In 1882 William Owen became a Queen's Counsellor and by June of the following year he was acknowledged as one of the leaders of the common law Bar after successfully winning an important damages claim case against distinguished opposing counsel led by W. B. Dalley. On 18 October 1887 Owen was appointed to the Supreme Court bench as Chief Judge in Equity. In November 1896 he transferred to the common law jurisdiction and was also Deputy-Judge Commissary in the Vice-Admiralty Court.

He filled the post of President of several Royal Commissions, one such commission in 1892 cleared E. M. G. Eddy, chief commissioner of railways, of charges of maladministration. Then in 1905-07 he was sole royal commissioner on the administration of the Lands Department. He was knighted in 1906 and on 1 February 1908 he resigned his position as Supreme Court Judge and retired. Sir William Owen died at his residence, Ellesmere, at Hunters Hill, Sydney on 22 November 1912 and was buried in the Anglican section of Waverley Cemetery.

Sir William's grandson, W.C.Owen, married into the family of another notable lawyer, Judge Tom Rolin (see lot 854).

$200

Together with one half of the medal case.

The recipient's name on the medal is recorded with the surname in English and the first name in Latin, as was the common practice at the time of recording names in Ireland in Parish records. His name in English is William Owen.

Sir William Owen (1834-1912) was born on 4 November 1834 at Marlfield, Gorey, Wexford, Ireland, the fourth son of Colonel Robert Owen, 72nd Highlanders, and his wife Charlotte (McCarthy). He was educated at Cheltenham College, Gloucestershire, England 1848-52 and at Trinity College, Dublin (B.A., 1857), where he won a silver medal for ethics and logics, the above medal, and a prize for English verse. In 1859 he became a student at King's Inn, Dublin, and subsequently he studied at Lincoln's Inn, London and in due course was called to the Irish Bar. On 6 March 1860 he married Elizabeth Charlotte (Carey) in Dublin and they migrated to Sydney, NSW, Australia where he was admitted to the colonial Bar on 7 September of that same year.

William developed a comprehensive grasp of the law in all its branches but he was a specialist in Equity. He was commissioner of the Court of Claims from 1861 to 1887. He also was appointed Under-secretary of the Colonial Secretary's Department on 16 June 1865 but resigned early in the following year. It was in this year on 11 January when his wife and elder son were drowned when the British steamship SS London foundered in the Bay of Biscay while en route from England to Australia. In 1868 he first suggested reforms in Equity procedure and in 1870, assisted by Sir Alfred Stephen and Sir William Manning, he drew up a bill for the law reform commission, which was twice introduced but unsuccessful on both occasions. On 3 July 1875 at Hunters Hill Owen married Florence Levick, but she died next year. Owen, however pressed on with his attempt to reform the Equity procedure and his evidence helped to convince the 1880 Legislative Assembly select committee that the Equity jurisdiction was 'dilatory, expensive, ruinous to suitors and not in accord with the judicial progress of the age'. The Equity Act of 1880 was based on his draft.

'Barkwith was 19 years of age, and working as a miner. Some time ago, a number of boys had gone to bathe in a dam off Arnold Street (Sandhurst). None of them were able to swim, and Sydney Hayden, sixteen years of age, suddenly got out of his depth, and disappeared in 15ft or 16ft of water. Barkwith heard their cries for help three hundred yards away, and running down to the dam plunged into the water with his clothes on, finding Hayden in 16ft of water. The drowning boy clutched him by the neck and so tenaciously did he hold that both were nearly drowned, and it was only owing to the exertions of Barkwith that both were eventually saved.'

Tom Rolin, born at Sydney 12 October 1863, the son of a solicitor, was educated first at Cleveland Street School and then at Sydney Grammar School. He passed the following subjects at the Junior Examinations held at Sydney University in 1878 - History & Geography (S), English (H), French (L), Latin (H), Greek (H), Arithmetic (H), Algebra (H) and Geometry (H) (S 'Satisfied Examiners', H 'High Pass, L 'Low Pass'). In 1883 he obtained his B.A. degree and was also awarded a gold medal for proficiency in classics and mathematics.

Tom Rolin progressed to gain his M.A. in 1885 and was called to the NSW Bar on 17 August 1886. He held positions on university groups including Captain of the Sydney University Boat Crew for 3 years having rowed in the first University Eight that went to Melbourne. In 1892 was Vice President of the Sydney University Sports Union. In 1898 he was appointed a Crown Prosecutor. He was on the committee of the Australasian Federation League and in 1907 was appointed Acting District Court Judge. He was also President of the Sydney Fencing Club, Captain of Killara Golf Club and a Vice President of the University Law Society.

Judge Rolin was appointed King's Counsel in 1912. At the outbreak of WWI he helped form and became Captain of the Sydney Golf Club Rifle Range. In 1917 he was appointed Judge to the Industrial Court and later presided over the District Court and criminal jurisdiction. Judge Rolin died at his home on 9 May 1927 and his funeral service, which was held the next day at Rookwood Crematorium, was attended by a large number of dignitaries. Judge Rolin was the father-in-law of W.L.Owen who was the grandson of the notable Supreme Court judge, Sir William Owen (see lot 848).

Donald Campbell was born in the Highlands of Scotland. He came to Australia in the mid 1800s and settled in the Richmond River area of NSW with his wife and eight children, three boys and five girls.

He was recognised early as a good judge of draught horses and became manager of the renowned Wooroowoolgen Station from 1871-1886. It was stated that during his time at Wooroowoolgen, he raised the pure bred herd of cattle to a high standard by numerous importations from England and sires from the best herds of NSW and Victoria. His eldest son, Alexander Campbell, took over the management of Wooroowoolgen in 1887. Donald then acquired the Roseneath Estate near Casino and entered into the breeding of draught horses.

The greatest improvement in the draught stock at Roseneath, was Campbell's purchase of the Clydesdale stallion "Grandmaster" from Scotland for a 'big figure'. "Grandmaster" was a horse of great power, combined with beautiful symmetry and action. Because of his size and strength it was noted that he wore the largest collar known at the time. "Grandmaster" won many prizes, particularly at the Casino shows and sired a number of future prize winners.

Donald Campbell had a great impact in the Casino area;

- President of the Richmond River Agricultural Horticultural and Pastoral Society,

- Trustee of the Casino Show,

- Great studmaster for Clydesdales.

Donald Campbell truly was a pioneer of the pastoral industry in Australia.

Volunteered cross, WWI, in gilt and enamel (24x34mm), with suspension loop, reverse inscribed, 'A.E.Kaye'. Good very fine and scarce.

$80

These crosses were offered for sale by the Victorian based, Australian Patriot's League, at two shillings each. Any accepted, discharged, or rejected volunteer, for the navy, army, or nursing services, could apply for the badge upon provision of a signed declaration that they had volunteered to serve and the badges were named to the individual on the reverse. The government was opposed to these badges so in 1918, after the introduction of its own badges for volunteers, returned veterans, medically unfit and those required for home service, the Department of Recruiting declared the wearing of the Australian Patriot's League's Volunteer badge to be unlawful.

Riverina Movement badge, undated (1931), in gilt and enamel (24x15mm), by Angus & Coote, pin back. Uncirculated and scarce.

$100

The Riverina Movement was originally initiated in the 1850s by the separatist, Dr John Dunmore Lang. It lapsed in the 1880s but reactivated in the 1920s and by the early 1930s was in full swing under the presidency of Charles Downey Hardy (Senator for Country Party 1932-1938) with thousands gathering to hear him speak at the Wagga Secession Rally. In 1931 a special movement badge was created based on the Australian Army Rising Sun badge with an Australian flag and the letter R (Riverina) in the centre of the flag. A women's auxiliary was formed at Wagga to support the Riverina Movement with more than one hundred women and girls enrolled in a few minutes and these volunteers embarked on an intensive campaign to enrol members and sell Riverina Movement badges.

The Movement sought to have the Riverina break away from New South Wales and become a self governing province. Senator Hardy and others from the area felt that those in the country, in particular the primary producers, were being ignored by the State as well as the Commonwealth governments. Rallies were held and there was huge support for the movement in the Riverina. The government ignored the Movement's resolutions and as the economy began to recover following the defeat of the Jack Lang led NSW Government in 1932, the Movement lost its momentum and faded away.

Captain Lester Joseph Brain A.F.C., A.M.I.E., Commendation for bravery during WWII, citation reads: "Capt.Brain was in charge of ferry operations of flying boats to Java when Broome was heavily raided in May 1942. He organised the rescue of passengers from aircraft destroyed on the water, and was instrumental in the success of various undertakings required in the transport of men and equipment to the forward zones." He was the senior founder of Qantas, and earned fame for the search and discovery of Anderson and Hitchcock's missing aircraft 'Kookaburra' which had been tragically lost in the search for Kingsford-Smith's 'Southern Cross'. He again made news headlines in his search for Messrs Moir and Owen, finding them both alive after they were forced down onto an isolated part of the Australian coast from engine trouble during their crossing of the Timor Sea as part of an England-Australia flight.

At the 1914 annual meeting of the Railway and Tramway Ambulance Corps the Chief Commissioner presented certificates instead of gold medals and other awards notifying recipients that the presentation of these would be deferred to a later date in view of the war and the condition of the finances. This later date arrived on Tuesday night 2 March 1915 when a special awards presentation night was held at the Railway and Tramway Institute, the Chief Commissioner presiding. Herman Coath was one of the recipients for the year 1914 examinations for an efficiency gold medal.

Herman Ernest Coath was born at Mumbil, NSW. At age 27 he enlisted in the AIF at Liverpool, NSW. He embarked on 9 August 1915 and on 4 November joined 2 Battalion and served at Gallipoli from 4 November 1915. He was posted to 1 Machine Gun Battalion on 1 April 1918, and was wounded in action on 12 September 1918. He returned to Australia on 21 March 1919 and was discharged on 4 July 1919. His name was placed on the Wellington District Honour Board located at the railway station for railwaymen who had enlisted in AIF.
