Considered the first Chain cent produced. Struck at the end of February 1793, the first coinage of the United States Mint, shortly after it had opened. The abbreviated legend on the reverse was considered to be a layout problem stemming from the engraver's inexperience. Some also suggest that the abbreviated legend was deliberate symbolism, after the style of the Masonic unfinished pyramid on the Great Seal of the United States.

The current vendor's great grandfather was a colonel in the British Army. He served as an advisor during the American Civil War. After the war he returned to the U.K. with this and other U.S. coins. The coins remained in the family which immigrated to New Zealand in 1948. The vendor was given this coin by her father in 1956, where until now, it resided in her china cabinet.

The sixth issue one pound purportedly ceased being issued in 1916. It is unclear from Griffin if this serial type is from the early part of the issue or the end of it. The illustrated example in his book "Bank of New Zealand Banknotes 1861-1934" was no doubt an early "specimen" for the issue and shows a lettered prefix. Robb indicates (in his 2006 draft catalogue) that the un-lettered notes were issued from 1902-1904. The date stamp on the example being sold is unclear (it could also possibly be 1903, 1908 or 1916). It is however our view that the note is dated 1918. The likely scenario being that this was a left-over form issued after the sixth series had officially ended. The case for this could be born out by the fact that notes at the start of the seventh issue pound had no serial letter, and that an example of an early sixth issue pound sold by Spink (Australia) (Sale 31, lot 701) had the hand entered date of 1st July 1905 and the serial prefix "B". It is likely that the rubber stamping of dates was from a later period. Furthermore, the biggest clue to the late issue theory comes from the signatory, Manager A.L. Hempton (Chief Auditor of the bank in the 1930's), he was still signing notes as Manager in the 1920's. It is therefore more than likely that he was a Manager at the end of WWI rather than at the beginning of the century. We suspect that the first notes from the sixth issue which started in 1902 had the prefix letter "A" and that notes from the end of the series had no serial letter. Robb also indicates that only two notes of this serial type are known in private hands, with a further example in an institution. A note certainly worthy of further research.

Less than 10 notes known to exist of this rare prefix variety, the last one having been sold by Noble Numismatics in July 2007 for $21,000 hammer (Sale 85, lot 3919). The example now being offered is new to the market and has been in the hands of the current owner for over 50 years, having been found by him whilst working as a bank teller in Auckland in the 1950's. Robb states that the prefix was issued in error and that the correct prefix should have been K/0 (letter over number). He estimates that approximately 300,000 were printed around 1955. Robb also notes that the prefix run is "the end of a sub type, as well as the mintage figure, has created the rarest Reserve Bank note. In 1998 only 7 notes were known".
