

Fourteenth Session, Commencing at 11.30 am

ANCIENT GOLD COINS

GREEK

3715*

Lydia, uncertain king, issued before 561 B.C. and probably c.575 B.C., electrum trite or third stater, (4.66 g) of Lydian-Milesian (Phoenician standard), probably issued at Sardis, obv. head of roaring lion to right, knob with three rays on forehead, rev. double incuse punch, (S.3398, BMC 7 [p.2], Weidauer [Essays to Robinson] Class XVI, Weber 5710 [This Coin], SNG Cop. 449-451, ACNAC Rosen 231, ACNAC Dewing 2421-3, Boston 1768). Good fine with several interesting countermarks and rare a most extraordinary item with so many countermarks coming with a marvellous pedigree.

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 94 (lot 4680) and previously from the Montagu Collection, Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, Auction Sale, March 15-19, 1897 (lot 475 part) and the Sir Hermann Weber Collection (No.5710, p.218, Pl.203), Spink & Son, London, March 27, 2002 (lot 58) and from the Wayne Woolmer and Bruce Canning Collections.

ROMAN IMPERIAL

3716*

$3,000

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 88 (lot 3367).

3717*

$12,000

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 75 (lot 1699).

As Struck Lucius Verus Aureus

3718*

Ex Leu Numismatik AG Auction 87, 6th May 2003 (lot 36) from the collection of a perfectionist who acquired it privately in 1967.

The youthful Hercules on the reverse of this rare coin is not the Hercules Gaditanus of Trajan's coinage, but Hercules Pacifero, the restorer of peace after the victories of Lucius Verus in Armenia. Verus continued his campaign in the following year, culminating in his sack of the Parthian capital, Ctesiphon, in 165, and a great triumph was held in Rome in 166. Soon thereafter both emperors moved north to face the Marcomanni, over whom they were also ultimately victorious. On his way back to Rome in 169 Verus died of what was apparently a stroke at the age of 38. Marcus Aurelius probably genuinely mourned his passing, especially since it led to far greater burdens being imposed on the rapidly aging senior emperor.

Virtually Mint State Severus Alexander Aureus

Severus Alexander, (A.D.222-235), gold aureus, issued 230, Rome mint, (5.83 g), obv. laureate head to right, drapery on far shoulder, around IMP SEV ALE XAND AVG, rev. $1,000

Ex Noble Numismatics Sale 61 (lot 2591) and Sale 64 (lot 2428).

After a considerable interval, Carthage resumed coining in Sicily around the mid-century, probably in response to the challenge of Timoleon. There are no legends which identify these coins as belonging to a mint or even to the 'camp', but are probably military issues and consequently are very rare in ancient coinage. A camp mint was moveable, but it may have been headquartered most of the time at Lilybaeum. The obverse type of this coinage is copied rather crudely from the tetradrachms of Syracuse, but clearly, because of the harshness, is the work by a Punic engraver.

Siculo-Punic, "Camp of Melkart", (c.330-305 B.C.), silver tetradrachm, (17.24 g), obv. charioteer driving a quadriga of rearing horses to right, holding kentron in right hand, reins in left hand, Nike flying above and crowning charioteer, Punic legend ['RSMLQRT'] in exergue, rev. wreathed head of Persephone to right wearing triple-pendant earring and necklace, four dolphins around, (S.-, Jenkins, SNR 50, 49 [same dies, dies 018/R31], BMC 15 [same dies], SNG Lloyd 1601 [same obverse die], Boston 269 [same reverse die]). Light grey tone, good very fine, well centred, very attractive and rare.

Jenkins records ten examples from this pair of dies with a total of fifteen left facing heads from two obverse and two reverse dies. The right facing head comes from one pair of dies.

Undoubtedly one of the most remarkable tetradrachms types ever issued, since it shows a successful blending of Greek and non-Greek elements. The general type itself is known for only three obverse and three reverse dies. Its place of mintage remains uncertain, though the Greek engraver was clearly an artist of the highest calibre. The legend only tells us that it was an issue of "people of the camp", a designation that is shared with many other Siculo-Punic issues. The iconography is of particular interest as the distinctive female head in an oriental tiara usually is taken to represent Dido the legendary queen and founder of Carthage (814 B.C.). Dido was also known as Elissa the daughter of a king Pygmalion of Tyre (825-813 B.C.), but the portrait is more likely to be of Tanit the great Punic goddess. The reverse shows a prowling lion before a palm tree which could possibly be a reference to the recruitment of large numbers of Libyans into the Carthaginian army as a move to counter the new threat posed by Agathocles of Syracuse. Jenkins (SNR 56, p.26) makes the intriguing suggestion that when Carthage adopted a new aggressive policy under the leadership of Hamilcar, son of Gisgon, these coins were possibly presentation pieces for that elite battalion of two thousand citizens which headed the armada. (Diodoros XIX, 106). Hamilcar might also have had these coins struck for those Sicilian Greeks, who were mainly exiled Syracusans serving in his army.

An example of the second die type (No.271) sold for 63,250 SFr. in October 1999 in Leu Sale 76 held in Switzerland (lot 68) and another example from the same dies realised US$38,000 in NFA X auction sale of September 17 and 18, 1981 (lot 78).

The provenance of Count Torremuzza is interesting as related in this following account: J.W. Goethe "Italian Journey [1786-1788]" Penguin edn.1970 (p.244), notes for the day 12th April 1787 when visiting Palermo in Sicily that :

"Today we were shown Prince Torremuzza's collection of coins. I went there almost reluctantly. I understand too little about this field, and a merely inquisitive tourist is the bane of the true connoisseur. But after all, one has to begin somewhere, so I relented and derived great pleasure and some profit from our visit.

The ancient world was dotted with cities and even the smallest of them has left us, in its precious coins, a record, if not of the whole course of art history, at least of some epochs of it. An eternal spring of art's immortal fruits and flowers smiled up at us out of these drawers, telling of a craftsmanship perfected and practised over a lifetime, and of much else besides."

Ex Probably from Tunis 1948 hoard (ICGH 2271) as are most known examples.

This type was unique and only known by the De Luynes example until the discovery of the Tunis hoard which increased the number by at least another thirty five examples. The find spot suggests Carthage as the mint, but this is uncertain and likewise also is the date of issue. However to finance the war against Rome a special issue of gold coins would seem likely and if from Carthage it would represent the last gold issue of Carthage. This issue comes from a pair of dies of which only two examples are recorded by Jenkins and Lewis. It is highly probably this piece is the second example noted in that listing by the authors.

An issue made by Hannibal, this coinage was previously attributed to Capua in Campania, but has been conclusively reattributed to the Carthaginians in Bruttium under Hannibal (see M.H. Crawford, "Provenances, Attributions, and Chronology of Some Early Italian Coinages," CH IX (2002), p. 274, and HN Italy). While it is likely that this issue was minted in Bruttium by the Carthaginians, there is a possibility that these coins were struck in Carthage and transported to South Italy for Hannibal's use (see G.K. Ex Classical Numismatic Group, Mail Bid Sale 58, September 19, 2001 (lot 745).

This was the largest struck bronze coin struck west of Egypt. It rarely appears for sale and almost all known examples are worn examples similar to this piece. The issue was the result of a monetary reform after 200 B.C. following the total and shattering defeat in the Second Punic War. The era saw the introduction of two new bronze issues, one of about 20 grams and the other the much rarer multiple unit of about 100 grams. The heavier multiple unit comes with two reverses one with the horse standing (as in this example) and another with the horse stepping to the right. They were both struck concurrently and these from very few dies suggesting a relatively short period of time for its issue. The lighter 20 grams examples were found in worn condition in the destruction stratum of 146 B.C. at Carthage indicating that this lighter issue were minted earlier in the century and that they had fifty years of circulation.

At the end of the First Punic War in 246 B.C., Carthage found herself confronted with a dilemma. Large numbers of Greek, Italian and African mercenaries had been hired to pursue the war with Rome, and now Carthage, defeated and bankrupt, had no money for the pay owed to them. Rebellion broke out in Sardinia and Africa. The latter situation became critical when one of the leaders, Matho, a native Libyan, inspired the native population to join the mercenaries against their Punic Carthaginian overlords. Military unrest became a nationalist war of liberation. Coins were struck in the name of Libya and "M", which has been taken as either "machanat" - the Camp (of the mercenaries), or perhaps Matho, their leader. The first issues were apparently on overstruck Carthaginian silver shekels, but later issues are found on newly prepared flans, although the fineness of the silver seems to vary greatly. Hamilcar Barca, the great Carthaginian general, finally suppressed the revolt in 238 B.C.

Robinson initially attributed this coin to the Spanish mint but the discovery of examples in the Enna hoard and other Sicilian hoards (Burnett, "The Enna Hoard" SNR 62 p.11) makes it more likely that this coin was struck in Carthage for use in the Sicilian campaign of 213-210 B.C. Jenkins records only two examples of this coin struck from these dies with only twenty recorded Thermai tetradrachms known. A hoard has provided several more examples including this piece.

The signature ΚΑΗ of the engraver has been suggested to be that of the master engraver Kletias. The issue followed the destruction of Himera in 409 B.C. and the population that fled were allowed to settle at Thermai next to the hot springs. This new city was also inhabited by Carthaginians who dominated that city. The city was allowed to strike a very small quantity of coinage similar in manner to that struck by other Sicilian Carthaginian mints. Only four obverse and five reverse dies are known for the coinage.

THE R. G. KALDOR COLLECTION

Robert G Kaldor. Born in Hungary in 1921, and migrating to Melbourne in 1949, Robert G Kaldor was a professional numismatist who travelled frequently and widely through Europe, Asia and the Americas in the 1960s and 70s. He was both a collector and dealer of numismatic items ranging from ancients to modern, up until his death in 1981. His Chinese collection of coins was created during Mr Kaldor's many visits to Hong Kong, Singapore and other Asian countries during those years. He also added to his Chinese collection with purchases from various European auction houses and dealers. Mr Kaldor's collection remained intact within the family until the late 2000s and has been progressively auctioned through Noble Numismatics in Australia commencing in 2008, and Hess Divo, Zurich, Switzerland commencing in 2010. He was an Overseas Fellow of the Royal Numismatic Society from 1970 and maintained his membership of the Numismatic Association of Victoria where he was resident.
