$150

Privately purchased in 1976. The statement of only a purchase date in the footnote on this and other English coin lots generally indicates that Mr.W.H.Lampard acquired the coin from a fellow collector who he sometimes named in his listing or from an uncertain source probably in his travels either in New Zealand or overseas.

1909

Anglo Saxon, Wiglaf, (827-840), Ashmore replica of the silver penny, cross and pellets, rev. moneyer's name in three lines, (cf.S.934, Bulletin on Counterfeits Vol.20/2 No.22 (illustrated p.26 same dies). Nearly extremely fine.
$40

Ex Doug Carian, Palmerston North coin dealer, New Zealand. First published by Bob Forrest in Coin News in October 1995 and again in the 1995/6 Bulletin on Counterfeits. Trevor Ashmore was a precision engineer by profession who in the late 60's started to cut dies in his free time. He sold these copies as replicas. In 1972 he set up a firm "Period Coins" and these produced boxed sets of Medieval coins which included this example of Wiglaf. About 100 of the sets were sold mainly in the U.S.A. The business failed in 1974 but he continued to make replica coins. They all come toned and struck in good silver. Some types of his extensive group of copies (from Celtic to Civil War issues) were continued to be made into the 1990's.

2017*

Henry VII, (1485-1509), silver halfgroat, facing bust issue with open crown coinage, mm. lis on rose/lis, almost complete tressures, issued 1487, London mint, mule of type I/IIIb, with lozenge panel in centre of reverse, (S.2202, [£300 F], N.1709, cf.SCBI 23, No.450). Toned, clipped, otherwise very fine and extremely rare.

$500

Ex Alex Harris, antique dealer, Wellington, 1960's-1970's, bought 1966. To be type I the tressures should go all the way around the arch on the crown. Close examination of this coin shows that it almost goes around but is weak right at the top. The punches for the bust are essentially the same as that used in SCBI 23 No.450. The mint mark on the obverse with only the bottom half discernable, is clearly much more complicated than the lis used for type III on the reverse. An important mule of this intermediate series.
