ANZAC & C.D.C. Queen No 4, undated, in copper (24mm) (M.A/2), with suspension loop, blank reverse inscribed, 'To/Captain/Hardham/11/661/Jan 1917/C.D.C.'. Many contact marks and some obverse lettering worn and a bend at bottom edge, obviously from being worn as a fob, good but rare and unique.

$200

Captain William J. Hardham VC was Commandant of Queen Mary Hospital, Hanmer Springs in the Canterbury region of New Zealand. Captain Hardham was awarded the VC in the Boer War, he was then wounded at Gallipoli in WWI and upon his return to New Zealand he was appointed Commandant (June 1916 - September 1917) of the Queen Mary (soldiers' convalescent) Hospital at Hanmer Springs. While there he requested from the C.D.C. (Citizens' Defence Corps) some tennis balls, racquets and golf balls for use by the recuperating hospital patients. When these arrived the above inscribed C.D.C. medal was included. The number 11/661 is Captain Hardham's WWI service number. There is no post-nominal for his VC but apparently he did not like using this so it was probably omitted as a mark of respect. The Queen No 4 on the medal is probably a reference to the Soldiers' Queen Carnival Committee of the C.D.C. and No 4 was one of its units at Fendalton, Christchurch. Mrs George Heaton Rhodes was a representative of the C.D.C. for the committee at Fendalton.

RHS of NZ Case Number 360 - John Cross, John Sanderson, James Glasgow, Thomas Cairns, James Ashley - Silver Medals - On 18 February 1913 at Paekakariki, Frank Malcolm, James Ginanne and Walter Pengally were out fishing in a small boat, and when attempting to return and escape a big swell which had come up, the boat capsized and all three went into the water; Pengally failed to reach the boat and was drowned; the other two clung to the overturned boat. For fully 40 minutes John Cross, John Sanderson, James Glasgow, Thomas Cairns and James Ashley, made repeated attempts to reach the ones in difficulty, and after some time succeeded in getting them safely to shore.

Royal Humane Society of New Zealand Bronze Medal, (1967), type 2 (O&D.126), with ribbon brooch bar, reverse inscribed, 'Awarded to Lynette S.Knight for an act of bravery on 17th January 1967'. Some light oxidation on reverse, otherwise very fine.

RHS of NZ Case Number 1231 - Lynette Shirley Knight - Bronze Medal - On 17 January 1967, four men were swimming in the Pomahaka River, two miles from Tapanui when one of them dived into a waterhole fifteen feet deep. When he did not surface a companion tried to rescue him but could not reach the bottom. Lynette Shirley Knight, 14, who had been swimming earlier, dived into the river and with difficulty brought the man to the surface. Other bystanders applied resuscitation and he subsequently recovered in hospital. The area of the river is described as dangerous with jagged rock edges, and Miss Knight, who was exhausted after her efforts, showed courage and great determination in effecting this rescue and saving life.

With copy of RHS of NZ 1968 Annual Report showing details of award to Lynette Shirley Knight.

Presentation cane mount, undated, in silver (24mm diameter, 22mm high), two holes on one side for affixing to cane and on the other side is inscribed, 'W.L.Wallace/from/R.S.Bell/Sunday Island/Kermadecs'. Good very fine, historic and unique.

$200

Raoul (Roy) Sunday Bell was born 19 February 1882 on Sunday (Raoul) Island, the largest of the Kermadec Islands. His parents had moved there in December 1878 from New Zealand. His father, Thomas Bell, had dreams of claiming Sunday Island as his own after farming and occupying it for several years but with the impending colonisation by Germany, the New Zealand Government requested Britain to lay claim to the island. They did this on 31 July 1886 and despite the protests by Thomas Bell, who laid claim to the island, the Kermadacs became part of the British Empire. He was allocated some land on the island to farm and despite claims of his title to the island due to his pioneering efforts and many legal appeals over the course of several years, his claim was never recognised.

Roy Bell went on to become a scientific collector for Gregory Matthews, an author of Birds of Australasia, from c1910 and took up residence at Norfolk Island. He served in WWI listing his birthplace as Sunday Island and his occupation as a taxidermist. Part of his service included time as 2/Air Mechanic with 3 Sqn Australian Flying Corps from March 1917. On his return to Australia in January 1919 he was discharged as medically unfit. He served again in WWII enlisting on 13 December 1941 at Norfolk Island with the stated occupation of photographer. He served with the Norfolk Island Infantry Detachment until discharged on 19 March 1942 as medically unfit. One of Roy's photographs of Ball Bay was used on the first issue of Norfolk Island stamps. He died on 28 March 1966 at Norfolk Island.

W.L.Wallace was born in Tasmania and later moved to New Zealand. He became friends with Roy Bell after they met when Wallace served on the 1908 Kermadec Islands Expedition. During this expedition, Wallace discovered on Raoul Island a rare Saprosites Raoulensis, a species of dung beetle endemic to the Kermadecs. This specimen he collected is held at the Auckland Museum.

Together with extensive research including military service records for Roy Bell.

On the 9th November 1914 the Light Cruiser HMAS Sydney engaged the German Light Cruiser SMS Emden within sight of the beach at the Cocos (Keeling) Islands, immediately following an attempt by the Germans to dismantle a communications post on the island. Up to then Emden had been a commerce raider in the region under the command of Karl von Muller. Muller opened fire first at long range and John Gossop commanding the Sydney responded scoring several direct hits, effectively putting the Emden out of action, killing and wounding many of her crew before Muller beached the ship to save further loss of life. Sydney fired more shots at Emden when she was attempting to beach.

The painting, one of a series of important historical maritime topics by this artist is the culmination of careful research. Gray's work has been collected by enthusiasts of the maritime genre in Australia and Europe. Two of his pieces are held in the Pictures Collection of the State Library of Victoria and others are widely published in print and through television media.
