States naval officer in New Zealand in a ceremony at a local air station.

Flt Lt Watson was born in Auckland and educated at the Wanganui College and Pembroke College, Cambridge University. At Cambridge he graduated a master of arts and with honours in law. He was admitted as an English barrister in 1934.

anging over them and covering them almost completely. The squads worked unceasingly, hampered many times by further falls of debris. The last casualty was not finally released until after some hours. Great difficulty was experienced in releasing the last victim as she could only be reached along a narrow tunnel.

All the personnel engaged worked well but particular mention is made of G. Bolton, who worked on the extraction of casualties from two houses and who by very hazardous operations provided tunnels through which the medical and first aid men made contact with the casualties, and E.H. Bent, who worked unceasingly, and was himself responsible for releasing three casualties.'

DSM: LG 15/5/1916, pp4829/31, in recognition of services rendered by Petty Officers and Men of the Eastern Mediterranean Squadron between the time of the landing in the Gallipoli Peninsula in April, 1915, and the evacuation in December, 1915 - January, 1916.

Commendation (posthumous) Supplement to London Gazette 24 May 1940, p3171 (Trawler 'Compaganus'), to James Swanney, deceased, Deck Hand.

Steam trawler Compaganus was attacked and sunk on December 17, 1939 by enemy aircraft in the North Sea 150 miles east of Amy Island whilst sailing from Granton to the fishing grounds.

Lloyd's List & Shipping Gazette, Tuesday, March 18, 1941: 'While fishing in the North Sea the vessel was attacked by two enemy aircraft for about half an hour with bombs and machine-gun fire. The crew went below for cover. The trawl was down, and between attacks James Swanney, a deck-hand, came up to try and cut away the fishing gear to enable the trawler to be handled more easily. During one of his attempts he was killed by machine-gun fire. He had done his best and lost his life to save his shipmates.'

James Swanney, age 53, is commemorated at Tower Hill Memorial dedicated to merchant seamen and fishermen lost at sea during WWII. The memorial is located at the Tower of London precinct.

Confirmed on medal roll for clasp, Lt Digby Middleton HMS Colloden but recorded incorrectly as Lieut.s' Servant.

From the Culloden's log on 1 June 1794 - 'Bore down on the enemy between the Invincible and Gibraltar. 1/2 past 9, began to engage; the first was the one ahead of the French Admiral, some time after their shot passed over us. Shot away her fore mast, soon after her main and mizzen masts went. Observed several ships dismasted. Engaged on different tacks as we could get near and bring our guns to bear...PM - Moderate and hazy. Engaging the enemy as we could get near them and bring our guns to bear. About one firing began to cease...Got ready for taking the Vengeur in tow, our boats, got the French captain and 120 prisoners on board.

Digby Willoughby, 7th Baron Middleton (29 November 1769 - 5 November 1856) was an English nobleman and sailor, the eldest son of Francis Willoughby of Hesley, Nottinghamshire and Octavia Fisher, and great-grandson of the 1st Baron Middleton. He entered the Royal Navy in 1782, retiring as a captain in 1840. He succeeded his cousin, the 6th Baron, in 1835. He lived in the Willoughby family seat at Wollaton Park, Nottinghamshire. He never married but had one illegitimate daughter, Octavia.

Naval General Service Medal 1793-1840, - clasp - Endymion Wh President. John Green. Impressed but naming adjusted probably officially. No ribbon, good very fine.

$2,000

Ex J. and J. Edwards Collection.

Confirmed on medal roll for this clasp as a volunteer on Endymion. Only 58 of this clasp issued.

HMS Endymion was a 40-gun fifth rate that served in the French Revolutionary Wars, the Napoleonic Wars, the War of 1812 and during the First Opium War. She was built to the lines of the French prize Pomone captured in 1794. She was the lead ship of her class of six 24-pounder frigates. She was famous for her duel with USS President on 15 January 1815, in which she caught the American frigate and forced her to strike, which led to the President's final capture some hours later. Apart from this, Endymion was known as the fastest sailing-ship in the Royal Navy during the Age of Sail, logging 14.4 knots (26.7 km/h) running.

Handwritten statement by John George Green included with lot reads, 'I joined the Royal Navy on board H.M.S. Endymion as a Midshipman on the 8th of July 1813 and was in America during the last War, was in several Actions and have received a medal from our Most Gracious Sovereign Queen Victoria for a brave conduct. Was also at the capture of the United States Frigate "President" in 1815, was paid off in that year. I hold a Certificate of good conduct from Capt Henry Hope, now Admiral Sir Henry Hope. I then joined H.M.S. "Superb" as Midshipman on the 1st October 1815 and left on my own account on the 9th September 1816.'

Note: When B. Day's medal was sold, the last clasp was reported missing by the new owner despite it having been sent to the expedition's office for issue to B. Day. In fact in a letter included with this lot, Mr Day states that he did have this missing clasp so what happened to it remains a mystery. A replacement was not supplied as the new owner of the medal was not a member of the recipient's family.

Bernard Day left the service of the New Arrol-Johnston Motor Car Company in 1907 to join Shackleton's British Antarctic Expedition 1907-09 as electrician and motor expert. He was in charge of the first motor car in the Antarctic, a new Arrol-Johnston, fitted with a special air cooled engine. Although the car proved unsuitable for use in soft snow, it did much useful work hauling store-sledges on the sea ice of McMurdo Sound.

Day's second expedition was with Captain R.F. Scott's ill-fated British Antarctic Expedition 1910-13 which he joined as motor engineer in charge of two motor tractors. He was the first man to drive a tractor on the Ross Ice Shelf, where the tractors assisted with hauling stores until engine trouble stopped them. Day and his companions man-hauled to a point about 220 miles along Scott's route to the pole.

With medal and other photos and details and an Antarctic Club Christmas card to Mr & Mrs John Edwards signed by Morton & Miriam Moyes. Morton Moyes was a prominent Australian Antarctic expeditioner. Also a letter dated May 11th 1948, handwritten and signed by Bernard Day, regarding his medal and clasps entitlement.

Empire Gallantry Medal: LG 3/5/1927, p2873 - to John Beattie and Joseph Clark - On 19th November 1926, they showed outstanding gallantry in making persistent attempts to rescue a miner imprisoned in a narrow tunnel, although in grave personal danger from falling debris, gas and spontaneously generated heat.

Exchanged for George Cross when the Warrant establishing the new award was approved by the King in 1941.

Joseph Clark, born c1885, miner at Trimdon Grange, Durham, England; died 01Mar1965.

A more detailed account of the events at Trimdon Grange on 19 November 1926 is as follows: During industrial depressions it was the practice of miners, at least in County Durham, to dig for discarded coal in the pit heaps. At Trimdon Grange two local men entered an abandoned cavern to obtain coal when the sides caved in, partially burying Herbert Owens, age 21, of Oswald Row. His perilous position was soon realised, but while men were tunnelling to extricate him, a further collapse of the sides took place, completely burying the men.

The would-be rescuers increased their efforts to release Owens, and three times ropes were passed under his shoulders and attempts made to pull him out. The unfortunate man, however, was wedged in and the sides continued to fall. Shoring the sides with timber was resorted to. At five p.m. it was decided to make a new tunnel into the heap to endeavour to release him, and shifts of six men, wearing gas helmets, worked frantically, but it was ten p.m. before Owen's was got out. His body was in a very bad condition, being almost burned, owing to the burning nature of the heap.

Playing leading roles in this drama were two local men, John Beattie and Joseph Clark, who with total disregard of their lives faced extreme danger.

Exceedingly rare grouping to a very high office for service in two significant military campaigns. The official's rank is equivalent to Colonel. These military personnel were located in all posts of the Empire, and in this case, Armstrong, 2nd in command in NZ.

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 80 (lot 2110) and DNW (London) June 1997.

Francis Hugh Armstrong was born in 1840 and commissioned as Deputy Assistant Commissary General in February 1861. He saw service in the Commissariat Department in New Zealand and was based around the Auckland area. He did spend a short period of time in Taranaki and it was there, on 25 July 1866, that he married 17 year old Ellen Anne Shuttleworth. Armstrong himself was 26 at the time.

Following his return to England Armstrong remained in the Commissariat Department. On 30 January 1880, whilst serving in Cyprus, he was promoted to the rank of Assistant Commissary General in the Transport Department Staff.

Armstrong saw active service with the Commissariat and Transport Staff during the Egypt Campaign of 1882 and later during the Suakin Campaign (also Egypt) in March, April and May 1885. He was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel in the Army Service Corps on 11 December 1888 and likely spent the remainder of his career based at Gosport. He retired in 1891 or 1892 having therefore served an impressive 30 years.

AFC: Supplement to LG 3/6/1919, p7034, to Lt (A/Capt.) Clifford Arthur Bernard Bowman Wilcock (R.W. Surrey. R).

MID: no confirmation.

Born in Luton, Bedfordshire, Wilcock was educated at St Dunstan's College in Catford. He had joined the 14th London Regiment (London Scottish) in 1912 and served with them in the First World War, later transferring to the Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment. Wounded at Ypres, he was seconded into the Royal Flying Corps in June 1917 on his recovery, and he became a founding member of the Royal Air Force. He was awarded the Air Force Cross in 1919.

At the end of the war Wilcock studied engineering at the University of Edinburgh before rejoining the RAF with 208 Squadron in Egypt and Constantinople from 1921 to 1923. He alternated between home postings dealing with administration, and engineering work on RAF bases (including in Iraq until 1932). Among his posts was assisting at the Experimental Establishment in Felixstowe. From July 1935 he was on administrative duties at Ruislip, where he founded one of the first Royal Air Force Volunteer Squadrons in 1937.

Retiring in September 1938 with the rank of Group Captain, he became a broker and underwriter at Lloyds of London. He was a Freeman of the City of London. On the outbreak of the Second World War he offered his services and was made an Air Ministry civil servant (Deputy Director of Manning), and ultimately rose to Senior Personnel Officer for RAF Transport Command. He was awarded the OBE in 1944.

A member of the Labor Party and the Fabian Society since 1921, Wilcock was chosen in February 1945 as one of the Labor candidates for Derby, a two-member constituency. He and his fellow candidate Philip Noel-Baker won the seat in the 1945 general election with majorities over 20,000. After the Boundary Commission split Derby into two single-member seats, Wilcock was elected for Derby North from 1950.

He specialised in aviation issues, and was Chairman of a departmental committee on training and recruitment for civil aviation from 1946 to 1949. He was also made a Director of several aviation companies, including Derby Aviation. Moderate in his politics, Wilcock was not a frequent speaker in the House of Commons, but he was respected for his knowledge of his subject. He was made a Fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society and also developed an interest in health, being a member of the Medical Research Council and a Governor of Westminster Hospital. He died at Westminster on 14 January 1962.

MM: LG 20/12/1940, WWII BEF 1940 Operations recommended for DCM - awarded MM.

Recommendation made on the third day of the invasion during the push back and withdrawal of troops. 'On the night of the 13-14 May 1940, this NCO was under 2nd Lieutenant Southworth, in charge of preparation of a large road crater East of Dyle. The road had to be kept open until the last moment to permit the withdrawal of the cavalry. He remained at his post until 1500 hours on 14 May and finally successfully blew the crater after the cavalry had passed through. This action, which was performed under shell and machine gun fire, when the enemy were within 300 yards created a most effective obstacle to enemy A.F.V's and blocked a direct line of approach to our position. It was carried out with complete disregard to his own personal safety and was a most inspiring example to all.'
