Francis Timoney came from Fermanagh, Northern Ireland, was educated in Ireland and France and for several years was Professor at the College of St Omer and at St Macartin's College, Monaghan. He came to Australia in 1878 at the request of the Most Rev. Dr. Carr, Archbishop of Melbourne, to become inspector of Catholic schools. Father Timoney was Administrator (1892-1896) of St Benedict's Church, Broadway, Sydney and the first parish priest (1899-1900) of Sacred Heart, Mosman.

Four Catholic chaplains from Australia served in the Boer War. They were Fathers C.Caine CP, P Fagan CP, I.Messurier CP, and F.Timoney CP, all members of the Congregation of the Passion of Jesus Christ. Father Francis Timoney, 42, was the Catholic Chaplain with NSW Citizens Bushmen in the Third Contingent to South Africa. Although he was with the Bushmen which was a mounted unit he was not a good rider but eventually became a proficient horseman. He also wore a large pistol and accompanied the troopers into combat, a fact which generated great respect among the men. Father Timoney was reportedly fearless of danger and although he wore a holstered pistol it was not for combat but rather in the event of a confrontation with a wild animal.

While in South Africa Father Timoney acted as an unpaid news correspondent. He was a founder and director of the Catholic Press newspaper, first published in 1895, and reported without fear or favour. The Australian people fell in love with the controversial stories published on the campaign in South Africa by a priest known by all the troopers as 'Father Tim'. He was most critical, not only of any bad individuals in the Australian element, but particularly of the tactics of burning farms and plundering put in place by Lord Kitchener, British Commander-in-Chief. In one of his letters to Cardinal Moran of Sydney he states, 'If I were not an eyewitness to the sickening scenes of plunder and incendiarism committed by our troops I should decline to believe them capable of such atrocities. And yet these Boers have not injured an English subject in the Transvaal. In England and Australia one only hears a garbled suppressed version account of the war. They see their country in ruins, their fields and crops destroyed, their cattle driven away by the enemy, and the flames from their burning houses rising sky high. I have known instances in which our troopers did not leave in a house one morsel of bread for the women and children. Is it any wonder that among a people so independent a spirit of hatred consumes them?'

Sir Alfred Milner, High Commissioner for South Africa and Governor of Cape Colony, was furious at the publicity attracted by Timoney's despatches. He summoned the priest to a meeting and, in what can best be described as a 'dramatic interview', Father Timoney refused to withdraw a word.

Father Timoney was also very critical of many problems as he saw them in the British political and class system, the military establishment and including General Carrington, who, as he wrote, 'showed the white feather at Elands River' and yet was in England making speeches and receiving honours only intended for brave men. Attempts were made to have him muted but despite this, he refused to withdraw any criticism of the British commanders and politicians and no doubt this cost him any chance of a decoration even though many times he was under heavy fire and on one occasion he carried a wounded soldier, through a hail of bullets, to safety. Despite the displeasure of him among certain members of the hierarchy, there was great regard for the 'Bushman Padre' amongst the troops with one officer saying 'If Father Timoney continues at his work long enough the whole garrison will be converted.'

In 1901, while accompanying the Australian troops to England, Father Timoney consulted specialists regarding a throat problem. The infection was severe and despite an operation and specialist treatment he died in hospital. He was buried at Kensal Green Cemetery. The bad news spread quickly around the world, because as the result of his articles on the war 'Father Tim' was indeed famous. One Australian newspaper wrote, 'If every tear shed for Father Timoney had been a white blossom, his bier (coffin stand) would have surpassed that of an emperor for material glory. If his near relatives wept for him in London, no less bitterly did thousands and thousands grieve for him in troubled South Africa and here in Australia, where as chaplain and priest he had won the regard of men of all creeds and opinions.'

VC: LG 26/12/1918, p15118, posn 1; CAG 23/5/1919, p877, posn 4.

Recommendation: On the 2nd September, 1918, during operations North of Peronne, Lance-Corporal Weathers was one of an advanced bombing party operating well forward of our attacking troops.

Just before the attack reached its final objective it was held up by the enemy who occupied a trench in great numbers.

After an hour's continuous fighting Lance-Corporal Weathers went forward alone in face of heavy enemy fire and located a large body of them. He immediately attacked the enemy with bombs and killed the senior officer; then made his way back to our lines and securing a further supply of bombs and taking three men with him he went forward and again attacked under very heavy fire. On reaching the enemy position he jumped up on the parapet of the trenches and threw bombs among the Bosche. He then signalled for his comrades to come up, and the remainder of the enemy seeing this surrendered. When counted the number of prisoners totalled 180 and three machine guns.

The bravery of this N.C.O. cleared a very difficult situation and the furious way in which Lance-Sergeant Weathers attacked confused the enemy and resulted in the successful capture of the final objective with a minimum number of casualties to our troops.

Recommendation signed, 'Rawlinson, Commanding Land Army 30/4/18.'

Citation: For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on the 2nd September 1918, north of Peronne, when with an advanced bombing party.

The attack having been held up by a strongly held enemy trench, Cpl. Weathers went forward alone under heavy fire and attacked the enemy with bombs. Then, returning to our lines for a further supply of bombs, he again went forward with three comrades, and attacked under very heavy fire. Regardless of personal danger, he mounted the enemy parapet and bombed the trench, and, with the support of his comrades, captured 180 prisoners and three machine guns.

His valour and determination resulted in the successful capture of the final objective, and saved the lives of many of his comrades.

Battle of Mont St. Quentin and Peronne (31 August – 2 September 1918)

Mont St. Quentin was a strategic location, held by the Germans, for the defence of the Somme Line. It overlooked the Somme River and was about 1.5 kilometres north of Peronne. It was vital for the allies to capture this location to enable them to continue their pursuit of the German Army. The Germans anticipated an assault on the Mont so they reinforced their position. General Monash planned the offensive and ordered a high-risk frontal assault that required the Australian 2nd Division to cross a series of marshes to attack the low mountain.

This plan failed when they could not cross the marshes so Monash manoeuvred his divisions. The Second Division crossed the Somme River's north bank on the evening of the 30th August and the next morning at 5am, supported by artillery fire, two undermanned Australian battalions charged up the mountain with orders from Monash to 'scream like bushrangers'. The plan worked and the Germans made a quick surrender and the Australians continued on to the main German trench-line. Coming from the rear, other Australians crossed the Somme on a bridge that Australian Engineers had saved and repaired. Unfortunately, German reserves re-took the mountain top but the Australians held on just below and were able to re-capture their objective.

On the same day, 1 September, Australian forces fought their way into the town of Peronne and captured most of the town. Once they were established, the whole town fell to them the next day. In three days of fierce fighting the Australians had suffered about 3,000 casualties but they had inflicted a critical blow to five German divisions and caused a general German withdrawal eastwards to the Hindenburg Line.

The battle that resulted in the taking of Mont St Quentin and Peronne is regarded as among the finest Australian feats on the Western Front. The ferocity of the action and the outstanding courage and heroism of the participants is evident from the fact that eight Victoria Crosses were awarded to Australians in this 3-day battle.

It was for his actions during the battle that L/Cpl Weathers was awarded the Victoria Cross.

After the fall of Mont St. Quentin, Weathers' unit, the 43Bn was allocated the task of clearing a small area criss-crossed with barbed wire entanglements north of Peronne with Scutari Trench being a major objective. The unit went forward at 5.35am but was halted by machine gun fire. After silencing the machine gun, the enemy was driven back to Fiume Trench and Scutari Trench was cleared. As A Coy attacked against Graz Trench strong resistance was met leading to hand-to-hand fighting. The enemy had embedded itself in the junction of two trenches and were holding up the battalions advance. At this point, Weathers attacked the enemy from the rear with bombs and killed its leader. After replenishing his supply of bombs he returned to the battle with three mates including L/Cpl H.H.H. Thompson who pinned the Germans down with Lewis gun covering fire and Weathers, seemingly oblivious to danger, scaled the German parapet and hurled his bombs into the trench below. After the engagement was won he and his three mates took three machine-guns and 180 prisoners back to his lines.

With his uniform caked in mud and with blood streaming down his unshaven face Weathers, 'The Undertaker', cut a daring image when he returned with souvenired German binoculars and pistols draped all over him like a Christmas tree. The build up of adrenalin during the action was obvious as he nervously talked about how he had 'put the wind up' the enemy. He was recommended for the Victoria Cross but unfortunately died before ever knowing that it had been awarded.

Lawrence Weathers' posthumous Victoria Cross was presented to his widow, Annie Elizabeth Weathers (nee Watson), in Adelaide on 6 March 1920 by General Sir William Birdwood. His other medal entitlements are the British War Medal 1914-18 and Victory Medal 1914-19.

MM: LG 18/7/1917, p7288, posn 49; CAG 8/11/1917, p2943, posn 24.

Recommendation: In the Hindenburg Line near Bullecourt, France during the period 5th - 9th May 1917 Private Halliday did gallant work as a Company runner. Under the most severe barrage the enemy put down whilst the Battalion was in the line when all telephone lines were cut and other means of communication had failed this man volunteered to carry an urgent and extremely important message to Battalion Headquarters.

Absolutely regardless of all danger he moved straight through the shell swept zone, delivered the message, and without pausing for rest hurried back again with instructions for his Company in the front line. This was only one of many instances of the great devotion to duty by Private Halliday.

Bertie James Halliday, bank clerk, age 21, born at Strathalbyn, Sth Aust; Enl.13Jun1916 at Adelaide, Sth Aust; Emb.12Aug1916; accidentally injured knee and RTA 15Apr1918; Disch.27Jun1918.

Among the five aircraft that made up Point Cook's original complement was a Bristol Boxkite. For the next three years pupils at the Central Flying School learnt the rudiments of their trade on this 'mass of booms and struts and wire'. The first of them, four officers - Captain Thomas White and Lieutenants Richard Williams, David Manwell and George Merz, arrived on 17 August 1914, just two weeks after Europe went to war. Before them was a task as novel as any ever undertaken by Australian service personnel.

VD: CAG No.47 5/7/1923, p1003.

After his war service Charles Marr entered politics representing the Nationals, winning the seat of Parkes in December 1919. He was Government Whip (1921-22); Parliamentary Secretary to the Nationalists (1921-25); Honorary Minister in the Bruce-Page government (1925-27); Minister for Home and Territories (1927-28); Honorary Minister from February 1928 until the defeat of government October 1929. At the time of the election he was at the head of the Australian delegation to the League of Nations in Geneva and made frantic but unsuccessful efforts to return for the election campaign, even seeking the assistance of Charles Kingsford Smith to fly back. The sitting member for the seat was appointed to the High Court of Australia, so there was a by-election which Marr won in January 1931. He was Vice-President in 1924-25 and 1929-31 of the National Association of New South Wales and Vice-President of the Australian National Federation in 1928-31.

In the Lyons United Australia Party government, Marr held the portfolios of health, repatriation and territories during the years 1932-34. He served on the committees that organized the visits of the Prince of Wales (1920) and the Duke and Duchess of York (1927), so he was given charge of the Duke of Gloucester's tour in 1934 and in 1935 was appointed K.C.V.O. In the same year he was dropped from the ministry. In 1941-42 he was deputy chairman of the joint committee on broadcasting. He lost his seat in 1943 when a heart ailment restricted his campaigning.

Marr promoted the New Guinea Legislative Council, personally opening it in May 1933. He had substantial land holdings near Madang which were acquired in 1929 by Amalgamated Coffee Plantations (New Guinea) Ltd, a company he founded with (Sir) Walter Carpenter and others. Marr held several company directorships, including Tatua Gold, New Zealand Forest Products Ltd, Papuan Apinaipi Petroleum Co. Ltd and W. R. Carpenter & Co. Ltd, and was chairman of Mineral Development Ltd and Gold Development Ltd.

Charles Marr died on 20 October 1960 at Pymble at the age of 80 and was cremated after a state funeral at the Methodist Church, Gordon.

MC: LG 22/4/1918, p4825, posn 1, to T/2nd Lt Andrew King Cowper, Gen. List and R.F.C.

Citation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Whilst leading a patrol of six machines he observed four hostile triplanes, one of which he attacked, succeeding in causing it to break up in the air. The remaining three enemy machines were destroyed by the rest of the patrol. On the return journey he encountered an enemy scout, and shepherding it by the most skilful piloting west of the lines, forced it to land undamaged on one of our aerodromes. On a later occasion, during three separate combats, he and his patrol brought down one machine completely out of control, and two others with their observers wounded, and later in the same day three other machines completely out of control. Previously to this he has assisted in destroying six other enemy scouts, displaying at all times the greatest courage and determination.

Bar to MC: LG 22/6/1918, p7397, to T/2nd Lt (T/Capt) Andrew King Cowper, MC, Gen. List and R.F.C.

Citation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Within a short period he has himself destroyed three enemy planes and has driven down four others completely out of control. During the recent operations he has further destroyed two hostile machines and has attacked in the most daring manner and with the greatest effect enemy troops and transport. On all occasions his gallantry and skill have been of the highest order. (MC gazetted 22 April 1918)

2nd Bar to MC: LG 22/6/1918, p7396, posn 1, to T/2nd Lt (T/Capt) Andrew King Cowper, MC, Gen. List and R.F.C.

Citation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He bombed enemy troops who were entrenching, and caused great havoc and confusion. He made repeated and determined attacks, in spite of heavy hostile fire, and eventually forced the enemy to retire from their trench. He returned to his aerodrome for more bombs and ammunition, and, going out a second time, attacked enemy troops and transport and threw them into confusion. He went out on two other occasions on the same day with equal success. Later, while co-operating with an infantry attack, he obtained four direct hits with bombs on an encampment, and forced several parties of the enemy to retire from their front line. He showed magnificent dash and determination. (MC gazetted 22 April 1918; Bar to MC gazetted in this Gazette)

Andrew King Cowper was a descendent of William Cowper, the 18th century poet. He bore the second name of King and the nickname of 'King' because he was also a descendent of Philip Gidley King, third Governor of New South Wales (28 September 1800- August 1806). He was born at Bingara, NSW on 16 November 1898. He went to England for study and attended Eastbourne College, Sussex from 1913 to 1916. Seeking war service he joined the Royal Sussex Regiment before transferring to the Royal Flying Corps and being commissioned as Temp 2nd Lt on probation on 10 May 1917 and then, after qualifying as a pilot, was posted to 24 Squadron in France on 26 August 1917.

The squadron operated the D.H.5 and S.E.5a aircraft flying from the Amiens and Dunkirk districts against German air and ground forces. After a period as Acting Flight Commander Cowper was confirmed in the position and promoted Temporary Captain. During his time in the air he accounted for many enemy aircraft. He was awarded a Military Cross for his gallantry and devotion to duty. Then in the following three week period in March, he took out eight German aeroplanes on his own and another two with his fellow pilots. This earned him a Bar to his Military Cross for gallantry and skill. During the following two weeks he also created great havoc and confusion among German ground forces when he flew twenty ground-attacks and despite his aircraft being hit repeatedly by enemy fire he pushed home his attacks and luckily escaped injury. For these deeds he was awarded a second Bar to his Military Cross. He was posted to England in April 1918 and transferred to the new Royal Air Force. After the Armistice was signed, Captain Cowper was posted to 79 Sqn and served in Germany as part of the British Occupation of Germany. He was later posted to India. He resigned his commission on 13 February 1920 and then returned to Australia.

As a result of his exploits in the air, Andrew King Cowper was No 24 Sqn's fourth highest scoring Ace and with his tally of 19 victories was the fifth highest scoring Ace of Australians serving in the RFC, RANAS and RAF.

An interesting letter was received by Mrs Cowper in 1969 from Cross & Cockade, The Society of World War I Aero Historians, Ohio Chapter, by a historian researching the death of Hauptmann Adolf Ritter von Tutschek who was second only to the famous Manfred von Richthofen in measure of worth to the German Air Service. The German ace was killed in an aerial battle with 24 Sqn and according to the letter writer Cowper was one of two British airmen involved with his death. The writer had a lot of material translated from German and wanted to give it to Andrew Cowper because he felt it was a pity that Cowper did not know that he had been involved in 'bagging' such a big fish. Andrew Cowper or his wife did not reply to the letter.

Andrew Cowper took over Wiliga, the family sheep property near Coonamble, NSW and on 28 April 1924 married Miriam Goldberg at Randwick, NSW. He was Anglican and she was Jewish so they married at the Randwick district registry office, and later had two sons. Due to severe drought, the Cowper family were forced to leave the land and moved to Sydney where Miriam opened a florist shop in the city and Andrew became proprietor of Henderson & Co, seed and plant merchants and later they added a gladioli farm at Mona Vale.

During WWII Cowper enlisted in the RAAF on 23 February 1942 and attained the rank of Squadron Leader in the Administrative and Special Duties Branch. He was discharged on 2 March 1945, his posting at the time was to the flying boat base, RAAF Base Rathmines. His son, Leon, also served in the RAAF at the rank of Warrant Officer. Andrew King Cowper outlived his wife and two sons by several years. He died on 25 June 1980 at the Prince of Wales Hospital, Randwick.

Recommendation for DCM (awarded MM): Near Clery-sur-Somme, on the 20th August 1918, in company with Lieut. McMillan, this man performed very valuable service in locating and destroying enemy machine gun posts. Under severe machine gun fire, he went forward attacked and killed several of the enemy and assisted in totally dislodging 4 posts with bombs and his revolver. He afterwards gave his Platoon Commander (Lieut. McMillan) most valuable assistance in organising and establishing forward posts after the enemy had been expelled. During the 29th/30th and 31st this sterling soldier has set a splendid example of bravery and determination. As a Company Scout, his reconnaissance work has been invaluable to his Company Commander and his total disregard for personal safety together with his magnificent courage has been a source of inspiration to the rest of his Platoon.

Group Captain Hugh Milton 'Smokey' Birch, born 26Jun1916 at

Collingwood, Victoria and educated at Scotch College, Melbourne; joined RAAF at Point Cook, Vic, as Air Cadet 18Jan1937; appt Pilot Officer 16Dec1937; graduated Point Cook 18Dec1937; 16Dec1938 Flying Officer; 01Sep1939 Flight Lieutenant; 01Jan1941 Squadron Leader; 01Apr1942 Wing Commander; 01Dec1943 Group Captain; Disch. 16Jul1946 as Group Captain ex HQs North Eastern Area; 06Sep1948 enrolled in Air Force Reserve.

Group Captain Hugh Milton 'Smokey' Birch joined the RAAF as an Air Cadet in 1937. He qualified as a pilot in 1937 with his examiner being Squadron Leader (later Air Marshall) Sir Frederick Scherger. He later held the appointment of OC Cruiser Flight No.5 Fleet Co-operation Sqn, RAAF Base Richmond which operated Supermarine Seagull amphibian aircraft and supplied pilots to Royal Australian Navy cruisers. While at Richmond he made a number of pelagic fishery flights for the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research throughout the Bass Strait Islands, Southern Tasmania and South Australian waters.

In 1939 he went to England to take delivery of Sunderland flying boats for the RAAF and when war broke out he was seconded to 210 Sqn RAF until the formation of the first Australian squadron overseas, No.10 Squadron, the first RAAF squadron to go into action. After flying anti-invasion patrols in the English Channel for six months he was attached to a French Squadron in the south of France.

In July 1940 Birch became the first pilot to put down a Sunderland in the Atlantic when he assisted in the rescue of some torpedoed seamen. Then on 29 July 1940 he was pilot of the first air battle ever between two flying boats. It was off the coast of France. The German Dornier's tailgunner was put out of action but not before he inflicted severe damage on the No.10 Squadron Sunderland. Birch's front gunner was severely wounded also in the battle but later recovered. The battle finished when the Dornier broke off. Birch was mentioned in despatches for this action.

In The Argus (Melbourne) Fri 27 June 1941, p1 is a report as follows,

WINS DFC ON BIRTHDAY; CANBERRA, Thursday. - Sqd.Ldr. Hugh Milton Birch, a Melbourne-born pilot serving with the RAAF Sunderland flying-boat squadron, has been awarded the DFC for 'untiring and devoted services, with flashes of brilliance whenever a critical situation occurred.'

Mr. McEwen, Air Minister, said today the award coincided with the airman's 25th birthday. He was the fifth member of the squadron to be decorated. The official citation made particular mention of a successful fight with 2 Ju.88's. Although the Junkers were modern twin-engined fighter bombers with a maximum speed of nearly 100 mph greater than that of the Sunderland, Sqd.Ldr. Birch destroyed one and damaged the other. The flying-boat was searching for survivors of a torpedoed merchant vessel when the Junkers were sighted flying on a parallel course a mile and a half away.

Ju.88 Shot Down. The Germans swerved and followed the Sunderland 3 or 4 miles astern. They disappeared in clouds, but emerged later firing their port guns. After breaking away from the first engagement the Junkers launched another attack from the rear. The Sunderland had gradually descended almost to sea level, and, despite a heavy attack, the gunners held their fire until the Junkers were at close range. They then poured several bursts into the leading enemy aircraft, which crashed into the sea with smoke pouring from the engine.

The second German continued to attack grimly, but eventually had to break away with smoke issuing from its starboard engine. Constantly losing height, it dropped its bomb load and made off into a rainstorm. It was thought likely the second German crashed. Search for the lifeboats was then resumed by the Sunderland. In his official report of the incident Sqd.Ldr. Birch concluded with: 'An uneventful patrol was completed at 5pm.'

Smokey Birch had many encounters with the Germans. In fact he had so many that he gained the nickname of the 'Jerry Magnet'. Shortly after this nickname was given to him in the English press, he received a parcel containing socks and mittens from a woman in England and the address on the parcel was simply, 'Jerry the Magnet'. At the age of 26 he was promoted to the rank of Group Captain thus becoming the youngest Group Captain in the RAAF.

He flew many secret missions transporting important government and service personnel. One such person was W.Averell Harriman who later sent Birch a copy of his 1976 book, Special Envoy to Churchill and Stalin' and on the front fly page was the handwritten inscription, 'To Hugh Birch with vivid remembrance of your skilful evasion of enemy aircraft at times 100 feet altitude! And our safe arrival at Malta. And my gratitude to you and the crew you commanded of the Sunderland.' He was then posted to RAF Ferry Command and in April 1942 Smokey Birch returned to Australia flying the first B25 Mitchell medium bomber to be delivered from San Francisco to Brisbane and in 1943 made several other ferry flights from San Diego across the Pacific flying Catalinas. He was also CO of RAAF Station at Rathmines, the RAAF flying boat base.

After demobilisation from the RAAF, Smokey Birch joined W.R.Carpenter's airline and flew throughout Papua New Guinea. In 1949 Qantas acquired the W.R.Carpenter airline and Birch became their first pilot to inaugurate flights throughout the Pacific and pioneered the Catalina flying boat service from Sydney (Rose Bay) to Lord Howe Island and also flew the Noumea-Vila-Santo-Suva service. He was the captain on the first Qantas scheduled Catalina service in PNG and was also a check captain on the Sandringham flying boats and on the DC3 Bird of Paradise service. He also flew the Qantas Sandringhams that operated from Rose Bay in Sydney Harbour to Noumea, a 9 1/2 hour flight.

In 1950 Captain Birch piloted a survey flight across the South Pacific to Fiji, Tonga, Tahiti and Samoa for Qantas, which laid the foundation for the TEAL Coral Route to Tahiti. As Qantas Flight Captain Flying Boats, Hugh Birch flew the last Qantas flying boat, a Sandringham, out of Southampton for Australia, landing on the way at Malta on 4 July 1951, before final destination of Rose Bay, the Qantas flying boat base in Sydney Harbour. In the early 1950s he represented Qantas in Singapore as Area Manager for South-East Asia. He then took up a senior management position in America based in San Francisco. In 1962 after serving for four years as the North American Manager for Qantas, Hugh Birch was made an Honorary Deputy Sheriff (Air Squadron) of San Francisco for community services. He then returned to Australia to take up the position of Qantas airline manager for Victoria and Tasmania.

Operating from Melbourne, he faced the task of winning back the support of travel agents who were being enticed away from Qantas by financial incentives offered by foreign airlines. To help achieve his goal Birch set up a special room called the Sheriff's Posse and decorated it with country and western artefacts he had brought back from his time working in America. And, of course, he was an Honorary Deputy Sheriff of San Francisco, something that he played on when entertaining the travel agents that he invited to the Sheriff's Posse where, with his good stories and affable personality, he was able to win over many of the more difficult agents.

In 1972 the Mayor of Dunkirk, M.Claude Provyveur visited Sydney to present commemorative medals to those who participated in the evacuation of Dunkirk in 1940. One recipient was Hugh Birch, at this time the Qantas Public Affairs Manager, and in addition to receiving his personal medal Captain Birch also accepted, on behalf of the Qantas General Manager, Captain R.J.Ritchie, who was overseas at the time, a plaque that the mayor presented to Qantas. During his time as Public Affairs Manager, Birch, who had a reputation as perhaps the best known and certainly the most extrovert aviation executive in Australia, was used on a cover of Time magazine in a promotional campaign directed towards advertising agencies and managers.

Hugh Birch became the Regional Director for the South Pacific for Qantas until he retired in 1977. He then became the Australian tourism representative for the island of Tonga and later a public relations promoter of Alaska in Australia. In 1986 after more than 12,000 flying hours, Captain Birch was awarded a Master Air Pilot certificate by The Guild of Air Pilots and Air Navigators and became an Upper Freeman of that Guild.

For the Bartolomeo Colleoni action, there were six DSMs awarded as follows, Chief Petty Officer A.P.Prior, Chief Petty Officer S.G.Silk, Chief Ordnance Artificer W.J.Keane, Chief Stoker J.N.Beaumont, Able Seaman G.Rosevear, Stoker E.Evans.

Geoffrey Rosevear, born 03Jan1911 at Launceston, Tasmania; Enl.12Feb1929; Home Port of Melbourne, Vic; KIA 20Nov1941 in Indian Ocean on HMAS Sydney II; Geoffrey's brother, Lance, was also serving on the Sydney; Lance Rosevear, born at Don, Tasmania 24Mar1916; Enl.10Jun1935; Home Port Melbourne, Vic; KIA 20Nov1941 in Indian Ocean on HMAS Sydney II.

In The Examiner newspaper, March 19, 2008 the cousin of the Rosevear brothers was interviewed. She revealed that the boys' father was a merchant in Devonport and traded from a place right on the Esplanade opposite the wharf. The brothers had enjoyed a visit home to Tasmania before the fateful last voyage of the Sydney II. She said Geoffrey had moved to Sydney before the war. He was raised in Devonport but he married a girl named Eileen from Bondi and lived in Sydney. Lance married a girl named Olive from Scotland. After their visit home, they went back to the mainland on the old SS Taroona and caught the train to Sydney. Halfway between Melbourne and Sydney the train pulled up suddenly and all sailors were taken off. They went back to the ship and were never heard from again. After the loss of the brothers, their cousin said rules were implemented to ensure that in future brothers did not serve on the same ship in wartime.

Both brothers are commemorated at the Australian War Memorial and at the Plymouth Naval Memorial at Plymouth, Devon, England.

Battle of Cape Spada (sinking of Bartolomeo Colleoni)

HMAS Sydney II, on 18 July 1940, in company with the destroyer HMS Havoc, responded to an enemy report from HMS Hyperion and, sailing to meet the British destroyers, opened fire at 20,000 yards on two pursuing Italian cruisers, Bartolomeo Colleoni and Giovanni Delle Bande Nere. The Italians returned fire, turned away and made smoke and thus the action became a chase. Initially hits were scored on the 'Bande Nere'. In order to prevent the Italians rounding Cape Spada, Captain Collins of the Sydney directed that fire be concentrated on Bartolomeo Colleoni. Hits were being registered on her, still at long range but eventually she succumbed to the numerous hits and lost speed. She was down in the bows and on fire and so was left by Sydney for the destroyers to finish her off.

Sydney then pursued 'Bande Nere' but could not keep pace with the faster Italian cruiser and, with her ammunition virtually expended, abandoned the chase when the enemy was no longer visible. During the action, Sydney sustained only one hit, to her forward funnel, which did not affect her performance.

The attack group of six ships returned to Alexandria around 11:00 on 20 July after fending off several air attacks, one of which damaged HMS Havock, and were met by cheering from all ships in the harbour. For his actions, Captain Collins was appointed a Companion of the Order of the Bath, while other officers and sailors from the Sydney received three Distinguished Service Orders, a Distinguished Service Cross, six Distinguished Service Medals, and twelve Mentions in Despatches and Sydney was awarded the battle honour 'Spada 1940'.

Sydney returned to Australia in February 1941 to wide public acclaim for her Mediterranean campaign. She was met by the Governor-General and the Minister for the Navy, the Honourable William Hughes. The Premier of NSW and the City of Sydney Lord Mayor went on board and presented a plaque to the ship to commemorate the victory over the Bartolomeo Colleoni on behalf of the citizens of Sydney. The plaque was composed of two large cast medallions mounted on oak and was affixed to the gun housing of 'Y' turret below the sighting ports. Capt Collins then led a march of the ship's company through the streets of Sydney to the Town Hall for a civic reception. Thousands lined the route and school children were given the day off school so they too could join in the celebrations. At the civic reception each crew member was presented with a medallion, being a miniature version of that presented to the ship, namely the Bartolomeo Colleoni Medal. All medals were individually inscribed to each recipient.

Loss of HMAS Sydney II in the Indian Ocean with all hands on board.

On 19 November 1941 HMAS Sydney encountered a merchant ship which turned out to be the German auxiliary cruiser Kormoran in disguise. A fierce battle ensued. The Sydney was last seen by the German crew limping off into the distance. A fire on board was visible on the horizon and finally she disappeared, believed sunk with all officers and crew on board. The severely disabled Kormoran was scuttled. It was not until 2008 that the wreck of the Sydney and the Kormoran were found about 21km apart in the Indian Ocean and about 2,500 metres below sea level. On discovery, both wrecks were placed under the protection of the Historic Shipwrecks Act 1976 and they were also placed on the Australian National Heritage List on 14 March 2011.

The Kangaroo Out of His Element, The Representative Newspaper of the Australian Imperial Expeditionary Force (1st Battalion), published on board the Troopship "Afric" - first issue, October 1914, six columns spread across a cotton tabby weave fabric page (57x43.5cm) printed in black ink with a central image of King George V and Queen Mary, also an official section 'For the Announcements of the Battalion Commander Lieut.-Col. Dobbin', at bottom right corner, Printed by Walter Wade for the Expeditionary Force on board the Troopship/" Afric", a collection of humorous tales and anecdotes. Ink faded, as to be expected, fold marks and some staining, otherwise fine and very rare first edition.

In the first column is written,

'The Kangaroo claims to be among the first class of newspapers printed and published on board a ship. Therefore, in taking the first leap along the deck of A19, otherwise known as the White Star Australian liner Afric, a line or two to justify its foundation and existence should be ample.

This is the first occasion of such a wholesale exodus from Wattleville, and The Kangaroo Proprietary, realizing the countless combinations of the English Alphabet, considered the event should be marked by the daily publication of a newspaper for the benefit of the officers and men who voluntarily took the step. This applies in no less degree to the master, officers and crew of A19, in whose care, fatherly and motherly, all of us are to an extent and for the time being placed.'

HMAT A19 Afric was a twelve thousand ton troop transport ship that embarked from Sydney carrying units of the 1st Australian Division, including the 1st Battalion Infantry, Army Service Corps and Engineers. It was one of the first fleet of eleven ships, the 1st Australian Expeditionary Force that sailed to Albany in Western Australia to meet up with the New Zealand Fleet.

The printer of The Kangaroo newspaper was Walter Wade (service no.196), age 23, journalist, born at Waterford, Ireland. He enlisted on 04Sep1914 at Kensington, NSW, was assigned to 1st Bn and embarked 18Oct1914. Shortly after arriving in the Middle East, Wade deserted from Mena Camp, Egypt on 12Dec1914. This was confirmed following a Court of Inquiry convened at Mena Camp on 04Jan1915 by order of Lt-Col. L.Dobbin, CO of 1st Bn.

Pte H.G.Monk gave evidence at the inquiry and part of this evidence was as follows, 'At about 11.30 a.m. on Saturday 12th December 1914 I left Mena Camp in the company of Pte Wade and proceeded to Cairo and at about 2.30 p.m. we went to the Railway Station in search of a printing press the property of Wade. In conversation with Wade the latter stated that he was tired of the Force and wished to leave it.'

As a result of his desertion, Wade forfeited all right to any war medals.

William Archibald Windeyer was admitted as a solicitor on 22 August 1896, began practice in Sydney on his own and eventually established a law firm that continues to bear his name. On the night of 18 May 1902 Windeyer took the main part in rescuing young people from a rowing boat capsized in Fern Bay, near his Hunters Hill home, and was awarded a silver medal by the Royal Shipwreck Relief and Humane Society of New South Wales.

Elected an alderman of Hunters Hill Municipal Council in 1904, Windeyer served for twenty-three years and was mayor in 1915-24; the W. A. Windeyer Memorial Reserve was named after him. He was a director of Standard Life Association Ltd and Bain's White Ant Exterminator Co. Ltd, president of the Hunters Hill branch of the Liberal Association, a council-member of the Kindergarten Union of New South Wales, chairman of the Boy Scouts' Association from 1943, and director of and honorary solicitor to the Sydney Homoeopathic Hospital. He was appointed MBE in 1920. His work for returned servicemen was recognized in 1936 by the Returned Sailors' and Soldiers' Imperial League of Australia.

He was the father of Major General Sir William John Victor Windeyer KBE, CB, DSO & Bar, KC (28 July 1900 - 23 November 1987) who was an Australian judge, soldier, educator, and a Justice of the High Court of Australia.
