Sergeant Wilkinson was a prominent figure in the 1906 campaign that followed the assassination of Natal Police Inspector Hunt by a lawless Zulu group in the Bambata Rebellion. He led a small party which captured Hunt's assassins and recovered his revolver and other property. Following this, Wilkinson was subjected to several unsuccessful assassination attempts.

Sergeant Wilkinson's son, 5544 Sergeant Kenneth Thomas Wilkinson serving with Umvoti Mounted Rifles in World War II, was taken POW at Tobruk on 20 June 1942. Along with another South African POW he escaped and was recaptured on 2 occasions before a final successful escape from a camp in Perugia wearing German uniforms and accompanied by three German deserters. He was awarded a MID for his escape.

On 16 May 1900, a day before the Relief Column entered Mafeking to end the 7 month siege, a 9 man patrol of the Imperial Light Horse, commanded by the prominent Australian, Major Walter Karri Davies, evaded the encircling Boer forces and entered the Town. There was much jubilation and singing of anthems at BP's headquarters on their arrival. After the relief, Major Karri Davies ordered a silver salver to be made and engraved for presentation to the Lowveldt big game hunter, Henry Farmer Francis, one of the 8 members of his patrol. Three days earlier Francis had lost his brother killed in action at the battle at Maritzani, a few miles south of Mafeking.

Farmer Francis later accepted a commission as Captain in Steinaecker's Horse and was killed in action during the pre-dawn battle at Fort Mpisane on 7 August 1901. He was already dead when the engraved silver salver arrived from England and it was sent to his next-of-kin in Durban. On the salver is engraved the names of all the 9 men on that historic patrol. One of them, Warby, was also an Australian and was awarded the 'Distinguished Conduct Medal'.

Information from the book titled Steinaecker's Horsemen by William (Bill) Woolmore, pp189, 'Francis Henry Farmer, Lieutenant/Captain (AO310 6:4:01): A well-known lowveldt big game hunter who was highly respected by both whites and blacks. He had hunted with his friend, Percy Fitzpatrick, and is mentioned by name in Fitzpatrick's classic Jock of the Bushveldt. It was Francis who, years before the war, captured the lions kept at his residence, Groote Schuur, by Cecil Rhodes. He had shot a lioness and discovered that she had three cubs nearby. Francis took the cubs back to his camp which was located near the kraal of Chief Mpisane Nxumalo and they were foster-mothered by his setter bitch. He later gave the cubs to his friend, Percy Fitzpatrick, who kept them for some time until their size and the problem of housing the rapidly growing lions forced him to part with them. Fitzpatrick presented the lions to Cecil Rhodes who had a den built for them at his residence in the Cape. Before they could be delivered however one died as a result of snakebite. The other two were still living at Groote Schuur in 1909, many years after their capture. Prior to the Anglo-Boer War Francis was the first warden appointed to the Sabie Game Reserve which was later expanded to become the Kruger National Park. While a Lieutenant in Steinaecker's Horse he wrote to Percy Fitzpatrick to see if he could later have him appointed superintendent of the park.

Francis served previously as Trooper No.647 in the Imperial Light Horse and served with that unit in Ladysmith during the siege and later was a member of the column which relieved the besieged town of Mafeking. His brother, who was also serving in the Imperial Light Horse, was killed outside Mafeking. Farmer Francis was discharged from the Imperial Light Horse on 12 October 1900. He joined SH (Steinaecker's Horse) as Lieutenant on 12 November 1900 (AO281 13:2:01) and was promoted to Captain on 5 March 1901. He was killed in action (shot through the head) at Fort Mpisane, north of the Sabie River, near Hassan Ughaz on 7 August 1901 where he had been in command of the garrison. On 6 June 1902 Steinaecker reported that Francis 'would have been recommended for award for general good service and military ability had he survived'. Regardless he was Mentioned in Lord Kitchener's despatches (London Gazette 29 July 1902). Percy Fitzpatrick later said of him, 'a braver or a stauncher comrade no man could want'. He qualified for the QSA medal with clasps Defence of Ladysmith, Relief of Mafeking, Transvaal & SA 1901. His medal and clasps were sent to Mrs W.Buckle, Stampford Hill, Durban.'

One of the earliest residents of the Illawarra region of the Colony of New South Wales - Christopher Echlin was conceived at New York in the closing stages of the American Revolutionary War and was born in 1783 at Falmouth, New England in America. His mother Catherine was most likely the widow or daughter of a soldier and his father Thomas, a Quartermaster Sergeant with the 17th Foot Regiment, had been taken prisoner once and narrowly escaped capture a second time at Yorktown after being wounded in the hand and foot.

After the war the family returned to England and in 1792-3 Christopher enlisted in the Wexford Militia as a 9-year old Drummer Boy. His father was already serving in this unit and Christopher's brother Thomas joined a year later. In May-September 1798 he served in putting down The Irish Rebellion, possibly participating with his unit in the Battle of Vinegar Hill and the Battle of Goresbridge in June 1798.

On 9 September 1805 he enlisted in the 2/5th Regiment of Foot and on 24 January 1808 was promoted to Corporal. In 1809 his son William Leahy Echlin was born. He later became a noted surgeon and explorer joining the famous Sir Robert Hermann Schomburgk on his expedition to Guiana. On 2 January 1810 Corporal Christopher Echlin arrived on the Peninsular and served in the following battles: - 27 September 1810, Battle of Busaco; and in 1811, 12 March, Battle of Redinha; 3 to 5 May, Battle of Fuentes D'Onoro; 19 May to 10 June, Second Siege of Badajoz; and 25 September, Battle of El Bodon. On 7 December 1811 he was sent to England but returned to Spain in 1812 and was posted as wounded. On 9 December 1812 he rejoined his regiment at the rank of Sergeant. He returned to England in March 1813.

On 6 May 1815 he marched from Windsor to Portsmouth as a Sergeant volunteer. Then on 13 July 1815 he deserted at Portsmouth whilst waiting for passage to St Vincent and on 25 July 1815 the Adjutant-General instructed that he be sent with other deserters on board the prison ship at the Isle of Wight where it was conceived that they could be kept in better security than at Fort Cumberland, and until an opportunity arose for their being embarked for foreign service. In that same month of July 1815 Ecklin was transferred to a penal regiment, the York Chasseurs, and sentenced to unlimited overseas military service. On 5 November 1815 he arrived in the West Indies at the rank of Corporal, on 2 January 1816 he was promoted to Sergeant and on 24 February was transferred to the Bourbon Regiment at the rank of Colour Sergeant.

On 14-16 April 1816 he took an active part in the bloody suppression of 'Bussa's Slave Rebellion' in Barbados and on 25 April was transferred to the 1st West India Regiment at the rank of Colour Sergeant. On 17-18 August 1816 he was reduced in rank for 'unsoldierlike conduct and irregularities'. He was transferred to the 25th Regiment of Foot on 22 August 1816 and on 25 June 1817 he left the West Indies with his regiment. In November 1817 Echlin was employed on 'Recruiting duties within the Huntington District'. On 24 September 1819 he qualified for 14 years service additional pay and shortly after on 12 October he deserted. He then joined the 5th Regiment of Foot but on 15 February 1820 he was arrested by civilian police and spent one month in Exeter City Prison for desertion. He was released on 19 March and was later posted to the West Indies as a reinforcement. On 18 December 1820 he joined the 4th Regiment of Foot at Barbados from the 5th Regiment of Foot as a 'Foreign Service Man'.

During his time in Barbados he deserted on 31 October 1822 living in abandoned plantations with other deserters, frequently moving on to avoid the authorities. He finally returned to his regiment in March 1824. He appears to have deserted a second time although no details are available. It is hardly surprising that on 13 April 1825 Christopher Echlin was discharged at Antigua from the 4th Regiment of Foot and file noted as:- Character - bad, chronic dysentery and worn out by hard drinking - he had also deserted twice with the regiment. He was returned to England and arrived at Chatham on 21 July 1825. Then on 13 April 1826 he and Emily Du Bois, who was born in Switzerland, were married in London. About two weeks later on 25 April 1826 he enlisted for service in the New South Wales Veterans Company and on 8 May he, along with his wife, left England on the ship Orpheus with 213 men, women and children and arrived at New South Wales on 13 September 1826.

Christopher Echlin was appointed Constable and clerk to the Illawarra court but in January 1827 a letter from Lieutenant J.Fitzgerald commanding 39th Regiment stated in part, 'the clerk and constable Christopher Echland (sic) of the Royal Veterans is by no means qualified for the situation I am confident he will be very useful as a constable.' Lieutenant Fitzgerald's letter was acted upon and Echlin was removed from his position but remained a Constable. While in Illawarra, Echlin held the positions of Chief Constable and also Constable in charge of the Illawarra Stockade. In another letter to the Colonial Secretary Lieutenant Fitzgerald requested that Echlin be allowed to build a house at the Boat Harbour Wollongong where he was stationed with a small allotment of ground attached to it. In December 1828 it was decided to grant him half-an-acre to the southward of Boat Harbour with the precise spot to be reported to the Surveyor General. In 1828 Constable Echlin attested before a Justice of the Peace at Kiama regarding his involvement in the arrest of bushranger John Notley at Long Brush in Illawarra. He made the arrest along with three others but unfortunately he misled authorities and twice claimed the reward for the arrest. Also in February 1828 Echlin was convicted of trafficking at Boat Harbour

In March 1829 Echlin wrote a very long and detailed letter (copy in research included with lot) to The Australian newspaper regarding his and his fellow soldiers difficulties in protecting the Illawarra residents from bushrangers and in his letter he was critical of the ability of a newly appointed young magistrate for the District to deal adequately with offenders due to his inexperience. The new magistrate, only about 20 years old and with less than a year in the colony, was the new Commanding Officer of 39th Regiment. Echlin was discharged from the NSW Veterans Company on 24 September 1829 with character noted as Good.

WIA at Siege of San Sebastian - Migrated to Australia

lot 3364 There was a considerable volume of correspondence between Governor Darling and the Commanding Officer of 39th Regiment concerning Christopher Echlin (see copies in research included with lot), firstly in relation to his duties, but particularly regarding his grant of land at Boat Harbour. Unfortunately, this never eventuated despite repeated requests for it to be finalised and eventually it was cancelled in 1838. He was however given a large land grant at Dapto as a member of the Veterans Company and in 1832 it was reported that 11 acres of this property was in cultivation. On 13 November 1838 Christopher and Emily Echlin purchased two allotments of land on the corner of Burelli and Kembla Street with a frontage on Burelli and a frontage on Stewart Street. The cost was one hundred pounds and they resided on Burelli Street until Christopher's death in 1865 and Emily's in 1870. There was one period of absence for Christopher when he was imprisoned for one year in Darlinghurst Gaol being released on 30 April 1854. Details of his crime are unknown.

In the 1880s the Echlin's timber cottage was replaced with a stone cottage. The site was redeveloped in the 1960s as Civic Place and then in 2018 it underwent demolition to make way for the construction of a new $22 million IMB bank building.

Christopher had been declared dead by his father whilst he was serving in the Peninsula War and also by his soon-to-be wife whilst he was on service in the West Indies, both obviously incorrect. It was however recorded correctly in the Illawarra Mercury on 30 May 1865 that Mr Christopher Echlin, a resident of the district during the last 36 years had died on Friday last at his residence in Burelli Street. Reference was made to his military service in the Peninsular War and his funeral took place at the Church of England burial ground where there could not have been less than four or five hundred persons present to witness the ceremony. Being a Freemason and having made a request to be buried with Masonic honors, the members of the fraternity, resident in the district, accompanied his remains to the grave. The burial service was read by the Rev. T.O.Ewing, after which the Masonic service was repeated by Mr. E.H.King, the Worshipful Master of the Illawarra Lodge of Unanimity and Concord (Lodge No.903) and the members then returned to the Lodge room. That night the greater portion of them visited St Michaels Church where the Rev. T.O.Ewing preached an eloquent sermon.

Thus brought to a close the interesting life of a soldier with a chequered career that included overseas service, and a person who spent almost half of his life in Australia, a few of these in pursuit of bushrangers.

Note: Name recorded on medal roll as John Ballenger and in Ancestry records as John Ballinger and also John Balinge.

John Ballinger was born in Kildwick, County Clare, Ireland in 1787. He enlisted in the 3rd Battalion, Royal Scots Regiment and departed with his unit from Cork, Ireland on 10 July 1808 for Lisbon, Portugal. The unit had been sent there to fight the French and was part of a Brigade force to defend Portugal against Napoleon's French Army that had invaded Spain and Portugal. England has been allied with Portugal since 1350 and their peace treaty still survives today.

Wellington's Allied Army moved into Spain and fought at the Battle of Salamanca and after winning an outstanding victory at Vittoria on 21 June 1813 the Army laid siege to San Sebastian which stands on a peninsula in the Bay of Biscay and is dominated by a massive castle and fortification. Wellington wanted to clear this obstacle so that his main logistic supply route was clear and gain access to a vital seaport for supplies before advancing into France.

The capture of San Sebastian began on 22 July 1813 when Sir Thomas Graham laid siege with 9,000 troops of which 4,600 were Portuguese. Wave after wave fought to breach the fortifications without success. John Ballinger was severely wounded during the storming of the battlements by the 'Royals'. After the British Engineers detected a weak spot in the fortifications the city was taken. After gathering wine and brandy and moving the people from the city it was set on fire. All the streets in the city burnt for a week except for one, now known as 31st August Street, and each year the terrible siege and fire are remembered on 31st August.

After being wounded at the Siege of San Sebastian John Ballinger returned to England and after reporting to the Royal Chelsea Veterans Hospital for examination, was granted a pension on 6 March 1816. He married and had a son named John. Some years later, John and his wife and young daughter, Mary born in 1865, migrated to Australia in the 1870s. Ballinger Hill in Caloundra, Queensland was named after the family. It was later renamed Battery Hill following the Russian scare of 1882. John's daughter, Mary, married John Robinson in Queensland on 28 November 1888. She held her grandfather's Military General Service Medal and following her death it was sold by the family and eventually held in a private collection.

Note: The above medal is numbered correctly but the surname is mis-spelt as Roe. It appears that his widow never had the surname corrected to Rae.

James Hall Rae, blacksmith, born 22Aug1891 at Airdrie, Lanarkshire, Scotland; Enl.06Mar1912 in Royal Navy at Portsmouth for a period of 12 years: served in following ships, Victory II (training depot), Renown (training ship for Stokers), Zealandia (pre-dreadnought battleship), Egmont (base ship), Victory I (base ship), Dryad (navigation and direction school), Dolphin (submarine school), Maidstone (submarine depot ship) and submarine E47.

Submarine E47, commissioned in October 1916 was based at Harwich with the 9th Flotilla, depot ships Maidstone and Forth, and was engaged in North Sea patrols off the German and Dutch coasts. When German coastal shipping between Heligoland Bight and Rotterdam resumed, E47 was one of four submarines sent to intercept the convoy but it is believed that she was struck by a mine on 20 August 1917 and lost in the North Sea without survivors.

The wreck of the E47 was not found until 2002 when it was located in the North Sea about 6 nautical miles northwest of Texel in the province of North Holland in the Netherlands by Divingteam Noordkaap from the island of Vlieland in the north of the Netherlands. The remains of the hull revealed a large hole at the portside of the control room area which indicated it had been struck by a mine.

One of those lost on the E47 was Lieutenant Colin Fraser Creswell, son of Vice Admiral Sir William Rooke Creswell KCMG, KBE, RAN.

Stoker 1st Class James Hall Rae is commemorated on the Portsmouth Naval Memorial along with other crew from the E47.

He was posted to the Army Reserve as a private and joined the Inns of Court OTC on 29 December 1916. He applied for admission to an Officer Cadet Unit with the Royal Sussex Regiment and then on 9 April 1917 he decided to try out for the Royal Flying Corps and was accepted and attached to the School of Military Aeronautics at Reading. Effective from 29 September his rank was confirmed as 2nd Lieutenant and on 6 January 1918 he embarked with RFC's 58 Squadron to join Britain's Expeditionary Force in Europe. On 1 April 1918 the RFC and RNAS became the RAF and Roy was appointed to this new force eventually becoming a full Lieutenant.

On July 1918 while conducting a night bombing raid with 149 Squadron over occupied France he and his observer Lieutenant A.Smith failed to return and were reported missing. Unfortunately they had been shot down and captured by the Germans at south-west Armentieres but this was not officially confirmed until 21 September 1918. CBE: Fourth Supplement to LG 1/1/1964, p44 - on the advice of Her Majesty's Nigerian Ministers to Jack Farrington, Esq. For services to the tin mining industry.

John 'Jack' Leonard Farrington was born on 14 June 1906 in Sydney, Australia, to English parents. He grew up in Fiji, where his father who was a doctor died in 1915. The following year his mother moved the family to Canada, where she was appointed Matron at the Provincial Home for Incurables at Marpole in Vancouver. Jack was educated at public and high schools in Vancouver, British Columbia and then at the University of British Columbia graduating as a Bachelor of Applied Science in May 1928, with 1st class honours in mining engineering. In his third year at university he was awarded its Dunamuir Scholarship for highest standing in mining engineering.

After graduation, his profession was that of a field and mining geologist, in sub-Saharan Africa. From June 1928 to May 1931 he was a field geologist with Loangwa Concessions in Northern Rhodesia (present-day Zambia). From May 1931 to July 1936 he was in Southern Rhodesia (present-day Zimbabwe), working for the Gold Fields Rhodesian Development Company, for valuation and development of prospects, and as the only geologist at the Wanderer Mine. He looked at the Kakemega goldfield in Kenya, then enjoying a gold rush, but did not stay. From July 1936 to November 1937 he became an assistant geologist at the head office of New Consolidated Goldfields, at Johannesburg, South Africa. Moving to the Gold Coast (present day Ghana), from November 1937 he became chief geologist with the Ashanti Goldfields Corporation and was the first resident geologist at the rich Ashanti gold mine.

When he volunteered for military service in 1939 his application claimed experience in (1) interpretation of air surveys, (2) mine development, (3) diamond drilling, (4) organization of field parties and prospecting units, and (5) handling of labour; also 'special knowledge' of aerial surveying (based on the planning and interpretation of four such surveys), tunnelling, surveying, and general reconnaissance of unmapped or poorly mapped territory. However, he was not accepted for service due to poor vision in one eye. Up until 1942 his work included wide experience in siting positions for boring and control of boring operations involving diamond drills, including siting of boreholes for water, and in 1941 he became an Associate (postwar a Member) of the Institution of Mining and Metallurgy (UK), and in February 1943 also a Fellow of the Society of Economic Geologists (USA).

When he was finally accepted for military service in 1942, at the age of 36, he sought employment with boring units of the Royal Engineers. However, after initial training with No. 6 Training Battalion RE (at Elgin in Scotland) from 30 October to 21 December 1942, he was attached to the Survey Training Centre RE (near Ruabon in north Wales) to attend a field survey course, followed by a course in air survey and cartography, from 22 December 1942 to 28 April 1943. The Survey Centre's main function was to train officers and men as military surveyors, who would then be able to act as reinforcements for existing survey units, and for the formation of new units. He was then detached to 14 Corps Field Survey (CFS) Company RE from 28 April to 17 July; returned to the Survey Training Centre RE from 18 July to 12 October; and detached again, to 523 CFS Company RE, before being posted to ISTD, at Oxford, on 8 November 1943. Jack's 'Officer's Record of Service' notes that he was detached briefly to B.A.S. Washington, USA from 19 October to 5 November 1944, and to active service in NW Europe with 21 Army Group in France, Belgium and Holland from 24 December 1944 to 19 January 1945. Soon after the Geological Section ISTD was formed, Jack became its officer commanding.

After the war Jack went to Nigeria, where as a consultant, his first client was Amalgamated Tin Mines of Nigeria (ATMN). There he took part in an aerial survey of the Jos Plateau, and made the acquaintance of the Western Nigerian goldfield. Then he was invited to be the official consultant to the ATMN Group, based in Nigeria. He published a preliminary description of the Nigerian lead-zinc field and undertook a mining survey in Cameroon. After being appointed Assistant General Manager with ATMN in 1953, he was promoted to General Manager in 1957. Whilst General Manager, he was appointed a 'special member' of Nigeria's Northern House of Assembly (Lagos Times, 4 September 1961) to represent the region's mining interests, and promoted Northern Nigeria as 'an awakening giant'. He served until retirement from Nigeria in September 1964.

Presentation copies of the farewell speeches that marked his resignation from the House were donated by the family to the Pitt Rivers Museum at Oxford in 2006, as part of the documentation that accompanied donation of two ceremonial fans. Also, with retirement imminent, in the Queen's Birthday Honours of 1964 he was appointed a Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire for his services to the mining industry in Nigeria.

Jack and his wife returned to England, to Tonbridge in Kent, before moving to the Channel Island of Jersey where he continued with some consultancy work after retirement, but died there on 20 March 1982.

The following are extracts from a letter, one of many, written by Private Frank Best, of the second Tasmanian contingent, to his mother at Westbury and reported in the Examiner (Launceston, Tasmania) on Tuesday 3 April 1900, p6.

CAPETOWN, Feb. 24, 1900

"We have just been ordered to the front after being here for nine weeks. There does not seem much to do up here, as the Boers are being beaten everywhere, especially where we are going. They have Cronje surrounded. We are all busy packing up. I have enjoyed myself very much, and every one of us is eager to get to the front. We have met several Tasmanians, so have been treated well. We had plenty of time to look over the town. The people are mostly blacks. Our camp is close to the hospital, so we see the wounded as they are brought down. Several hundred Boer prisoners passed yesterday, and they all seemed glad they were in the hands of the British.

It is likely we shall go to England after the war, which will soon be finished. We are all to be mounted on little ponies used to climbing hills, as they are said to be better than the big horses at the work. We will stop at a place about 120 miles up to get them, and will stay for two days to give those who cannot ride a chance of learning. They are schooled on an old mule bareback, so we will have plenty of fun. Fruit is very cheap here, and a ton of juicy grapes are sent to the front every day for the soldiers.

Close to our tent there is a big tin house called the soldiers' home, where they sell tea, cocoa, cake, etc., very cheaply, and every evening there is a concert and refreshments free, and we are treated splendidly. We marched through the town on Wednesday with about 6000 troops. This was done to impress the Dutch living there. The Tassies got special mention in the papers.

There were sports held yesterday to welcome us, but I could not get away until 4 o'clock, so I could only run in the 880 yards flat race. I was the only Australian who won a prize, a grand pipe. They cheered me, and cried, 'Well done, Tassie.' I feel proud to think I was the only successful Australian, beating men from England, Scotland, Wales, Canada, Cape Colony, etc. We have with us some of every regiment of the English army. The bugle has just sounded 'pack tents', so I must finish. The Gordon Highlanders are all coming round to say good-by (sic). They think a lot of our chaps, as they were with our other boys at the front."

On 21 September 1900 the residents of Westbury extended an enthusiastic welcome to Private Frank Best who had been invalided home from South Africa. The gathering was held in the library hall. After several speeches of welcome, the Chairman, Mr C.W. Allen on behalf of residents presented Private Best with a gold medal bearing the inscription, 'Memento presented by the residents of Westbury to Private F. Best, second contingent, South African war, 21/9/1900'. Private Best was also the recipient from Mr J.B. Stewart, an old Ashanti campaigner, of a handsome blackwood walking stick.

No doubt one of these was when after an engagement at Witport he rode over the laager the Boers had left and one of the first things he came across was an 'Imperial Rover' bicycle which he was going to try and bring back to Australia. At the time he concluded that it would be quite an historical possession if he could manage to get it back.

Sidney Harry Jeffryes was born at Toowoomba, Queensland in 1884, the son of a postmaster and telegraphist with the Queensland Post and Telegraph. Sidney is recorded as working as telegraphist from 1909 and then qualified as a wireless operator with Australasian Wireless Co Ltd. In October 1911 it was reported in the Sydney Sun, 'Record by the Kyarra. Mr S.H.Jeffryes, wireless operator on the A.U.S.N. Co's Kyarra, which was fitted up by the Australasian Wireless Co Ltd, has put up a record for overland wireless messages between ships.'

Radio operator, Sidney Jeffryes, and his contribution to Douglas Mawson's Australasian Antarctic Expedition of 1911-14, has been recognised with a plaque at his formerly unmarked grave, at a cemetery in Ararat, Victoria. The bronze plaque, commissioned by the Mawson's Huts Foundation, reads - 'Mawson's expedition was the first to use wireless in Antarctica and Queensland born Jeffryes is credited with establishing reliable two-way communications between the AAE Main Base and Macquarie Island where a five-man team relayed messages from Antarctica to Australia.'

The following is an extract from an article courtesy of Wikipedia.

'The AAE expedition was the first Antarctic expedition in history, and the only one during the Heroic Age of Antarctic Exploration, to maintain radio contact with its country of origin. Only a high power facility of comparable capacity to those recently established at Sydney (VIS) and Perth (VIP) would have been capable of direct communication between Hobart and Cape Denison and this would have been prohibitively expensive and resource hungry for the expedition. It was decided to establish an intermediate station at Macquarie Island, and by halving the maximum distance for each signal to traverse, it was expected that the 2kW Telefunken transmitters of the Australasian Wireless Co., Ltd. would enable reliable communication.

Jeffryes had a keen interest in both Antarctica and wireless telegraphy and when the first call for applications to join the AAE was made, he sought an appointment as wireless operator. But at that time his length of experience as a telegraphist and wireless telegraphist was not great and he was not successful. Douglas Mawson appointed Walter Henry Hannam who was associated with the prominent patriot George Augustine Taylor and had himself been involved with the establishment of the Wireless Institute of Australia.

A series of tragedies and mishaps had led to the Cape Denison shore base on Antarctica being kept open for a second winter, March-December 1913. But there had been some tension between Mawson and Hannam and in January 1913, Hannam elected to return home after his year at Macquarie Island and Cape Denison. The intermediate station that he set up at Wireless Hill on Macquarie Island was fully functional and providing sterling service exchanging messages with the Hobart coastal station VIH. But there had been ongoing issues with both transmission and reception at Cape Denison, and only occasional messages were got out. This failure prevented the expedition fulfilling the terms of its contract with Australian and London Press in providing timely updates on the activities and status of the expedition. The replacement wireless officer would bring with him improved wireless telegraphy receivers (sensitivity of the crucial detectors was taking great strides at the time) which it was expected would make the Cape Denison station fully effective.

An appeal was made for a wireless operator to serve during the second winter of the AAE, and now Jeffryes was given the appointment. Jeffryes arrived at the Cape Denison shore base in February 1913 as the base was enduring a near-nightmare situation. The expedition's leader and commander, Douglas Mawson, stumbled into the base, the sole survivor of a sled dog probe eastward along the previously unknown interior coastline of the Australian Antarctic Territory. As the new wireless operator, Jeffryes was able to start the relay of communications that would inform Australia of the expedition leader's survival. However, within days of Mawson's arrival, the Antarctic winter began.

Mawson's expedition hut was located close to what was then the location of the South Magnetic Pole, and continued radio interference and static associated with polar conditions threatened the base's minimal ability to contact Macquarie Island. The expedition leader at first admired Jeffryes's assiduity with earphones and Morse-code key, but grew increasingly guarded in his praise. In Mawson's words, Jeffryes "applied himself to work with enthusiasm and perhaps an over-conscientious spirit." Climate conditions outside the hut made winter outdoor exercise impossible, leading to cabin fever. All the expeditioners would have been familiar with tales of Antarctic winter madness and particularly the problems of the Belgian Antarctic Expedition. Conditions at Cape Denison were clearly worse than those on the Belgica due to the Katabatic wind which because of the unique geography is at its upper extreme in the vicinity.

In July 1913, as Antarctica neared midwinter, wireless operator Jeffryes began to present symptoms of paranoia to his fellow shore-party winter explorers, none of whom knew how to receive or transmit messages in Morse code. Expedition leader Mawson began to encourage another expedition member, Airman Frank Bickerton, to learn Morse code as quickly as possible. Jeffryes's condition waxed and waned; for some weeks his comrades believed he was recovering, but in September of the same year the radioman experienced a psychotic break and began transmitting a message, through Macquarie Island, to Australia. Declaring himself to be the only sane man on the expedition, Jeffryes accused all of his comrades of having joined a criminal conspiracy to murder him. Mawson thereupon relieved Jeffryes of his duties. In December 1913, the expedition's vessel Aurora relieved the troubled Antarctic shore party.

Jeffryes was excluded from the welcoming celebrations in Adelaide due to his medical status. Yet he was paid off two days after arrival at Adelaide. Mawson stated subsequently that he believed that Jeffryes had returned to full health: "Later on Jeffreys improved, and on the arrival of the ship he became quite normal, and in that condition he was landed at Adelaide we believing that he would never again have any further trouble of the kind. On the return voyage Dr. Maclean occupied the same cabin with him, and kept him closely under observation. Dr. Maclean reported to me that Jeffreys was quite well and no thought ever entered our mind that he would not travel straight home without risk. In fact his condition was so good that I decided not to make any mention of the matter to his people.

In March 1914 it was realised that Jeffryes had not returned to the family home in Toowoomba and was missing. Six days later he was found near Stawell, exhausted and starved, having lived on roots and grubs, and drinking water from stagnant pools. He was arrested, clearly in a psychotic break and presented at the Stawell Court. His poignant plea from the dock was "Let me go back and die, where I have hidden my trunk, in the silence of the ranges." The Court committed Jeffryes to the Ararat Asylum.

His mental condition was diagnosed as paranoid schizophrenia while he was confined to the Aradale Mental Hospital in Ararat, Victoria. Letters from the health center, written to Mawson in 1915, testify to his challenges. Little is known of his later life. He died under confinement in 1942.

Jeffryes' meticulous records of wireless reception quality during the second year of the Australasian Antarctic Expedition were correlated by himself, and by other expeditioners, with other observations of variables such as magnetic readings, auroral intensity, and St Elmo's Fire. These identified, perhaps for the first time, the impacts of Antarctic conditions upon low frequency radio wave propagation.

The expedition's head and designated spokesman, Douglas Mawson, had little to say in his published histories about Jeffryes' active service in Antarctica. For almost 100 years, the unfortunate wireless operator's name was suppressed from most Antarctic records. But in August 2010, the Australian Antarctic Division honored Jeffryes for his pioneering winter service by naming a previously unnamed glacier after him. The Jeffryes Glacier is located at 67° 4' South, 143° 59' East, in the Australian Antarctic Territory. It should not be confused with the Jeffries Glacier.

In December 2013, the first opera to be based on Mawson's 1911-14 expedition to Antarctica, The Call of Aurora (by Tasmanian composer Joe Bugden) was performed at The Peacock Theatre in Hobart. A chamber opera, The Call of Aurora investigates the relationship between Douglas Mawson and his wireless operator, Sidney Jeffryes.'

Staunton Spain was a notary public and served as a marshal, Admiralty jurisdiction, Supreme Court. He was a member of the League of Ancient Mariners and alderman for North Sydney 1925-37. He died on 8 September 1946 after being struck by a city tram. The Spain's family connection to the area where they lived is recognised by the naming of Spain's Wharf Road and a look-out on Kurraba Point. Spain's brother, Alfred, was a prominent architect, was involved in many other business and charitable endeavours and had a stellar military career and was also awarded the silver Royal Shipwreck Relief & Humane Society of New South Wales Medal for saving a young boy from drowning in 1934.

Staunton Spain presented a bell from China to the Ward Room, HMAS Penguin. More than 100 of his glass-plate negatives survive in collections in the Mitchell Library in Sydney and renamed in the Bracegirdle Collection in the Australian War Memorial Canberra. In the book Blue Jackets & Boxers by Bob Nicholls, in Chapter 10, p73, where the author describes the contingents move to Peking in October he states, 'The Officer in charge of this fleet was Lieutenant Staunton Spain, who had brought his unwieldy glass-plate camera with him from Australia. His record of the contingent's time in China takes a prominent place in the illustrations in this book.'

DCM: LG 4/3/1918, p2757; CAG 25/7/1918, p1591, to Cpl G.F.Miller, 1st Aust Division Signals Coy.

Recommendation: At Remus Wood east of Ypres during the operations on 4th Oct., 1917, Cpl. Miller displayed conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. At a critical stage of the battle when the forward telephonic communication between Cable Head and Forward Station was temporarily disorganised by shell fire, he led his linesmen out and laid a special line through an intense enemy barrage and established communication. After this line had been laid he organised his linesmen as stretcher bearers and safely brought in 5 badly wounded men through the heavy enemy barrage. Throughout the whole operation his personal supervision and assistance to linesmen resulted in continuous telephonic communication being maintained between Cable Head and Forward Station. Awarded Military Medal 25/9/17.

MM: LG 19/11/1917, p11975; CAG 7/3/1918, p399, to Acting Cpl. G.F.Miller, 1st Aust Division Signals Coy.

Recommendation: At Hooge on September 16th Cpl. Miller, after the Signal Officer in charge of a carrying party bringing up cable for burying in the front line, had been killed, took charge and succeeded in bringing the cable to the front line through very heavy enemy barrages. On three separate occasions Cpl. Miller re-organised the carrying party, each time coming through a heavy barrage, and it was only by his gallantry and splendid perseverance that the cable was buried at a critical time.

George Finch Miller, telegraphist, age 28, born at Leamington, Cambridge, New Zealand; Enl.17Aug1914 at Randwick, Sydney, NSW, with previous service in Waikato Mounted Rifles; Emb.18Oct1914; proceeded to join MEF at Gallipoli 05Apr1915; tfr from 2Bn to Div Sig Coy at Gallipoli 10Jul1915; to L/Cpl 17Nov1916; to Temp Cpl 21Aug1917; awarded MM 25Sep1917; to Cpl 28Sep1917; to Temp Sgt 20Oct1917; WIA 30Oct1917 gassed, Belgium; awarded DCM 20Nov1917; to Cadet School 22Jan1918; to 2/Lt 13Jul1918; to Lt 13Oct1918; RTA 16Jun1919; Appt terminated 15Aug1919.

On 17 May 1913 it was reported in the Auckland Star newspaper that 2Lt George Finch Miller, 6th (Hauraki) Regt had been dismissed from the defence forces for absence without leave. It is also interesting to note that he stated he had previous service with the Waikato Mounted Rifles when he enlisted in the AIF. Nonetheless, details of the manner in which Sergeant Miller was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal were reported in the New Zealand press in the Ohinemuri Gazette and in the Dominion on 30 August 1918 and in the Te Aroha News on 2 September 1918. George died on 1 February 1970 at Mornington, Victoria and was cremated on 3 February 1970 at Springvale Crematorium. His record of death shows that George Finch Miller was an 82-year old former maintenance officer with the State Electricity Commission (retired at age 65) who was born in New Zealand but lived in Victoria for 50 years and also that his father, James Napier Miller was a Presbyterian missionary.

Recommendation: For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during operations against enemy positions South of the Somme on 8th August 1918. Sergeant Bliss was platoon sergeant in the Company allotted the task of attacking Accroche Wood in co-operation with other units. During the advance through the wood under a very dense fog many men became separated from their units. Under instructions from his platoon Commander, Sergeant Bliss took under his command a platoon so separated and led them forward under a heavy artillery barrage through the wood and joined up again in line with his Company. Sergeant Bliss personally led a party of these men against an enemy machine gun position in Long Valley where he captured ten prisoners and three machine guns. He inspired his men with great confidence by his gallant deeds and afterwards with another party he rushed an enemy 4.2 gun position capturing two guns and 12 prisoners. He then led his men on to the objective where he assisted his platoon Commander to reorganise. The bravery, fearlessness of this N.C.O. was splendid. He greatly assisted the advance of his Company by forming a solid flanking platoon on its right.

A report of the death of Leslie Allen in The Age (Melbourne) on Tuesday 12 August 1919 reads as follows. "The death of Leslie Max Allen, aged 28 years, a returned soldier, who was shot with a pea rifle at North Wandin last Sunday, has been reported to the Coroner. Allen, who had put in four years on active service, at Gallipoli (see footnote) and in France, had upon his discharge (not yet discharged according to letter dated 15 October 1919 in his Service File and widow issued with Memorial Plaque) decided to select land. For this purpose he went with his father to North Wandin. On Sunday he left the house where he was staying to shoot rabbits, and took a pea rifle with him. As he did not return, a search was made for him, and he was found lying beside a fence with a wound on the left breast. The pea rifle lay on the other side in a position that indicated its discharge while being pulled through. The injured man was not dead, but died on the way to Caulfield Military Hospital.

(Note: Dvr L.M.Allen did not serve at Gallipoli. He embarked from Australia on 25 November 1915 and disembarked at Suez on 21 December 1915. The evacuation of troops from Gallipoli had already begun on 15 December 1915.)

Subsequently, a report in the Weekly Times (Melbourne) on Saturday 30 August 1919 reads as follows. 'FATAL GUNSHOT WOUND - SUICIDAL IMPULSE POSSIBLE. In giving evidence at the Morgue this week, Mr Edward Allen's theory of the death of his son, Leslie Max Allen (28) a returned soldier, was that in getting through a wire fence at Wandin North on August 10, his had either slipped or become entangled and accidentally discharged his rifle. Medical evidence showed that the singlet, but not the shirt or tunic, had been pierced.

Dr R. H. Cole, the Coroner, returned a finding that Allen died from the effects of a gunshot wound self-inflicted, but that there was no evidence to show how the wound came to be self-inflicted. It appeared from evidence that Allen had got up early with the declared intention of shooting rabbits. Dr Cole remarked that the fact of the shot having missed the tunic and shirt of the dead man, and having passed through the singlet, made it look like a case of suicide. He added that there could be little doubt that the shock and strain of service at the front had a tendency to arouse the suicidal impulse among some of the returned men.

An immediate award by C-in-C, B.C.F.K. 20Aug1953. Presented by His Excellency Sir John Lavarack, Governor of Queensland, at Government House Brisbane on 20Apr1955

Citation: On the night of 25th-26th July, 1953, Lance Corporal Crockford was commanding the section of six men holding the Contact Bunker between Hill 111, the right flank of the United States 1st Marine Division, and Hill 121, on which was situated the left flank position of his own battalion.

Immediately after a very heavy enemy artillery barrage, which covered the whole area, a fierce assault was made by an enemy company. In the bitter hand to hand fighting in the trenches around his position, Lance Corporal Crockford skilfully and coolly directed the fire of his section, with complete disregard for his own safety and with such effect that the enemy was prevented from isolating the two hills.

Realising that there were still many enemy in the area after the first assault, this non-commissioned officer called for artillery fire, himself giving the necessary corrections. His accurate control was most effective.

Throughout the night Lance Corporal Crockford never ceased radioing information to his battalion. Much of this information he gained only by moving some hundred yards through continuous heavy shell fire to the Marine CP on Hill 111, whose own communications had been cut. His information was of inestimable value.

Lance Corporal Crockford displayed outstanding determination, tenacity and leadership throughout the action and his cool appraisal of the situation, combined with his refusal to be dismayed, were beyond praise.

Kenneth Humber Crockford, panel beater, born 21Jun1925 at Brisbane, Qld; WWII: Enl.04Feb1944 at Brisbane, Qld in RAAF; Disch.14Feb1946 as Leading Aircraftman ex 6 Aircraft Depot; Korean War: Enl.11Mar1952 at Brisbane, Qld in Royal Aust Infy Corps; after basic recruit training at Ingleburn, NSW he was posted to 1 Reinforcement Holding Unit at Harahaura, Japan; he was then posted to Charlie Coy of 2RAR and trained with the Canadian Army in May 1953 and completed a Junior NCO Course; 2RAR then moved to Korea; served in Korea with 2RAR; RTA 13Oct1953; in Mar1955 admitted to Greenslopes Royal General Hospital suffering from delayed action shock (PTSD); released in Aug1955 and rejoined 2RAR for duty in Malaya; engaged in ops around Kedah and the pipeline where the forward scout was killed; in 1957 returned to Enoggera and Wacol in Qld to train National Servicemen; Disch.25Feb1957 in Brisbane, Qld and settled at Morayfield near Caboolture in Qld.

In an account of his service Kenneth Crockford recalls his first action in Korea as follows. 'On 06Jun1953 L/Cpl Crockford was on patrol with Sgt W.J.Bruce when about 20 Chinese ambushed them as they moved from a deep valley up to a feature. The enemy waited until the leading scouts of the patrol moved into the apex of the valley and then opened fire with light machine guns, burp guns, and percussion grenades. There were six casualties and L/Cpl Crockford was wounded in the knee. The enemy ran over the top of him and captured him but as the fighting continued he was able to escape up the feature to safety. The battle continued and ultimately six enemy were killed and Sgt Bruce was awarded an MM.' He also states in his recollections of Hill 111 and 121, 'It was a horrible experience to fight hand to hand in the trenches and with four young soldiers who had not fired a shot. It was frightening for all of them to see many Chinese attacking with flame throwers, burp guns and percussion grenades.'
