China, uncertain period, "Ch'in" series, double dragon head type, odd shaped medium of exchange and also known as "bridge money", (c.1000-500 B.C.), length 135mms, (cf. Coole 6722, 6728, Vol.5 p.478, 482, Not in Sch. or TFP). With green patina, very fine and very rare.

Coole in "Coins in China's History", discusses these pieces under "Odd Shaped Mediums of Exchange", and that these pieces were initially used in that transitional period between the bartering age and the coin age. They were made in many shapes and resembled various valuable utensils and objects used at that time including fish, bells, lotus roots, shields etc. Thus these objects in copper described above look like the early jade musical instruments called ch'in and they were used in orchestras like the modern metallic triangles. Dragon head "ch'in" are rarely seen and seem to have some monetary exchange value.

China, Eastern Chou Dynasty, Warring State period, "Chou Tung", round cash with square hole, (475 - 221 B.C.), two characters either side, diameter 28mms, (Coole 8901, Vol.7 p.14, TFP 9, Pl.2). Some green encrustation, otherwise very fine and extremely rare.

Ex Virgil Brand Collection.

The obverse legend, 'SUD', or 'South' in Spanish refers not to the coin being from South Mexico, but to the wind, which blows from the south. The legend portends a revolutionary wind, blowing across the 'tierra caliente', or 'hot ground', which is not hot from the sun, but from the fight for independence. Mexican revolutionary forces would procure provisions from local farmers and pay with these copper cartwheels, which the farmers would either accept or face being shot. The coins were often buried (as was this example) since government forces would execute farmers found trading with the enemy. This specimen is from The Virgil Brand Collection exhibits his usual fondness for large flans.

South East Asia, interrupted dumbbell ring lead coinage, issued A.D. 200-600, (33.9 grams), (cf.M.2610-1 and 5321-2; Mitchiner 11-12 [p.30, History and Coinage of South East Asia until the fifteenth century]). Surface oxidation, otherwise very fine and unusual.

Mitchiner (p.29 cited above) notes that finds of similar types as these as well as moulds were found at Oc-ao by Malleret's excavations (1959-1963) as well as contemporary Mon sites in Thailand and the Pyu site of Beikthano in the Irrawaddy valley. These are all dated to the period A.D. 200-600. Consequently the circulation of these pieces must have covered from South Vietnam, Thailand and Burma. He notes most examples are 20-30 grams but a few specimens have been observed around 50 grams. The analysis of these "dumbbell interrupted rings" show that they are almost 100% lead. The style of these dumbbells are somewhat different to those illustrated by Mitchiner.
